Siamese Twin Girls Are Separated by Surgeons

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Surgeons have separated 14-day-old Siamese twin girls in an operation that is rarely successful. The infants were doing fairly well today.

The four-hour operation Wednesday at Children's Hospital "came off as well as we could ask for," said Dr. William B. Kiesewetter, the hospital's chief surgeon.

"They are doing as well as we can expect," he added. "They are breathing comfortable, and their color is good. However, we need three to five days before we can guess whether they're out of danger.

"We are somewhat encouraged that their initial response has been favorable."

The girls, Rose Mary and Ruth Ann, were born June 7 to Mrs. John Temoshenko, 32, of nearby Tarentum.

The beaming mother said after the operation:

The twins shared one organ—their liver — before the surgery. Kiesewetter said the liver was large enough to divide in half. The girls were joined from the fourth rib to below the navel.

Temoshenko and his wife, Therese, have a three-year-old daughter and twin boys, James and John, 27 months.

Religious Words In U.S. Pledge Blasted by Group

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Civil Liberties union has filed suit in Superior Court declaring inclusion of the words "under God" in the United States pledge of allegiance is unconstitutional.

The suit followed a U.S. Supreme Court decision this week which held that reading of the Lord's Prayer or passages from the Bible in public schools was unconstitutional.

The ACLU contends the words "under God" violate the first and 14th Amendments of the Constitution.

The suit was filed by ACLU attorney A. L. Wirin in behalf of Haswell Parker, 51, a Los Angeles high school history teacher.

Parker said he did not belong to any church and objected to being required to take part in a pledge which includes the phrase "under God."

The phrase was added to the pledge of allegiance in 1954. In 1959, the Los Angeles Board of Education made a daily pledge of allegiance mandatory in schools under its jurisdiction.

Tiros Weather Satellite Circles Globe

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two Tiros weather satellites circled the globe today, their camera eyes on the alert for hurricanes and typhoons.

Tiros 7 rocketed into orbit Wednesday to join Tiros 6, which has been on weather patrol since last September. Together, the twin satellites were expected to provide the most comprehensive photographic coverage yet of a full hurricane season.

While waiting for the first tropical storms of the year to develop, the two space weather stations are busy photographing cloud cover over many areas of the globe. Tiros 7 began relaying excellent quality pictures on its first orbit Wednesday.

Significant photos are transmitted quickly to interested weather agencies around the world.

Internal Revenue Offices Move To New Location

After being in the local Post Office Building since 1917, the Internal Revenue Service is moving Friday to 521 S. Tejon St. (directly across from the State Department of Revenue).

The move is to begin at 8 a.m. and will be completed the same day. It is to be "Business as Usual" beginning Monday.

The new quarters have a street entrance, and two added conference rooms to better serve the public. The forms rack will be located inside the new offices in the lobby next to the service counter. The telephone number will remain the same — 636-5171.

Roger E. Ward, local administrative representative, added that the new offices were relocated to better serve the public, with no stairs to climb and the addition of air conditioning for added convenience.

'Error,' Army Says About Spring Snowshoe Sale

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This old cattleman had an uncanny knack of estimating the size of a herd, and when someone asked him how he did it, he said:

"There's nothing to it. I just count the legs and divide by four."

That's a joke, son, but I'm thinking that the Army might have done well to have used a similar system a few years ago when it was ordering snowshoes for the troops.

Somehow or other, it wound up with 4,090 more snowshoes than it needed, a situation that might have been avoided by counting heads and multiplying by two.

At any rate, on a spring day in 1958 the Quartermaster depot at Jeffersonville, Ind., advertised the 2,045 pairs of surplus snowshoes for sale.

The documents I have available do not make clear just why the Army decided that the month of May was a propitious time for selling snowshoes.

There is no gain saying, however, that few things are more surplus than snowshoes in May.

Anyone who has ever spent time in the Army can visualize for himself how the sale came about. In the mental picture I get, a supply sergeant discovers the extra snowshoes under a pile of mosquito neting.

Anyone who has spent time in the Army also can readily understand how the sale of the snowshoes could wind up in a big snafu.

What happened was that Outlet Stores, Inc., of Denver, Colo., put in a bid to buy the snowshoes at $6.11 per pair. Its offer was the highest submitted for 1,445 pairs.

But when the bids were opened, the Army sold 1,345 pairs to the Outlet Stores Co. of St. Paul, Minn., for $5.68 per pair.

When Outlet of Colorado inquires as to why the Army had accepted the smaller bid of Outlet of Minnesota, it was found that an "administrative error" had been made.

The Army attempted to retrieve the snowshoes, but by that time most of them had already been resold to someone else.

Leonard Joseph, president of the company, said he had made arrangements to sell the snowshoes he bid on for $14.75 a pair. He claimed that the Army had done him out of $12,644.41.

But when the matter was bucked to the U.S. comptroller general, it was ruled that the

Cardinals Fail to Elect Pope on First Four Ballots

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church failed to elect a new Pope today on the first four ballots of their conclave to choose a successor to Pope John XXIII.

Puffs of black smoke issued from the smokestack of the Sistine Chapel at 11:54 a.m. (6:54 a.m. Eastern Standard Time), signifying that no candidate had received the required two-thirds majority, or 54 votes, in the two ballots cast this morning by the 80 princes of the church.

Another two ballots were held this afternoon in the chapel inside the double-locked conclave area. The voting will continue at the rate of four ballots a day until a Pope is chosen.

White smoke will announce the election of a Pope. Substances—reportedly smoke flares provided by the Italian air force — are mixed with the burning ballots to color the smoke.

The first wisps of smoke at noon were thin and almost white. Some of the crowd of 15,000 in St. Peter's square cried excitedly "Bianco" — "White."

Within moments the smoke became thicker and clearly black. The disappointed crowd filtered out of the square.

No Pope has been elected on the first two ballots since the conclave system was started in the 13th century.

It was taken for granted that votes on the first two ballots were scattered among many cardinals. There are 29 Italians and 51 non-Italians in the conclave, and the required majority is 54.

Reports circulated that Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, 65, archbishop of Milan, might be elected early in the voting.

A progressive, Cardinal Montini is believed to have gone into the conclave with 30 to 40 votes. The feeling was widespread that he would pick up the necessary additional votes quickly — or not at all.

Montini conferred Tuesday night with Francis Cardinal Spellman, the New York archbishop, who generally is viewed as a conservative. The Turin newspaper La Stampa hinted that Spellman promised Montini votes in return for a guarantee that as Pope the progressive Montini would name

Vacating Trial Date of Stoudt Is Being Asked

A hearing on a motion for vacation of the trial date of Mary Ellen Stoudt charged with murder, started in District Court this morning with Judge William M. Calvert presiding.

Mrs. Stoudt is scheduled to be tried Tuesday but her attorneys, Leo Rector and Jerry Donley are requesting the trial be held July 9.

The motion is based on the grounds that the people have moved for the endorsement of 10 additional witnesses at a time so close to trial that counsel will not have an opportunity to fully investigate their testimony.

It is also stated that the defendant's lawyers have not been able to obtain the addresses of eight witnesses for the prosecution which are necessary for the defense. Rector and Donley are also requesting an order authorizing them to hire a psychiatrist of the defendant's own choice for an examination on the grounds that "it is essential in the interests of justice to preparation of the defense."

Mrs. Stoudt, 26, of 608 La Salle Ave. is accused of the pistol killing of local tavern owner, Jerry Ives, April 5.

On May 3 she pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. A subsequent examination conducted by Dr. Richard L. Conde "did not find any significant indications of psychiatric illness," and that the defendant was "so far from disabling mental disease, defect or derangement as to be able to distinguish right from wrong and adhere to the right."

According to a police report Mrs. Stoudt is alleged to have murdered Ives because of a paternity suit she had against him. The suit had been heard and dismissed some weeks previous to the time of the killing.

U.S. and Russia Sign Hot Line Agreement

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia signed an agreement today for the establishment of a "hot line" communications link between Washington and Moscow to reduce the risk of war by accident.

The historic accord was signed by U.S. Ambassador Charles Stelle and Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tsarapkin, their nations' chief representatives at the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The arrangement calls for a "hot line" teleprinter link—meaning it will be open and operating 24 hours a day every day of the week—which will permit President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to confer immediately at any time.

Steele and Tsarapkin affixed their signatures to the agreement at the European headquarters of the United Nations, climaxing about two months of secret American-Soviet negotiations.

It was the first concrete accom-

Ft. Carson Denies Report of Nerve Gas Shipments

Ft. Carson officials today denied reports that they have been issued rockets filled with a lethal nerve "gas."

Officials said there apparently was a "mix-up" concerning a Ft. Carson announcement Tuesday that the Army had issued six rocket launchers to the 5th Division (Mechanized) capable of firing the rockets which contain an odorless, tasteless and colorless "mist" that can kill within a minute.

"We do not have the lethal agent. We have not been issued it and we probably won't unless there is an absolute emergency," an official said.

In the official announcement Tuesday, the Army said that the rockets to be launched by the new equipment carry "compressed liquid chemical nerve agents (which) affect the nervous system of their enemy targets."

The M91 Rocket Launchers (BOLT) have been issued to the 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery and the 5th Battalion, 4th Artillery. Each battalion received three of the launchers.

Wednesday, the Denver Post said in a story that the launchers and the rockets have arrived at Ft. Carson. It said that the rockets are filled with nerve gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, northeast of Denver, "and assembled for shipment to storage points."

"We certainly don't have any

Habeas Corpus Petition Filed For Teen-Ager

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Marvin Lee Carver who claims he is being illegally held in the state reformatory, was filed in District Court Wednesday by attorneys Leo Rector and Hayden Kane.

Carver, 18, of Route 1, was sentenced out of County Court by Judge Charles Simon, June 7 of this year for alleged violation of probation by disorderly conduct.

According to the petition no warrant was ever issued or indictment returned, no information filed against the defendant, nor was he ever charged with the commission of the crime and he is not being confined by virtue of any judgment. It is further alleged that Carver is not being held by any order of a competent tribunal or any civil or criminal jurisdiction.

The petition continues saying the defendant's confinement is illegal and in violation of his constitutional rights and that he has committed no criminal offense. It is further alleged Carver received no legal advice, had no opportunity to be granted a jury trial and that "the hearing if any, was a closed door proceeding and not done in open court."

According to a transcript from County Court, Carver was found to be delinquent by Judge Simon and placed on probation Feb. 16 of last year. On May 28, 1962 there was a hearing on probation violation and Simon ordered probation be continued.

Jan. 9 of this year the judge committed Carver to the reformatory after a hearing on a runaway and malicious mischief charge, but suspended the sentence. On June 7 he was committed to the reformatory for violation of probation by disorderly conduct.

District Judge David W. Enoch has set June 27 for a hearing on the habeas corpus writ.

Time Station Is Damaged By Lightning

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A bolt of lightning has put the National Bureau of Standards standard time and frequency radio station here off the air for at least three weeks, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said Wednesday that lightning struck the transmitting antenna of the 60-kilocycle WWVB Tuesday and burned out a helix coil, setting fire to a small building that housed the coil.

The spokesman said the station was widely used by industry, laboratories, and government agencies in the calibration of frequency and time measuring equipment.

He said that since a new permanent station, located near Fort Collins, will be on the air within a month, no repairs will be made at the experimental station.

Dr. Yardley Beers, chief of the radio physics division at the bureau said the Fort Collins station will start operating July 5. Another low frequency station, WWVL, on 20 kilocycles, is also nearing completion on the Fort Collins site, he said.

Attempted Rape Suspect Sought In Springs Area

Police are searching for a man who attempted to rape a 19 year old girl Wednesday night as she was walking home from a movie, according to a police report. The man threw the girl to the pavement and tried to overpower her in the 800 block of North Weber Street, at about 11:45 last night, police said.

The girl told officers that she was walking north on Weber when the man, who was walking south, grabbed her and threw her to the ground, trying to kiss her and lifting her dress. They struggled for about two minutes and she was screaming all the time but nobody came to her assistance, she said.

Police reported that the girl's lips were bruised and the inside of her mouth cut from the man's repeated attempts to kiss her during the scuffle.

The man finally jumped up and ran away after hitting the girl on the head with his fist. He went north on Weber and then west on

Nine-Year-Old Lost on Incline; Found by Officers

A nine-year old girl who became separated from her sister was lost for almost four hours Wednesday on Mt. Manitou, the sheriff's department reported.

Shanta Driver, the daughter of Edwin D. Driver of Amherst, Mass., a summer student at Colorado College, had gone up to the top of the incline with her sister, Sherna, aged 13. They became separated and Sherna returned about 4:15 p.m. saying her sister was lost.

Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan went to the scene and started up the incline with Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry while members of the sheriff's posse searched elsewhere. The child was finally found at 6:25 p.m. by Lawrence Walton, 11, of Manitou Springs who had joined the search with his father.

Sheriff Sullivan commented gratefully on the valuable assistance his office received from volunteer searchers from Manitou, and the Manitou Fire Department and Manitou Police.

Rear Adm. Ahroon, NORAD Naval Chief, to Retire

Rear Adm. Thomas A. Ahroon will retire June 30 as commander of Naval Forces, Continental Air Defense Command, NORAD.

He will be relieved of his duties at a colorful change of command ceremony by Rear Adm. James Haile Mini at 3 p.m. June 28 at Peterson Field.

Adm. Ahroon has held the top naval post here since April of 1960. He joined the staff at NORAD in March of 1960 as assistant deputy chief of staff for operations.

A former chief of staff with the 6th Fleet Adm. Ahroon wears the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star, with combat V; the Pacific ribbon with nine campaign stars and the Liberation of the Philippines Medal.

The admiral plans to devote a great deal of his retirement to two of his favorite pastimes — fishing and horseback riding.

A native of Baltimore, Md., he entered the Naval Academy in 1924 and since then has served continuously in the Navy. His career includes just about everything from flight test pilot to the development of nuclear weapons to commanding the first large anti-submarine aircraft carrier.

Prior to assuming his post at NORAD, Adm. Ahroon was commander of Carrier Division 17 which consisted of the USS Philippine Sea and the USS Yorktown, normally deployed in the Far East in the 7th Fleet.

Russian Combat Troops Thinned Out in Cuba

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials said today that Cuban armed forces appear to have begun replacing Soviet combat troops in encampments in Cuba.

The Russians have been building new low-level anti-aircraft installations in Cuba to supplement SA2 surface-to-air missiles which they began placing in Cuba last August and which are still there.

The Soviet units also have been relocating some of the 24 SA2 installations on the island, apparently for better protection of key areas.

These facts, gleaned from U.S. sources, provide new bits in the total picture of Soviet military strength in Cuba which, though "thinned out," is still an integral part of a formidable military capability there.

The relatively recent movement of Cuban military personnel into Russian encampments is part of the evidence that led the State Department Wednesday to an-

'Space Girl' Propaganda Launched by Soviet Union

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—A curly-haired blonde with cornflower blue eyes was hailed today as the world's longest distance woman flier—though she never has flown a plane.

The Soviet press and radio hailed the feat of the world's first space girl as a revolution in "the role of the weaker sex in modern society."

"Now the name of a woman will stand for centuries among the glorious names of the first discoverers," Tass, the Soviet news agency, declared.

Valentina circled the globe hours before the braking rockets were cut loose on a signal from the ground. She returned to earth in Kazakhstan, about 385 miles northeast of the coal mining center of Karanganda.

Tass pointed out that the four American astronauts who have orbited the globe "together spent nearly 50 per cent less time in space than the 'Seagull' "—the code name used by Valentina.

Bykovsky, overshadowed by the first space woman landed nearly three hours after she did in the Kustanai region of Kazakhstan about [illegible] miles southeast of Moscow and 600 miles west of the woman cosmonaut's touchdown.

Bykovsky set a new orbital record, circling the globe more than 81 times in 119 hours and covering more than 2 million miles.

He shattered the record of 64 orbits set last August in a four-day flight of Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, who made history's first dual space flight with Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich.

It was clear that Valentina's work was confined to routine reporting of mechanisms in her space ship and that she had manipulated none of the vital controls.

All the other Soviet cosmonauts, like the Americans, are trained pilots. Valentina is an experienced parachutist, with more than 170 jumps to her credit. But she has no pilot training.

"I only got a bruise on the nose," Valentina told Premier Khrushchev, who telephoned her from Moscow soon after she landed. She didn't explain how she got the bruise and said, "It will pass."

Khrushchev also telephoned his congratulations to Bykovsky, who said he landed without a scratch.

Although earlier Soviet reports indicated both cosmonauts landed inside their space capsules, a correspondent for the labor newspaper Trud reported today that she parachuted from the space ship after it re-entered the earth atmosphere.

Siamese Twin Girls Are Separated by Surgeons

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Surgeons have separated 14-day-old Siamese twin girls in an operation that is rarely successful. The infants were doing fairly well today.

"They are doing as well as we can expect," he added. "They are breathing comfortable, and their color is good. However, we need three to five days before we can guess whether they're out of danger.

"We are somewhat encouraged that their initial response has been favorable."

The girls, Rose Mary and Ruth Ann, were born June 7 to Mrs. John Temoshenko, 32, of nearby Tarentum.

The beaming mother said after the operation:

The twins shared one organ—their liver — before the surgery. Kiesewetter said the liver was large enough to divide in half. The girls were joined from the fourth rib to below the navel.

Temoshenko and his wife, Therese, have a thre-year-old daughter and twin boys, James and John, 27 months.

Religious Words In U.S. Pledge Blasted by Group

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Civil Liberties union has filed suit in Superior Court declaring inclusion of the words "under God" in the United States pledge of allegiance is unconstitutional.

The suit followed a U.S. Supreme Court decision this week which held that reading of the Lord's Prayer or passages from the Bible in public schools was unconstitutional.

The ACLU contends the words "under God" violate the first and 14th Amendments of the Constitution.

The suit was filed by ACLU attorney A. L. Wirin in behalf of Haswell Parker, 51, a Los Angeles high school history teacher.

Parker said he did not belong to any church and objected to being required to take part in a pledge which includes the phrase "under God."

The phrase was added to the pledge of allegiance in 1954. In 1959, the Los Angeles Board of Education made a daily pledge of allegiance mandatory in schools under its jurisdiction.

'Error,' Army Says About Spring Snowshoe Sale

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—This old cattleman had an uncanny knack of estimating the size of a herd, and when someone asked him how he did it, he said:

That's a joke, son, but I'm thinking that the Army might have done well to have used a similar system a few years ago when it was ordering snowshoes for the troops.

Somehow or other, it wound up with 4,090 more snowshoes than it needed, a situation that might have been avoided by counting heads and multiplying by two.

At any rate, on a spring day in 1958 the Quartermaster depot at Jeffersonville, Ind., advertised the 2,045 pairs of surplus snowshoes for sale.

The documents I have available do not make clear just why the Army decided that the month of May was a propitious time for selling snowshoes.

There is no gain saying, however, that few things are more surplus than snowshoes in May.

Anyone who has ever spent time in the Army can visualize for himself how the sale came about. In the mental picture I get, a supply sergeant discovers the extra snowshoes under a pile of mosquito neting.

Anyone who has spent time in the Army also can readily understand how the sale of the snowshoes could wind up in a big snafu.

What happened was that Outlet Stores, Inc., of Denver, Colo., put in a bid to buy the snowshoes at $6.11 per pair. Its offer was the highest submitted for 1,445 pairs.

But when the bids were opened, the Army sold 1,345 pairs to the Outlet Stores Co. of St. Paul, Minn., for $5.68 per pair.

When Outlet of Colorado inquires as to why the Army had accepted the smaller bid of Outlet of Minnesota, it was found that an "administrative error" had been made.

The Army attempted to retrieve the snowshoes, but by that time most of them had already been resold to someone else.

Leonard Joseph, president of the company, said he had made arrangements to sell the snowshoes he bid on for $14.75 a pair. He claimed that the Army had done him out of $12,644.41.

But when the matter was bucked to the U.S. comptroller general, it was ruled that the

Tiros Weather Satellite Circles Globe

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two Tiros weather satellites circled the globe today, their camera eyes on the alert for hurricanes and typhoons.

Tiros 7 rocketed into orbit Wednesday to join Tiros 6, which has been on weather patrol since last September. Together, the twin satellites were expected to provide the most comprehensive photographic coverage yet of a full hurricane season.

While waiting for the first tropical storms of the year to develop, the two space weather stations are busy photographing cloud cover over many areas of the globe. Tiros 7 began relaying excellent quality pictures on its first orbit Wednesday.

Significant photos are transmitted quickly to interested weather agencies around the world.

Internal Revenue Offices Move To New Location

After being in the local Post Office Building since 1917, the Internal Revenue Service is moving Friday to 521 S. Tejon St. (directly across from the State Department of Revenue).

The move is to begin at 8 a.m. and will be completed the same day. It is to be "Business as Usual" beginning Monday.

The new quarters have a street entrance, and two added conference rooms to better serve the public. The forms rack will be located inside the new offices in the lobby next to the service counter. The telephone number will remain the same — 636-5171.

Roger E. Ward, local administrative representative, added that the new offices were relocated to better serve the public, with no stairs to climb and the addition of air conditioning for added convenience.

Cardinals Fail to Elect Pope on First Four Ballots

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church failed to elect a new Pope today on the first four ballots of their conclave to choose a successor to Pope John XXIII.

Puffs of black smoke issued from the smokestack of the Sistine Chapel at 11:54 a.m. (6:54 a.m. Eastern Standard Time), signifying that no candidate had received the required two-thirds majority, or 54 votes, in the two ballots cast this morning by the 80 princes of the church.

Another two ballots were held this afternoon in the chapel inside the double-locked conclave area. The voting will continue at the rate of four ballots a day until a Pope is chosen.

White smoke will announce the election of a Pope. Substances—reportedly smoke flares provided by the Italian air force — are mixed with the burning ballots to color the smoke.

The first wisps of smoke at noon were thin and almost white. Some of the crowd of 15,000 in St. Peter's square cried excitedly "Bianco!" — "White!"

Within moments the smoke became thicker and clearly black. The disappointed crowd filtered out of the square.

No Pope has been elected on the first two ballots since the conclave system was started in the 13th century.

It was taken for granted that votes on the first two ballots were scattered among many cardinals. There are 29 Italians and 51 non-Italians in the conclave, and the required majority is 54.

Reports circulated that Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, 65, archbishop of Milan, might be elected early in the voting.

A progressive, Cardinal Montini is believed to have gone into the conclave with 30 to 40 votes. The feeling was widespread that he would pick up the necessary additional votes quickly — or not at all.

Montini conferred Tuesday night with Francis Cardinal Spellman, the New York archbishop, who generally is viewed as a conservative. The Turin newspaper La Stampa hinted that Spellman promised Montini votes in return for a guarantee that as Pope the progressive Montini would name

Vacating Trial Date of Stoudt Is Being Asked

A hearing on a motion for vacation of the trial date of Mary Ellen Stoudt charged with murder, started in District Court this morning with Judge William M. Calvert presiding.

Mrs. Stoudt is scheduled to be tried Tuesday but her attorneys, Leo Rector and Jerry Donley are requesting the trial be held July 9.

The motion is based on the grounds that the people have moved for the endorsement of 10 additional witnesses at a time so close to trial that counsel will not have an opportunity to fully investigate their testimony.

It is also stated that the defendant's lawyers have not been able to obtain the addresses of eight witnesses for the prosecution which are necessary for the defense. Rector and Donley are also requesting an order authorizing them to hire a psychiatrist of the defendant's own choice for an examination on the grounds that "it is essential in the interests of justice to preparation of the defense."

Mrs. Stoudt, 26, of 608 La Salle Ave. is accused of the pistol killing of local tavern owner, Jerry Ives, April 5.

On May 3 she pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. A subsequent examination conducted by Dr. Richard L. Conde "did not find any significant indications of psychiatric illness," and that the defendant was "so far from disabling mental disease, defect or derangement as to be able to distinguish right from wrong and adhere to the right."

According to a police report Mrs. Stoudt is alleged to have murdered Ives because of a paternity suit she had against him. The suit had been heard and dismissed some weeks previous to the time of the killing.

U.S. and Russia Sign Hot Line Agreement

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia signed an agreement today for the establishment of a "hot line" communications link between Washington and Moscow to reduce the risk of war by accident.

The historic accord was signed by U.S. Ambassador Charles Stelle and Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tsarapkin, their nations' chief representatives at the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The arrangement calls for a "hot line" teleprinter link—meaning it will be open and operating 24 hours a day every day of the week—which will permit President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to confer immediately at any time.

Steele and Tsarapkin affixed their signatures to the agreement at the European headquarters of the United Nations, climaxing about two months of secret American-Soviet negotiations.

It was the first concrete accom-

Ft. Carson Denies Report of Nerve Gas Shipments

Ft. Carson officials today denied reports that they have been issued rockets filled with a lethal nerve "gas."

Officials said there apparently was a "mix-up" concerning a Ft. Carson announcement Tuesday that the Army had issued six rocket launchers to the 5th Division (Mechanized) capable of firing the rockets which contain an odorless, tasteless and colorless "mist" that can kill within a minute.

"We do not have the lethal agent. We have not been issued it and we probably won't unless there is an absolute emergency," an official said.

In the official announcement Tuesday, the Army said that the rockets to be launched by the new equipment carry "compressed liquid chemical nerve agents (which) affect the nervous system of their enemy targets."

The M91 Rocket Launchers (BOLT) have been issued to the 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery and the 5th Battalion, 4th Artillery. Each battalion received three of the launchers.

Wednesday, the Denver Post said in a story that the launchers and the rockets have arrived at Ft. Carson. It said that the rockets are filled with nerve gas at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, northeast of Denver, "and assembled for shipment to storage points."

"We certainly don't have any

Habeas Corpus Petition Filed For Teen-Ager

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Marvin Lee Carver who claims he is being illegally held in the state reformatory, was filed in District Court Wednesday by attorneys Leo Rector and Hayden Kane.

Carver, 18, of Route 1, was sentenced out of County Court by Judge Charles Simon, June 7 of this year for alleged violation of probation by disorderly conduct.

According to the petition no warrant was ever issued or indictment returned, no information filed against the defendant, nor was he ever charged with the commission of the crime and he is not being confined by virtue of any judgment. It is further alleged that Carver is not being held by any order of a competent tribunal or any civil or criminal jurisdiction.

The petition continues saying the defendant's confinement is illegal and in violation of his constitutional rights and that he has committed no criminal offense. It is further alleged Carver received no legal advice, had no opportunity to be granted a jury trial and that "the hearing if any, was a closed door proceeding and not done in open court."

According to a transcript from County Court, Carver was found to be delinquent by Judge Simon and placed on probation Feb. 16 of last year. On May 28, 1962 there was a hearing on probation violation and Simon ordered probation be continued.

Jan. 9 of this year the judge committed Carver to the reformatory after a hearing on a runaway and malicious mischief charge, but suspended the sentence. On June 7 he was committed to the reformatory for violation of probation by disorderly conduct.

District Judge David W. Enoch has set June 27 for a hearing on the habeas corpus writ.

Time Station Is Damaged By Lightning

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A bolt of lightning has put the National Bureau of Standards standard time and frequency radio station here off the air for at least three weeks, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said Wednesday that lightning struck the transmitting antenna of the 60-kilocycle WWVB Tuesday and burned out a helix coil, setting fire to a small building that housed the coil.

The spokesman said the station was widely used by industry, laboratories, and government agencies in the calibration of frequency and time measuring equipment.

He said that since a new permanent station, located near Fort Collins, will be on the air within a month, no repairs will be made at the experimental station.

Dr. Yardley Beers, chief of the radio physics division at the bureau said the Fort Collins station will start operating July 5. Another low frequency station, WWVL, on 20 kilocycles, is also nearing completion on the Fort Collins site, he said.

Attempted Rape Suspect Sought In Springs Area

Police are searching for a man who attempted to rape a 19 year old girl Wednesday night as she was walking home from a movie, according to a police report. The man threw the girl to the pavement and tried to overpower her in the 800 block of North Weber Street, at about 11:45 last night, police said.

The girl told officers that she was walking north on Weber when the man, who was walking south, grabbed her and threw her to the ground, trying to kiss her and lifting her dress. They struggled for about two minutes and she was screaming all the time but nobody came to her assistance, she said.

Police reported that the girl's lips were bruised and the inside of her mouth cut from the man's repeated attempts to kiss her during the scuffle.

The man finally jumped up and ran away after hitting the girl on the head with his fist. He went north on Weber and then west on

Nine-Year-Old Lost on Incline; Found by Officers

A nine-year old girl who became separated from her sister was lost for almost four hours Wednesday on Mt. Manitou, the sheriff's department reported.

Shanta Driver, the daughter of Edwin D. Driver of Amherst, Mass., a summer student at Colorado College, had gone up to the top of the incline with her sister, Sherna, aged 13. They became separated and Sherna returned about 4:15 p.m. saying her sister was lost.

Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan went to the scene and started up the incline with Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry while members of the sheriff's posse searched elsewhere. The child was finally found at 6:25 p.m. by Lawrence Walton, 11, of Manitou Springs who had joined the search with his father.

Sheriff Sullivan commented gratefully on the valuable assistance his office received from volunteer searchers from Manitou, and the Manitou Fire Department and Manitou Police.

Rear Adm. Ahroon, NORAD Naval Chief, to Retire

Rear Adm. Thomas A. Ahroon will retire June 30 as commander of Naval Forces, Continental Air Defense Command, NORAD.

He will be relieved of his duties at a colorful change of command ceremony by Rear Adm. James Haile Mini at 3 p.m. June 28 at Peterson Field.

Adm. Ahroon has held the top naval post here since April of 1960. He joined the staff at NORAD in March of 1960 as assistant deputy chief of staff for operations.

Russian Combat Troops Thinned Out in Cuba

By DONALD MAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. officials said today that Cuban armed forces appear to have begun replacing Soviet combat troops in encampments in Cuba.

The Russians have been building new low-level anti-aircraft installations in Cuba to supplement SA2 surface-to-air missiles which they began placing in Cuba last August and which are still there.

The Soviet units also have been relocating some of the 24 SA2 installations on the island, apparently for better protection of key areas.

These facts, gleaned from U.S. sources, provide new bits in the total picture of Soviet military strength in Cuba which, though "thinned out," is still an integral part of a formidable military capability there.

The relatively recent movement of Cuban military personnel into Russian encampments is part of the evidence that led the State Department Wednesday to an-

'Space Girl' Propaganda Launched by Soviet Union

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—A curly-haired blonde with cornflower blue eyes was hailed today as the world's longest distance woman flier—though she never has flown a plane.

The Soviet press and radio hailed the feat of the world's first space girl as a revolution in "the role of the weaker sex in modern society."

"Now the name of a woman will stand for centuries among the glorious names of the first discoverers," Tass, the Soviet news agency, declared.

Valentina circled the globe hours before the braking rockets were cut loose on a signal from the ground. She returned to earth in Kazakhstan, about 385 miles northeast of the coal mining center of Karanganda.

Tass pointed out that the four American astronauts who have orbited the globe "together spent nearly 50 per cent less time in space than the 'Seagull' "—the code name used by Valentina.

Bykovsky, overshadowed by the first space woman landed nearly three hours after she did in the Kustanai region of Kazakhstan, about 1,000 miles southeast of Moscow and 600 miles west of the woman cosmonaut's touchdown.

Bykovsky set a new orbital record, circling the globe more than 81 times in 119 hours and covering more than 2 million miles.

He shattered the record of 64 orbits set last August in a four-day flight of Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, who made history's first dual space flight with Lt. Col Pavel Popovich.

It was clear that Valentina's work was confined to routine reporting of mechanisms in her space ship and that she had manipulated none of the vital controls.

All the other Soviet cosmonauts, like the Americans, ar trained pilots. Valentina is an experienced parachutist, with mor than 170 jumps to her credit. Bu she has no pilot training.

"I only got a bruise on th nose," Valentina told Premie Khrushchev, who telephoned he from Moscow soon after sh landed. She didn't explain how she got the bruise and said, "I will pass."

Khrushchev also telephoned hi congratulations to Bykovsky, wh said he landed without a scratch.

Although earlier Soviet repor indicated both cosmonauts lande inside their space capsules, correspondent for the labor new paper Trud reported today tha she parachuted from the spac ship after it re-entered the earth atmosphere.

Betty White Suddenly Is Mrs. Ludden

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Now that Betty White is Mrs. Allen Ludden she is still Betty White. If that sounds paradoxical, let Betty explain.

"I feel," she says, "as though I'll always be Betty White. I'm proud of my new name, but I'm not really Mrs. Ludden. There once was a wonderful woman with that name."

Ludden was a widower when he met Mrss White, when they both appeared in "Critic's Choice" in summer stock last year. The romance blossomed, with Ludden's children leading the cheering section. Martha, 13, and Sara, 10, immediately became Betty's good friends and still are. David, 15, helped the cause along, too.

The three call her Betty, and that's the way she wants it. All five are happy about the way things are working out.

Betty and Allen only have one bone of contention, and that's more of a gag than anything else. They feud, kiddingly, about the relative merits of the two coasts. Allen is a confirmed easterner, with Betty just as dedicated to California.

They will, of course, live in the East, because that's where Allen does Password. Betty will probably find plenty of panel shows and other work to occupy herself here.

"My agent," she says, "is happier about this marriage than anybody. He's been wanting me to move here for years."

Gertrude Berg, now dispensing her particular brand of homey humor in "Dear Me, the Sky Is Falling" on Broadway, has six grandchildren. But she's still concerned over what kind of a mother she is.

"It's hard being a mother and an actress, too," she says, "because anybody in show business is egotistical. You have to fight it all the time. I remember when my daughter was 14 or 15, I had to warn Fanny — that's my secretary — not to repeat compliments about me in front of her.

" 'I like compliments as well as anybody,' I told her, 'but in the future remember to tell me them in private. When she's around, she's the only one to get compliments.' "

Mrs. Berg says she was constantly fighting against people who would tell her daughter, "you'll never be like your mother." Both her children, she says, "turned out fine," a tribute to her watchful caution.

Mrs. Berg's present plans call for her to stay with her delightful comedy for perhaps three years — on Broadway, then a national tour and she even wants to play it in London. After that, she wants to do a muscial comedy, and is gradually writing one with Leonard Spigelglass, who wrote, "Dear Me, the Sky Is Falling."

The Beverly Hillbillies' Donna Douglas blew into town, and proved to be about as hillbillyish as Bernard Baruch. The barefoot beauty of the CBS show spices her conversation with bits of philosophy,' such as:

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you; what is genius but simplicity?; give freedom, get freedom; simpicity is important; what is life?

She feels, as an example of how she applies these truths, that the exteriors of people she meets are not as important as "basic understanding."

"You can meet somebody and think they're nice and find out it is only physical attraction," she says. "Then you get squashed."

Her absorption with simplicity seems almost to be a fetish. She carries it into her personal life, too. She says she still lives in the same apartment and drives the same car she did before the Beverly Hillbillies brought her fame, fortune and filosophy.

"I'll have to get a new car soon," she says. "Not because I want to show off, but because the old one is falling apart. Pride goeth before a fall."

Betty White Suddenly Is Mrs. Ludden

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Now, that Betty White is Mrs. Allen Ludden she is still Betty White. If that sounds paradoxical, let Betty explain.

"I feel," she says, "as though I'll always be Betty White. I'm proud of my new name, but I'm not really Mrs. Ludden. There once was a wonderful woman with that name."

Ludden was a widower when he met Mrss White, when they both appeared in "Critic's Choice" in summer stock last year. The romance blossomed, with Ludden's children leading the cheering section. Martha, 13, and Sara, 10, immediately became Betty's good friends and still are. David, 15, helped the cause along, too.

The three call her Betty, and that's the way she wants it. All five are happy about the way things are working out.

Betty and Allen only have one bone of contention, and that's more of a gag than anything else. They feud, kiddingly, about the relative merits of the two coasts. Allen is a confirmed easterner, with Betty just as dedicated to California.

They will, of course, live in the East, because that's where Allen does Password. Betty will probably find plenty of panel shows and other work to occupy herself here.

"My agent," she says, "is happier about this marriage than anybody. He's been wanting me to move here for years."

Gertrude Berg, now dispensing her particular brand of homey humor in "Dear Me, the Sky Is Falling" on Broadway, has six grandchildren. But she's still concerned over what kind of a mother she is.

"It's hard being a mother and an actress, too," she says, "because anybody in show business is egotistical. You have to fight it all the time. I remember when my daughter was 14 or 15, I had to warn Fanny — that's my secretary — not to repeat compliments about me in front of her.

Black Muslims Not in Favor of Passive Steps

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press International

Almost like a litany are the cries that pop from the audience at a Black Muslim public mass meeting when the speaker gets going against the devil — "the white man who kidnaped you and brought you here."

The chorus goes "Yeah!" and "That's right!" and "Yes!" and "Tell it to them!" And "You're right!" at every oratorical pause. The audience, the hard core of it, sounds as impassioned as the speaker. But always self-controlled and orderly.

"You're fed up with the whites!" (Right!) "The white man's got those Negro preachers walking around telling you to forgive." (Yeah!) "The white man tells you don't get emotional, don't be bitter at the man who kidnaped you." (Tell 'em!)

"He's got these Negro leaders saying: Don't struggle, don't holler, don't defend yourself. Am I right or wrong?" (Right!)

On a steamy summer night, a reporter stood listening to the polished but rasping Malcolm X, the clean-cut and articulate No. 2 man in the movement, speak to some 2,000 or 3,000 Negroes on a Harlem block in New York.

Malcolm X tells his audience: "The honorable Elijah Muhammad says to black men: Clean up, stand up, and look up!

"Don't let the white man look for you, speak for you, and don't let the white man fight for you." (Right!) "Anybody who opposes freedom is a devil."

He says Elijah Muhammad's mission is: "To turn you away from evil and back in the direction of God."

Of Christianity he may say: "Jesus was born 9,000 miles from here, and you can call on Him as much as you want to and the white man will still put his rope around your neck."

One observer of the Black Muslim movement says: "They have an influence on Negro thinking now. If we had the least bit of a change toward depression, they could be very much of a force. They could be a political force, if they should ever say 'vote for . . .' They've got valid protests. And the 'white devil'—all the sympathizers have felt this."

Prof. C. Eric Lincoln in his study of the movement says its demand for a separate Negro state commands little or no attention among non - Muslim Negroes: "But the lashing indictment of the white man that supports the demand strikes a responsive, if reluctant, chord in many Negro hearts."

Belly Is Vital Essence in Japanese Speech

TOKYO (AP) — When a Japanese gentleman tells you "The bugs in my belly are restless" he means "I'm not fully satisfied."

If he says "My abdomen will decide" he means "I'll make up my mind."

Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda told a news conference recently "Let us hold our stomach firmer." He meant "Let us not get excited."

The reason is that in Japan the most vital part of the anatomy is the stomach, abdomen or belly — known simply as "hara." It is the essence of the human body, like the heart or head in Western countries.

As a result the Japanese take special care of the stomach, fully protecting it from the elements of nature.

Many Japanese wear a belly band or stomach wrap-around — usually of cotton in the summer and of wool in the winter. The stomach band also serves as a secret wallet space for men and a sort of girdle or corset for women.

The "hara" takes on an abstract meaning because the Japanese attach ritualistic importance to the mid-riff. It can also mean mind, courage, power, efficiency, conscience, intention, and other spiritual functions.

Thus a "man of stomach" — a very common Japanese expression — doesn't indicate a man possessing an extraordinary belly but means a man of will-power, courage or strength. "Big stomach" mens broadminded or full of understanding.

A "black stomach" means a dishonest man or someone who cannot be trusted; a "clean abdomen" — an honest man or a person with a clear conscience; "the stomach is made" — a person with definite ideas or principles; and "without stomach"— a person with no courage or will or literally a man without any guts.

"To laugh in one's stomach" means to snicker, "search one's belly" — to sound a person out, and "open your stomach and talk" — to speak frankly.

Although the Japanese have yet to explain what started "hara kiri" — honorable death by disembowelment — it is possible traditional custom came naturally since the abdomen for a Samurai warrior was the most vital target in which one plunged his sword when atoning a mistake.

Half Million Yanks Will Descend on French Capital

By HAROLD SHEEHAN

PARIS (NEA)—This year about half a million Americans will descend on France, statistically the No. 1 tourist stop in Europe.

Many (one quarter) will rent automobiles. Advice to these motorized wayfarers while in Paris: make sure your wrist watch is working.

Paris traffic officials have concocted a brilliant system for controlling on - street parking while moving in traffic. It works like this:

He must display a windshield card showing time of arrival and required departure time.

At the end of the period he must move the auto to a new spot and change the indicated time on the adjustable card.

Thus, each hour or so, thousands of cars are jockeyed into the madcap swirl of Paris traffic in search of a new roost.

However, a 15 per cent increase in European travel bookings over 1962 suggests that the growing European traffic problem is not deterring many Americans from making the Big Trip.

Tourist authorities expect that nearly 800,000 U.S. visitors will land in Europe before the end of the year.

Sabena Airlines' bookings are up 10 - to - 15 per cent over 1962. Pan AM., which has a European-bound jet taking off on an average of every hour and a half this summer, says that ticket sales are running 20 per cent ahead of last year.

The plush Ritz Hotel in Paris is booked solidly — with the exception of warm August — through autumn.

Americans are finding that hotel rates throughout Europe are generally higher this year. And to meet the increased influx, new accommodations are sprouting all over the continent.

The American Knott hotel chain recently swung open the doors on its 24 - story Westbury Hotel in Brussels, the Common Market capital. Hilton, too, is opening hotels in London, Rome and Athens. (In London, its rooms with double beds are called "French Rooms"; with singles, "English."

The International Hotel Corp. will have six new buildings: Limerick, Dublin, Cork, Ireland and in Vienna, Geneva and Frankfurt-the last, 500 rooms large.

The happy result — for Europeans — of this mass migration is, of course, money — good old greenbacks into the foreign national coffers. Last year, fun - loving Americans dropped some $1,031,000,000 out of the country — 655 million of which went to southern Europe and the Mediterranean lands.

The obvious balance - of - payments complications may send U.S. Treasury experts racing for the aspirin. But there is no indication that tourists are disciplining themselves to pass up all that low-cost perfume and liquor which beckon in dutyfree shops of European airports.

The lion's share of the wind - fall goes to the British lion. Next comes France, then Italy.

Of Christianity he may say: "Jesus was born 9,000 miles from here, and you can call on Him as much as you want to and the white man will still put his rope around your neck."

One observer of the Black Muslim movement says: "They have an influence on Negro thinking now. If we had the least bit of a change toward depression, they could be very much of a force. They could be a political force, if they should ever say 'vote for . . .' They've got valid protests. And the 'white devil'—all the sympathizers have felt this."

Prof. C. Eric Lincoln in his study of the movement says its demand for a separate Negro state commands little or no attention among non - Muslim Negroes: "But the lashing indictment of the white man that supports the demand strikes a responsive, if reluctant, chord in many Negro hearts."

Belly Is Vital Essence in Japanese Speech

TOKYO (AP) — When a Japanese gentleman tells you "The bugs in my belly are restless" he means "I'm not fully satisfied."

If he says "My abdomen will decide" he means "I'll make up my mind."

Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda told a news conference recently "Let us hold our stomach firmer." He meant "Let us not get excited."

The reason is that in Japan the most vital part of the anatomy is the stomach, abdomen or belly — known simply as "hara." It is the essence of the human body, like the heart or head in Western countries.

As a result the Japanese take special care of the stomach, fully protecting it from the elements of nature.

Many Japanese wear a belly band or stomach wrap-around — usually of cotton in the summer and of wool in the winter. The stomach band also serves as a secret wallet space for men and a sort of girdle or corset for women.

The "hara" takes on an abstract meaning because the Japanese attach ritualistic importance to the mid-riff. It can also mean mind, courage, power, efficiency, conscience, intention, and other spiritual functions.

Thus a "man of stomach" — a very common Japanese expression — doesn't indicate a man possessing an extraordinary belly but means a man of will-power, courage or strength. "Big stomach" mens broadminded or full of understanding.

A "black stomach" means a dishonest man or someone who cannot be trusted; a "clean abdomen" — an honest man or a person with a clear conscience; "the stomach is made" — a person with definite ideas or principles; and "without stomach"— a person with no courage or will or literally a man without any guts.

"To laugh in one's stomach" means to snicker; "search one's belly" — to sound a person out; and "open your stomach and talk" — to speak frankly.

Although the Japanese have yet to explain what started "hara-kiri" — honorable death by disembowelment — it is possible traditional custom came naturally since the abdomen for a Samarai warrior was the most vital target in which one plunged his sword when atoning a mistake.

Half Million Yanks Will Descend on French Capital

By HAROLD SHEEHAN

PARIS (NEA)—This year about half a million Americans will descend on France, statistically the No. 1 tourist stop in Europe.

Many (one quarter) will rent automobiles. Advice to these motorized wayfarers while in Paris: make sure your wrist watch is working.

Paris traffic officials have concocted a brilliant system for controlling on - street parking while moving in traffic. It works like this:

He must display a windshield card showing time of arrival and required departure time.

At the end of the period he must move the auto to a new spot and change the indicated time on the adjustable card.

Thus, each hour or so, thousands of cars are jockeyed into the madcap swirl of Paris traffic in search of a new roost.

However, a 15 per cent increase in European travel bookings over 1962 suggests that the growing European traffic problem is not deterring many Americans from making the Big Trip.

Tourist authorities expect that nearly 800,000 U.S. visitors will land in Europe before the end of the year.

Sabena Airlines' bookings are up 10 - to - 15 per cent over 1962. Pan AM., which has a European-bound jet taking off on an average of every hour and a half this summer, says that ticket sales are running 20 per cent ahead of last year.

The plush Ritz Hotel in Paris is booked solidly — with the exception of warm August — through autumn.

Americans are finding that hotel rates throughout Europe are generally higher this year. And to meet the increased influx, new accommodations are sprouting all over the continent.

The American Knott hotel chain recently swung open the doors on its 24 - story Westbury Hotel in Brussels, the Common Market capital. Hilton, too, is opening hotels in London, Rome and Athens. (In London, its rooms with double beds are called "French Rooms"; with singles, "English."

The International Hotel Corp. will have six new buildings; Limerick, Dublin, Cork, Ireland and in Vienna, Geneva and Frankfurt-the last, 500 rooms large.

The happy result — for Europeans — of this mass migration is, of course, money — good old greenbacks into the foreign national coffers. Last year, fun - loving Americans dropped some $1,031,000,000 out of the country — 655 million of which went to southern Europe and the Mediterranean lands.

The obvious balance - of - payments complications may send U.S. Treasury experts racing for the aspirin. But there is no indication that tourists are disciplining themselves to pass up all that low-cost perfume and liquor which beckon in dutyfree shops of European airports.

The lion's share of the wind - fall goes to the British lion. Next comes France, then Italy.

Republicans Praise Allott's Exile Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A proposal that the United States allow Cuban exiles to set up a government at Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba received praises from eight Republican senators Tuesday.

The proposal, forwarded in a Senate speech Monday by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., was hailed as an "historic and courageous speech" by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Others joning Goldwater in praise for the idea were Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., Peter Dominick, R-Colo., James B. Pearson, R-Kan., Jack Miller, R-Iowa, Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, Karl Mundt, R-S.D., and Thruston Morton, R-Ky.

Sen. Frank Church, a Democrat member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he respected the good intentions of Allott, but added: "From what I know of the feeling and attitude of the Cuban people, there has long been considerable resentment in Cuba itself over (U.S. control of) Guantanamo, whether it is well or ill founded."

Boy Claims Girl Was Killed Accidentally

FORT COLLINS (UPI)—A 15-year-old boy testified here Tuesday he pointed his rifle at an unwanted rabbit-hunting companion because she wouldn't "shut up."

Robert Dell Patton, who has pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter charges in the killing of Sue Allen, 17, last Feb. 2, Tuesday applied for probation.

"I did not deliberately pull the trigger," he said. "I felt that I was taking the gun from my shoulder or stepping back when it fired."

Patton said the girl, a fellow member of the Emissaries of Divine Light, persisted in following him when he was hunting. He said he asked her to be quiet and she replied "that I couldn't make her be quiet."

The said he pointed the gun at her "to show her I could make her shut up."

Parachute Jumpers To Compete in Aspen

ASPEN (AP) — About 30 parachute jumpers, who also call themselves sky divers, will compete in contests at Aspen Saturday and Sunday.

Officials of the Aspen Sky Divers, sponsoring the events, said today no previous contests in this country have been held at a higher altitude. Aspen is about 8,000 feet above sea level.

The jumpers will be judged on accuracy and form. Team events Sunday will include baton-passing maneuvers by divers falling through space before pulling their rip cords.

State Resolves Controversy On Lifeguards

DENVER (UPI) — Gov. John Love and the Game and Fish Commission Tuesday resolved a controversy over employment of lifeguards at Cherry Creek Reservoir here.

Love announced the four existing regional game and fish managers, with parks revenue supplying 25 per cent of their salaries, would direct parks development. The Commission in May announced that swimming would be on an individual risk basis, and said the savings from lifeguard salaries would go to hire four parks managers.

Love in turn ordered that the four lifeguards remain at Cherry Creek, and later approved changes in the parks management program of the commission.

Other changes approved by Love:

—Field crews will be under park managers, who will be under regional game, fish and parks managers.

—Enforcement of boating laws will be the duty of the Game, Fish and Parks Department officer.

—The engineering section of the Parks and Recreation Department will be combined with the engineering and land acquisition division of the old Game and Fish Department, which becomes the Game Fish and Parks Department July 1.

ST. BARBARA AWARD — Col. Carl G. Lutz, left, congratulates Lt. Col. A. A. Howell and Sgt. Maj. Hubert Coleman on the award of the 5th Division Artillery St. Barbara cannon trophy to Colonel Howell's 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery. The award recognizes the battalion's superior ratings in a recent inspection. Sgt. Coleman, who was 5th DivArty sergeant-major when the division was inactivated there in 1958, is credited with having the cannon returned to the 5th at Ft. Carson.

Objective Religious Study Is Encouraged by Court

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In banning devotional exericses in public schools, the Supreme Court went out of its way to encourage objective study of religion as a regular part of the school curriculum.

The court majority thus took a stand very similar to that adopted earlier this month by the general board of the National Council of Churches.

Monday's 8 to 1 ruling was unequivocal in saying that public schools may not continue the widespread practice of opening each school day with a religious exercise which usually includes the recitation of the Lord's Prayer and the devotional reading of a passage from the Bible.

Surveys indicate that about half of the nation's public schools now follow this practice. It is much more common in the South and East than in the Midwest and West.

The court said that such exercises, whether compulsory or voluntary, violate "the command of the First Amendment that the government maintain strict neutrality, neither aiding nor opposing religion."

But the majority opinion, written by Justice Tom C. Clark, went on to speak of the "exalted" place which religion occupies in American society. And it departed from the specific legal issues before it and offered shools and students these words of advice:

"It might well be said that one's education is not complete without a study of comparative religion or the history of religion and its relationship to the advancement of civilization.

"It certainly may be said that the Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic qualities.

"Nothing we have said here indicates that such study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education, may not be effected consistent with the First Amendment."

The court's strong plug for objective teaching about religion was warmly welcomed by a number of religious leaders.

J. Irwin Miller, president of the National Council of Churches, noted that the council's policy-making general board, meeting in New York on June 7, adopted a pronouncement opposing "devotional use of the Bible" in public schools, but asserting that "the full treatment of some regular school subjects requires the use of the Bible as a source book."

The council statement said that "no person is truly educated who is not aware of the vital part played by religion in the shaping of our history and culture, and of its contemporary expressions." It suggested that information about religion be taught in schools as an essential part in courses in social studies, literature and the arts.

The Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, Episcopal bishop of Washington, said the court decision "clearly opens the door for an increased emphasis upon our religious heritage as a regular part of the public school curriculum."

One of the great concerns of religious leaders has been that banning prayer and Bible reading might lead to a total silence on the part of the public schools about God. The objective teaching about religion, which was endorsed by the Supreme Court majority, could resolve that problem.

The court majority went to great pains to knock down the belief—which has been advanced by a number of religious leaders and some historians and constitutional lawyers — that the First Amendment merely forbids the government to show preference to one religion over another. They have argued that this was all the founding fathers had in mind.

But the majority opinion asserted sharply that "such contentions, in the light of the consistent interpretation in cases of this court, seem entirely untenable and of value only as academic exercises."

Republicans Praise Allott's Exile Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A proposal that the United States allow Cuban exiles to set up a government at Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba received praises from eight Republican senators Tuesday.

The proposal, forwarded in a Senate speech Monday by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., was hailed as an "historic and courageous speech" by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Others joning Goldwater in praise for the idea were Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., Peter Dominick, R-Colo., James B. Pearson, R-Kan., Jack Miller, R-Iowa, Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, Karl Mundt, R-S.D., and Thruston Morton, R-Ky.

Sen. Frank Church, a Democrat member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he respected the good intentions of Allott, but added: "From what I know of the feeling and attitude of the Cuban people, there has long been considerable resentment in Cuba itself over (U.S. control of) Guantanamo, whether it is well or ill founded."

Boy Claims Girl Was Killed Accidentally

FORT COLLINS (UPI)—A 15-year-old boy testified here Tuesday he pointed his rifle at an unwanted rabbit-hunting companion because she wouldn't "shut up."

Robert Dell Patton, who has pleaded guilty to voluntary manslaughter charges in the killing of Sue Allen, 17, last Feb. 2, Tuesday applied for probation.

"I did not deliberately pull the trigger," he said. "I felt that I was taking the gun from my shoulder or stepping back when it fired."

Patton said the girl, a fellow member of the Emissaries of Divine Light, persisted in following him when he was hunting. He said he asked her to be quiet and she replied "that I couldn't make her be quiet."

The said he pointed the gun at her "to show her I could make her shut up."

Twice - married were U.S. presidents Tyler, Fillmore, Benjamin and Woodrow Wilson.

Parachute Jumpers To Compete in Aspen

ASPEN (AP) — About 30 parachute jumpers, who also call themselves sky divers, will compete in contests at Aspen Saturday and Sunday.

Officials of the Aspen Sky Divers, sponsoring the events, said today no previous contests in this country have been held at a higher altitude. Aspen is about 8,000 feet above sea level.

The jumpers will be judged on accuracy and form. Team events Sunday will include baton-passing maneuvers by divers falling through space before pulling their rip cords.

State Resolves Controversy On Lifeguards

DENVER (UPI) — Gov. John Love and the Game and Fish Commission Tuesday resolved a controversy over employment of lifeguards at Cherry Creek Reservoir here.

Love announced the four existing regional game and fish managers, with parks revenue supplying 25 per cent of their salaries, would direct parks development. The Commission in May announced that swimming would be on an individual risk basis, and said the savings from lifeguard salaries would go to hire four parks managers.

Love in turn ordered that the four lifeguards remain at Cherry Creek, and later approved changes in the parks management program of the commission.

Other changes approved by Love:

—Field crews will be under park managers, who will be under regional game, fish and parks managers.

—Enforcement of boating laws will be the duty of the Game, Fish and Parks Department officer.

—The engineering section of the Parks and Recreation Department will be combined with the engineering and land acquisition division of the old Game and Fish Department, which becomes the Game Fish and Parks Department July 1.

ST. BARBARA AWARD — Col. Carl G. Lutz, left, congratulates Lt. Col. A. A. Howell and Sgt. Maj. Hubert Coleman on the award of the 5th Division Artillery St. Barbara cannon trophy to Colonel Howell's 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery. The award recognizes the battalion's superior ratings in a recent inspection. Sgt. Coleman, who was 5th DivArty sergeant-major when the division was inactivated there in 1958, is credited with having the cannon returned to the 5th at Ft. Carson.

Objective Religious Study Is Encouraged by Court

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In banning devotional exericses in public schools, the Supreme Court went out of its way to encourage objective study of religion as a regular part of the school curriculum.

The court majority thus took a stand very similar to that adopted earlier this month by the general board of the National Council of Churches.

Monday's 8 to 1 ruling was unequivocal in saying that public schools may not continue the widespread practice of opening each school day with a religious exercise which usually includes the recitation of the Lord's Prayer and the devotional reading of a passage from the Bible.

Surveys indicate that about half of the nation's public schools now follow this practice. It is much more common in the South and East than in the Midwest and West.

The court said that such exercises, whether compulsory or voluntary, violate "the command of the First Amendment that the government maintain strict neutrality, neither aiding nor opposing religion."

But the majority opinion, written by Justice Tom C. Clark, went on to speak of the "exalted" place which religion occupies in American society. And it departed from the specific legal issues before it and offered shools and students these words of advice:

"It might well be said that one's education is not complete without a study of comparative religion or the history of religion and its relationship to the advancement of civilization.

"It certainly may be said that the Bible is worthy of study for its literary and historic qualities.

"Nothing we have said here indicates that such study of the Bible or of religion, when presented objectively as part of a secular program of education, may not be effected consistent with the First Amendment."

The court's strong plug for objective teaching about religion was warmly welcomed by a number of religious leaders.

J. Irwin Miller, president of the National Council of Churches, noted that the council's policy-making general board, meeting in New York on June 7, adopted a pronouncement opposing "devotional use of the Bible" in public schools, but asserting that "the full treatment of some regular school subjects requires the use of the Bible as a source book."

The council statement said that "no person is truly educated who is not aware of the vital part played by religion in the shaping of our history and culture, and of its contemporary expressions." It suggested that information about religion be taught in schools as an essential part in courses in social studies, literature and the arts.

The Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, Episcopal bishop of Washington, said the court decision "clearly opens the door for an increased emphasis upon our religious heritage as a regular part of the public school curriculum."

One of the great concerns of religious leaders has been that banning prayer and Bible reading might lead to a total silence on the part of the public schools about God. The objective teaching about religion, which was endorsed by the Supreme Court majority, could resolve that problem.

The court majority went to great pains to knock down the belief—which has been advanced by a number of religious leaders and some historians and constitutional lawyers — that the First Amendment merely forbids the government to show preference to one religion over another. They have argued that this was all the founding fathers had in mind.

But the majority opinion asserted sharply that "such contentions, in the light of the consistent interpretation in cases of this court, seem entirely untenable and of value only as academic exercises."

Cloudscrapers Newest Glassy New York Style

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — East Side, West Side, all around the town buildings are going up and buildings are coming down.

It's hard to find a window in New York you can look out of without seeing the steel skeleton of some new cloudscraper across the street or the innards of an old one being wrecked to make way for another new one.

Real estate experts will tell you that the present building boom has had it. And statistically they may be right; plans for new construction filed in '62 were way down from the 1961 peak. But this is '63, when the buildings planned in '61 are going up and the areas are being cleared for the buildings which were planned last year.

And so there is wooden scaffolding over the sidewalks on Madison Avenue, gaping holes in the ground on 44th Street, the glint of newly installed glass on Lexington Avenue, the dust and the noise and the trucks carrying away dirt and bringing in monstrous steel beams.

You go away for a weekend and you come back and there's a new building starting. Go away for a month and you won't recognize the place. Stay away a year and you'd be a stranger.

What all this new construction has meant to New York can be summed up in some frantic figures:

At the end of last year 189 commercial buildings, with a combined total of 68,640,000 square feet, were either under construction, just completed or officially planned. Total cost, exclusive of land: $3.5 billion.

To keep these buildings in light and heat, Con Edison, the New York City utility company, has had to spend $2 billion to build new facilities, and expects to spend another $1.3 billion between now and 1967.

To provide telephone service for all these new offices and hotel rooms, The New York Telephone Co. has installed 30 new central offices on the island of Manhattan. These are necessary, they point out, when you look at how the number of telephone calls has risen — from 7,860,000 per day in 1950 to 11,164,000 now — just in Manhattan.

Architects are viewing the current building boom with some gloom. Although they welcome the business, there is a general agreement that most of the new buildings exhibit a depressing sameness of design. They all seem to be built from one master plan—stark, straight lines, little or no ornamentation, lots of glass and very little imagination.

One building that has had more than its share of criticism is the huge Pan Am Building, which looms over Old Grand Central Terminal like a gigantic modern cat playing with a tiny baroque mouse.

The contrast between the old Terminal, dirty and gray and ornate, and the new structure, white and clean and almost sterile is startling. But the Pan Am Building — partially occupied now although not quite finished — is a masterpiece in its way.

It is modern outside and in. New as it is, it has already inspired one joke among its tenants. They must have keys to open the windows, which are locked to facilitate air conditioning and swivel open only to be cleaned.

"Can I borrow your window key?" goes the gag. "I want to jump."

Today, Pan Am's tenants travel up to their offices in elevators which are still padded to prevent their being scratched by workmen carrying tools. The sharkskin suits rub shoulders with the denim. And the executives carrying their Wall Street Journals pause to read a crudely lettered sign in one elevator: "Smile You Are on Candid Camera."

Many of New York's new and yet-to-be-completed buildings are hotels. There had not been a major new hotel in New York since 1930. Now two big ones (Summit and Americana) are open, with several more nearing completion.

"By the time the World's Fair gets under way," says Daniel C. Hickey, president of the Zeckendorf Hotels Corp., "there will be approximately 8,000 new hotel rooms in New York. But I do not anticipate a continuance of the building boom in hotels. It is my opinion that the current peak has now been reached."

RICHARDSON, Tex. (UPI) — Eight card players' game turned out to be strip poker whether they liked it or not.

A masked gunman barged into a motel room with a 38-caliber revolver and robbed the poker players of $1,000 in cash and their clothing and jewelry valued at $1,000.

Two of the players wrapped sheets around themselves and reported the holdup to the clerk of the Dallas Continental Inn, who called police.

Irish Now Have Second Thoughts About Kennedy

By TOM A. CULLEN

NEW ROSS, Eire (NEA) — When President Kennedy first announced that he was coming to Ireland on June 26 to visit his Irish relatives, New Ross went wild with joy. But now this seaport town of 4,600 inhabitants is having second thoughts.

It isn't that President Kennedy will be any less welcome when he arrives here by helicopter on the morning of June 27. New Ross is tremendously proud of its connection with the White House.

The simple fact is that New Ross finds that it cannot cope with all the ballyhoo surrounding a presidential visit. It is utterly bewildered by all the talk of erecting stands for television cameramen, flabbergasted at the thought of accommodating the thousands of visitors whom the President will attract.

As a result, this town has turned overnight from a friendly, outgoing community to one that is taciturn and suspicious of strangers.

When I first arrived here I was immediately pegged as an FBI man who had come to check on security arrangements. And I was accordingly shunned, because the Irish have no love of police of any description (they call their own "civil guards").

The security arrangements for the President's visit have been the subject of wild rumors. The townspeople fully expect to be shouldered off the sidewalks by wide - shouldered G-Men toting guns on their hips. "If this happens the President will lose the Irish vote," I have been solemnly assured.

New Ross is deeply disappointed that President Kennedy can spare only 90 minutes for his visit here. Ninety minutes in which to receive the freedom of the town and to visit with his relatives in nearby Dunganstown, including distant cousin Mrs. Mary Kennedy Ryan and her nephew, Patrick Kennedy. To most people this short stay seems just plain ludicrous, if not insulting.

To begin with, New Ross has been preparing for this visit for weeks. There is hardly a house in the town that hasn't been repainted for the occasion, and many of them have hung out window boxes. Tiny American flags have suddenly sprouted in the shop windows.

"If the President breezes through town as scheduled, he won't have time to see us, let alone our window boxes," Michael Fleming, a member of the arrangements committee, pointed out.

No one blames the President for this deplorable state of affairs. No one here doubts that the President would like to spend the rest of his life here. No, the Irish government is to blame—specifically, the Department of External Affairs.

"They want the President back in Dublin in time to attend a garden party in the afternoon," Fleming declared. "A garden party — fancy that!" It would be hard to convey the scorn which he poured into these words.

But New Ross is angrier still because it is being forced to assist at the birth of a myth. The myth has for its hero President Kennedy, who is arguably the most powerful man on earth. Its other ingredients are Kennedy's Irish kinsmen, who are small farmers, and who, as such, work harder and for less reward than any other farmers in Europe.

The temptation for the mythmakers is for newspapers to paint New Ross as a sort of Irish version of Tobacco Road, and Kennedy's relatives as Gaelic counterparts of the Jeeters.

Some people I've talked to take a charitable view and blame the bad publicity which New Ross is receiving on "Kennedy's enemies," whoever they may be. "His enemies are only trying to embarrass him," I am told. Whether or not this is a Republican party plot, my Irish informants refused to commit themselves.

To understand how the milk of human kindness is curdling one must look closer at the people themselves.

New Ross is the kind of town where it is considered a breach of confidence to close one's front door, let alone to lock it. It's the kind of place where people greet you when you pass them in the streets without waiting for a formal introduction, and a stranger in a pub is made to feel instantly welcome.

When tourists first arrived here in search of the Kennedy ancestral home the natives were inclined to treat them to bottles of stout. But the tourists keep coming in droves, and the natives could ill-afford to stand them to drinks. The result has been that the natives now shun the tourist bars. Better that than to be thought pikers.

When the President of the United States meets his Irish relatives in front of the world's television cameras someone is bound to get hurt, and on this occasion it looks as though New Ross is the chosen victim. Its well-wishers only hope that the tears, the hurt pride and bruised shins can be kept to a minimum.

Russian Village Names Prettyfied

MOSCOW (UPI) — In Russia, if the name of a place is objectionable, one doesn't have to live with it. St. Petersburg became Petrograd and then Leningrad. Stalingrad now is Volgograd.

But how about the villagers of "Mudhole" and "Goat?"

No great political and ideological questions were involved as in the case of Leningrad and Volgograd. But perhaps Mudholers had their esthetic sensibilities offended.

Recently they had cheering news. Mudholers now live in "Meadows" and Goat is no longer Goat. It is "Grove," according to a ukase of the Russian Federated Republic dealing with objectionable village names in the Novorod region.

FORT COLLINS (AP) — Organization of a pest control district in Boulder and Larimer counties is planned to combat the first serious grasshopper infestation of the year in Colorado.

A meeting to set up the district was scheduled for Lyons Thursday night.

Officials said from 10,000 to 15,000 acres of land west of the town of Berthoud were infested. They expressed hope that the district could be organized quickly to prevent the spread of the hoppers to other areas.

When the district is formed, the State Agricultured Department would be asked to arrange for the area to be sprayed by air.

Cars Favored Over Food in Quebec

QUEBEC (AP) — Two sociologists asked a number of Quebec families what they would buy if they had more money. Not one replied that it would go toward a better balanced diet.

Most said they would give priority to furniture or an automobile, and added they wouldn't hesitate to borrow to buy them.

The report says that priority for family spending in Quebec runs as follows: furniture, automobile, lodging, medical needs, insurance, food, recreation and clothing.

In some cases, people settled for a cheaper home, if necessary, in order to buy furniture or a car. And it was found that the poorest families seemed to own the biggest and newest cars.

THE FEDS CAME

SEARCH GOES ON

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—Rescue workers, guided by feeble cries for help dug today toward what may be the only survivor of a gold mine disaster near here.

At least 13 bodies, including those of two white men, have been recovered from the freak rockfall at the 4,000-foot level of the Grootvlei Mine. At least seven other men were believed killed.

One African had been heard crying for help, but rescuers said his cries were growing weaker by the hour.

World's Moslems number about 430.3 million.

Cloudscrapers Newest Glassy New York Style

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — East Side, West Side, all around the town buildings are going up and buildings are coming down.

It's hard to find a window in New York you can look out of without seeing the steel skeleton of some new cloudscraper across the street or the innards of an old one being wrecked to make way for another new one.

Real estate experts will tell you that the present building boom has had it. And statistically they may be right; plans for new construction filed in '62 were way down from the 1961 peak. But this is '63, when the buildings planned in '61 are going up and the areas are being cleared for the buildings which were planned last year.

And so there is wooden scaffolding over the sidewalks on Madison Avenue, gaping holes in the ground on 44th Street, the glint of newly installed glass on Lexington Avenue, the dust and the noise and the trucks carrying away dirt and bringing in monstrous steel beams.

You go away for a weekend and you come back and there's a new building starting. Go away for a month and you won't recognize the place. Stay away a year and you'd be a stranger.

What all this new construction has meant to New York can be summed up in some frantic figures:

At the end of last year 189 commercial buildings, with a combined total of 68,640,000 square feet, were either under construction, just completed or officially planned. Total cost, exclusive of land: $3.5 billion.

To keep these buildings in light and heat, Con Edison, the New York City utility company, has had to spend $2 billion to build new facilities, and expects to spend another $1.3 billion between now and 1967.

To provide telephone service for all these new offices and hotel rooms, The New York Telephone Co. has installed 30 new central offices on the island of Manhattan. These are necessary, they point out, when you look at how the number of telephone calls has risen — from 7,860,000 per day in 1950 to 11,164,000 now — just in Manhattan.

Architects are viewing the current building boom with some gloom. Although they welcome the business, there is a general agreement that most of the new buildings exhibit a depressing sameness of design. They all seem to be built from one master plan—stark, straight lines, little or no ornamentation, lots of glass and very little imagination.

One building that has had more than its share of criticism is the huge Pan Am Building, which looms over Old Grand Central Terminal like a gigantic modern cat playing with a tiny baroque mouse.

The contrast between the old Terminal, dirty and gray and ornate, and the new structure, white and clean and almost sterile is startling. But the Pan Am Building — partially occupied now although not quite finished — is a masterpiece in its way.

It is modern outside and in. New as it is, it has already inspired one joke among its tenants. They must have keys to open the windows, which are locked to facilitate air conditioning and swivel open only to be cleaned.

"Can I borrow your window key?" goes the gag. "I want to jump."

Today, Pan Am's tenants travel up to their offices in elevators which are still padded to prevent their being scratched by workmen carrying tools. The sharkskin suits rub shoulders with the denim. And the executives carrying their Wall Street Journals pause to read a crudely lettered sign in one elevator: "Smile You Are on Candid Camera."

Many of New York's new and yet-to-be-completed buildings are hotels. There had not been a major new hotel in New York since 1930. Now two big ones (Summit and Americana) are open, with several more nearing completion.

"By the time the World's Fair gets under way," says Daniel C. Hickey, president of the Zeckendorf Hotels Corp., "there will be approximately 8,000 new hotel rooms in New York. But I do not anticipate a continuance of the building boom in hotels. It is my opinion that the current peak has now been reached."

NO CHOICE

RICHARDSON, Tex. (UPI) — Eight card players' game turned out to be strip poker whether they liked it or not.

A masked gunman barged into a motel room with a 38-caliber revolver and robbed the poker players of $1,000 in cash and their clothing and jewelry valued at $1,000.

Two of the players wrapped sheets around themselves and reported the holdup to the clerk of the Dallas Continental Inn, who called police.

Irish Now Have Second Thoughts About Kennedy

By TOM A. CULLEN

NEW ROSS, Eire (NEA) — When President Kennedy first announced that he was coming to Ireland on June 26 to visit his Irish relatives, New Ross went wild with joy. But now this seaport town of 4,600 inhabitants is having second thoughts.

It isn't that President Kennedy will be any less welcome when he arrives here by helicopter on the morning of June 27. New Ross is tremendously proud of its connection with the White House.

The simple fact is that New Ross finds that it cannot cope with all the ballyhoo surrounding a presidential visit. It is uttterly bewildered by all the talk of erecting stands for television cameramen, flabbergasted at the thought of accommodating the thousands of visitors whom the President will attract.

As a result, this town has turned overnight from a friendly, outgoing community to one that is taciturn and suspicious of strangers.

When I first arrived here I was immediately pegged as an FBI man who had come to check on security arrangements. And I was accordingly shunned, because the Irish have no love of police of any description (they call their own "civil guards").

The security arrangements for the President's visit have been the subject of wild rumors. The townspeople fully expect to be shouldered off the sidewalks by wide - shouldered G-Men toting guns on their hips. "If this happens the President will lose the Irish vote," I have been solemnly assured.

New Ross is deeply disappointed that President Kennedy can spare only 90 minutes for his visit here. Ninety minutes in which to receive the freedom of the town and to visit with his relatives in nearby Dunganstown, including distant cousin Mrs. Mary Kennedy Ryan and her nephew, Patrick Kennedy. To most people this short stay seems just plain ludicrous, if not insulting.

To begin with, New Ross has been preparing for this visit for weeks. There is hardly a house in the town that hasn't been repainted for the occasion, and many of them have hung out window boxes. Tiny American flags have suddenly sprouted in the shop windows.

"If the President breezes through town as scheduled, he won't have time to see us, let alone our window boxes," Michael Fleming, a member of the arrangements committee, pointed out.

No one blames the President for this deplorable state of affairs. No one here doubts that the President would like to spend the rest of his life here. No, the Irish government is to blame—specifically, the Department of External Affairs.

"They want the President back in Dublin in time to attend a garden party in the afternoon," Fleming declared. "A garden party — fancy that!" It would be hard to convey the scorn which he poured into these words.

But New Ross is angrier still because it is being forced to assist at the birth of a myth. The myth has for its hero President Kennedy, who is arguably the most powerful man on earth. Its other ingredients are Kennedy's Irish kinsmen, who are small farmers, and who, as such, work harder and for less reward than any other farmers in Europe.

The temptation for the mythmakers is for newspapers to paint New Ross as a sort of Irish version of Tobacco Road, and Kennedy's relatives as Gaelic counterparts of the Jeeters.

Some people I've talked to take a charitable view and blame the bad publicity which New Ross is receiving on "Kennedy's enemies," whoever they may be. "His enemies are only trying to embarrass him," I am told. Whether or not this is a Republican party plot, my Irish informants refused to commit themselves.

To understand how the milk of human kindness is curdling one must look closer at the people themselves.

New Ross is the kind of town where it is considered a breach of confidence to close one's front door, let alone to lock it. It's the kind of place where people greet you when you pass them in the streets without waiting for a formal introduction, and a stranger in a pub is made to feel instantly welcome.

When tourists first arrived here in search of the Kennedy ancestral home the natives were inclined to treat them to bottles of stout. But the tourists keep coming in droves, and the natives could ill-afford to stand them to drinks. The result has been that the natives now shun the tourist bars. Better that than to be thought pikers.

When the President of the United States meets his Irish relatives in front of the world's television cameras someone is bound to get hurt, and on this occasion it looks as though New Ross is the chosen victim. Its well-wishers only hope that the tears, the hurt pride and bruised shins can be kept to a minimum.

Bird Lore Gets Historical Mark From Humorist

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In writing about a "protocol course" to be offered at Southeastern University here this summer, I noted that it would include a lecture on the use of "party props."

A party prop is an obscure news item that can be used to start a conversation at parties. As an example, I cited the fact that 1963 is the 15th anniversary of the discovery of the nesting place of the bristle-thighed curlew.

It occurred to me later that, because of the context in which it was mentioned, some readers may have gotten the impression that I was treating the anniversary frivolously.

If so, I want to clear that up at once.

I fully recognize that the discovery of the curlew's nest was an ornithological milestone. Perhaps it will make us all feel better if we pause for a moment and pay homage to this remarkable achievement.

It was, as you may recall, on June 18, 1948, that word of the discovery reached the waiting world. The news was flashed by Dr. Arthur A. Allen, head of an expedition that the National Geographic Society had sent to Alaska to search for the next.

"We have found the curlew's nest," Allen said simply.

It was a signal for rejoicing and dancing in the streets, for it cleared up a mystery that had baffled man for 163 years.

Ever since 1785, when man first realized that there was such a bird as the bristle-thighed curlew, man had wondered where the darn thing nested.

By 1948, the curlew was the only North American bird whose breeding grounds and summer home remain undetected.

Things like that are what drive man crazy.

The reader is perhaps wondering why the National Geographic expedition was sent to Alaska rather than say, Minnesota. Well, Allen had a hot tip that some of the birds had been sighted off the Alaskan coast.

Had he gone to Minnesota he might be searching yet.

For the benefit of those who have never seen a bristle-thighed curlew, I shall attempt to describe one, even thought I may be accused of trying to pull your leg.

It is between 16 and 18 inches long and has brown feathers, some of which stick out from its sides like bristles. It spends most of the year in the South Pacific, but goes to Alaska each spring.

"Why these curlews should want to leave the warm, luxurious shores of Tahiti and other South Sea islands, fly 5,500 miles over the open sea, and arrive at one of the most forlorn stretches of Tundra in North America, deserted by all other birds and still largely covered with snow, just to lay four eggs, is hard to understand," Allen once commented.

My guess is that they do it for publicity.

"I'M WITH JOE"

DALLAS (UPI)—"What's going on here," security patrolman A. M. Hurl asked a man he caught dashing out the back door of a closed service station.

"I'm with Joe," the man said, "he's in the back." He motioned toward the interior of the station, jumped in a car and drove away.

Hurl ran in the station. He found no "Joe." But he found a cigarette machine broken and the change missing.

Bird Lore Gets Historical Mark From Humorist

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In writing about a "protocol course" to be offered at Southeastern University here this summer, I noted that it would include a lecture on the use of "party props."

A party prop is an obscure news item that can be used to start a conversation at parties. As an example, I cited the fact that 1963 is the 15th anniversary of the discovery of the nesting place of the bristle-thighed curlew.

It occurred to me later that, because of the context in which it was mentioned, some readers may have gotten the impression that I was treating the anniversary frivolously.

If so, I want to clear that up at once.

I fully recognize that the discovery of the curlew's nest was an ornithological milestone. Perhaps it will make us all feel better if we pause for a moment and pay homage to this remarkable achievement.

It was, as you may recall, on June 18, 1948, that word of the discovery reached the waiting world. The news was flashed by Dr. Arthur A. Allen, head of an expedition that the National Geographic Society had sent to Alaska to search for the next.

"We have found the curlew's nest," Allen said simply.

It was a signal for rejoicing and dancing in the streets, for it cleared up a mystery that had baffled man for 163 years.

Ever since 1785, when man first realized that there was such a bird as the bristle-thighed curlew, man had wondered where the darn thing nested.

By 1948, the curlew was the only North American bird whose breeding grounds and summer home remain undetected.

Things like that are what drive man crazy.

The reader is perhaps wondering why the National Geographic expedition was sent to Alaska rather than say, Minnesota. Well, Allen had a hot tip that some of the birds had been sighted off the Alaskan coast.

Had he gone to Minnesota he might be searching yet.

For the benefit of those who have never seen a bristle-thighed curlew, I shall attempt to describe one, even thought I may be accused of trying to pull your leg.

It is between 16 and 18 inches long and has brown feathers, some of which stick out from its sides like bristles. It spends most of the year in the South Pacific, but goes to Alaska each spring.

"Why these curlews should want to leave the warm, luxurious shores of Tahiti and other South Sea islands, fly 5,500 miles over the open sea, and arrive at one of the most forlorn stretches of Tundra in North America, deserted by all other birds and still largely covered with snow, just to lay four eggs, is hard to understand," Allen once commented.

My guess is that they do it for publicity.

"I'M WITH JOE"

DALLAS (UPI)—"What's going on here," security patrolman A. M. Hurl asked a man he caught dashing out the back door of a closed service station.

"I'm with Joe," the man said, "he's in the back." He motioned toward the interior of the station, jumped in a car and drove away.

Hurl ran in the station. He found no "Joe." But he found a cigarette machine broken and the change missing.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

Mrs. Ernest DeGeer, her son Stanley and wife, also her daughter Hattie Eleanore, who lived out here in homestead days, were out Monday, June 10, looking over things where they used to live.

Francis Herring and Harper Baker will be united in marriage at the Assembly of God Church, 702 S. Main, in Pueblo, Saturday evening, June 22, at 8 p.m. Friends are invited to attend.

Bible School was held at Hanover Community Church last week, with near 30 attending. This was a very good Bible School. The teachers were Mrs. Doyle Huffmaster, Mrs. A. L. Vette and Mrs. Fannie Reble. Betty Dickson started to be one of the teachers, but due to illness in the family had to quit. Rosie and Sevilla Baker were helpers, and when Betty had to quit Rosie took her place. A very good program was held on Friday night, June 14, with about 75 attending. The children marched in as Christian Soldiers, with the song "Onward," to salute to the Christian and American flags. There was group singing by all, then a prayer, each teacher and her group giving Bible verses, chapters and stories of what they had learned. Later Mrs. Nettie Huffmaster, Sevilla and Rosie Baker sang and Doyle Huffmaster showed slides. After the closing of the program all were invited to the church basement to see the children's work. Our sincere thanks and appreciation to all who helped to make this possible.

Mr. ane Mrs. Ray Geist, Charles and Sandra, of Colorado Springs, spent Saturday and Sunday at Roy Chiman's doing chores while we had a trip to Texas with Paul, Carol and Brenda Chisman Friday night, returning Sunday afternoon. We drove home in a most wonderful rain all the way from Logan, N. M., to south of Pueblo, and were happy to know early Sunday we had close to an inch and a half of moisture. The rain had been heavier where the Clyde Balls live. In west Texas there were ponds of water standing here and there from their heaver rains earlier and it looked greener than when we had previously seen it. They will have wonderful pasture now.

Robert Chisman and children of Pueblo, drove out to the Roy Chismans Sunday evening to see how the folks were, not knowing we were not home yet.

The young folks Talent Service was held at Hanover Community Church Sunday evening, June 16, with several specials. All enjoyed the singing of Gary Hammit, Don Reichart and Miss Hudson of Colorado Springs. Gary is the youngest son of our old friends the Hammitts, who lived in our community, and we are always happy to have the young folks share their talets. Jerry and Ruth Christian, of Greeley, were down visiting the Christians of Fountain and the Dicksons of Hanover. Jerry had only about two weeks off, as he plans to attend summer school at Greeley. Jerry's brother Ronnie was to preach at the Free Methodist Church in Security Sunday, June 16. Ronnie is attending Bible College at McPherson, Kan.

Estate Heirs May Reside In Region

Dame fortune is smiling on two heirs of an estate described as "of some worthwhile value", and it is thoughtt that both persons may reside in the Colorado Springs Area.

Clay Banta, Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager, reported today that he has received a letter from W. Hugh McLaughlin, attorney, Suite 530 Professional Building, Kansas City, Mo., which states that Terrance J. Patrick, born Oct. 28, 1931 and Shirley Patrick, born Nov. 5, 1937 are heirs of their grandfather Allie De Patrick.

McLaughlin states in the letter that the son of De Patrick, Raymond Murdock Patrick who was heir at law to the estate, lived in Colorado Springs at one time. He died Sept. 21, 1940 and was buried at Colorado Springs.

Apparently McLaughlin believes Raymond Murdock's children may live here and he is attempting to contact them.

Anyone having information about the two heirs may contact McLaughlin at the above mentioned address.

Russian Combat Troops Thinned Out in Cuba

The first reports of these Cuban replacements were given newsmen on an "off-the-record" basis, but subsequently have been confirmed by a number of U.S. officials without this restriction.

The State Department declined to say how many Russian combat or non-combat troops it believed had left Cuba. There were 21,000 to 22,000 on the island at the height of the October crisis, including 5,000 to 6,000 in combat groups.

(Cuban exile leaders in Miami disagreed with the State Department's report. They said there were more Russian troops in Cuba now than ever).

The Russians withdrew their "offensive" weapons — the intermediate and medium-range missiles and long-range bombers — last fall. But troop withdrawls since then have been gradual and the Russians haev been training Cubans. Since the offensive missiles left, Cuba's military strength may have been increased rather than decreased, many officials believe.

Missing Dog Needs Treatment

"Rick-A-Shay, a three-year-old male German Shephard, missing from his home since Friday, is in danger of losing his sight if he is not found immediately by his owner.

Mrs. Ruth Cannella, 4009 N. Wahsatch Ave., owner of the dog, said he has a serious eye condition which requires daily treatment and will lose his sight completely if the medication is not applied.

Mrs. Cannella said the eye condition is not contagious.

The dog was last seen wearing a choke chain collar. He has had rabbi shots recently but the tag had not yet been placed on his collar. The dog is described as medium sized, fawn colored head with a dark body.

Anyone with information about the dog is asked to call 634-1795 during the day or 632-5160 after 6 p.m.

500 Anti-Red Commandos Reported Landed in Cuba

"war communique number one." It was signed by Jose Fernandez Badue, council member and commissioner of the information department.

Premier Fidel Castro, in a speech Tuesday, said that 14 counter-revolutionary bands have been smashed in recent weeks in Matanzas Province. There was no indication whether these alleged bands were affiliated with the Miami Revolutionary Council.

The council, which recently split with the Kennedy administration due to its crackdown on anti-Castro raider groups and apparent lack of a detailed policy to free Cuba from Communist control, was the overt sponsor of the ill-fated, American-conceived Pigs Bay invasion of April 17, 1961.

The president of the council, Antonio Maceo, could not be reached immediately.

But informed sources said the landings were carried out from a boat before dawn today. They said the basic objective of the debarkation was to "reinforce" rebels in Cuba.

"A large quantity of arms was put ashore and many of the men are experts in guerrilla warfare," one source said.

About half of the 16 council members resigned with Miro.

The remaining members elected Maceo, descendant of Cuba's independence hero, Gen. Antonio Maceo, president. Among those who stayed with the council was Manuel (Tony) de Varona, a former prime miniter of Cuba.

Handicapped Participate In Program

Thirteen handicapped persons, 16 months to 31 years of age, will participate in a swimming program beginning Friday, sponsored by the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center.

The program will be conducted at the pool of the new Elks Club on Sorth Nevada Avenue from 9 to 11 a.m. and will continue thru the summer, according to recreation director Kenny Gloss.

Gloss said swimming for the physically handicapped has been conducted thru the past years under the auspices of the Red Cross. Programs of this nature, Gloss said, are a result of enerous Easter Seal giving.

Kenny Cunningham, volunteer director of the program, announced that anyone interested in working with the handicapped in this swimming program may contact the Center, 636-2351.

Participating volunteers are Mrs. Lois Claus and the Misses Donna Day, Vonnie Sidon, Marion Donnelly, Linda Midnex, Ava Alevcia, Wendy Weiner, Mary Jane Gletcher, Penny Kintley and Ellen Rush.

In paying tribute to the Elks, Gloss said the rehabilitation program of these patients will be greatly increased since recreational swimming is such a necessary part of total rehabilitation activities.

Realtors Slate All-Day Seminar

An all-day seminar entitled "Dollars and Sense" will be held Saturday at the Paint Pony Country Club in Woodland Park by the Colorado Springs Board of realtors.

The theme of the conference and the real estate industry today is "Learn More, Earn More and Serve Better." At this conference and others to follow, the local board of realtors hope to impress their members with the magnitude of their responsibilities and to present practical solutions to their problems.

A spokesman for the board said the general public is hurt more by incompetence on the part of uninformed real estate salesmen and brokers than by dishonest acts. Competence can be gained by education coupled with practical experience.

No longer can a salesman or broker take the attitude of a peddler, the spokesman said; rather he or she must take the position of a counselor possessing those skill and the professional knowledge necessary to properly counsel their clients as to all their real estate problems.

City Has Own Municipal Flag

Did you know the city of Colorado Springs has its own municipal flag?

It does. But it's rarely unfurled from its stand in Council chambers at City Hall.

The flag and the better-known seal of the city were drawn in color this week by local commercial artist Fred H. Shantz on request of Malcom Anderson, the city's public information officer.

Anderson will send Shantz's flag and seal, to the National Geographic Society in Washington, D.C. which is updating its files on municipal flags and seals of cities thruout the U.S.

Occasionally the Society uses them in publication, but more often they are needed by the research division to check photos and articles for reference.

The city's flag is a tribute to the natural beauty of the Pikes Peak Region. Its stylized design is on a white field signifying "the cleanliness and health of the city." A blue border represents the blue skies and its shield "carries the sun," rising over Pikes Peak.

The more popular city seal—seen on tie clasps and service awards — is inscribed, "City of Colorado Springs—1872" and is a silver outline of Pikes Peak encircled with a blue band.

The Shantz drawings will be mailed to Washington Friday.

Annual Quarter Horse Show All Set to Go

The fourth annual Pikes Peak Quarter Horse Show opens Friday in Penrose Stadium, with performances morning, afternoon and evening, and local officials are wondering just how big it will be by post time.

Originated in 1960 by a group of Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo and Pikes Peak Range Rider committeemen, the local show was designed to provide display space for regional horse breeders, plus entertainment for the residents and tourists. It started as a "D" show (under 75 entries), quickly became a "C" show (125 entries) in 1961 and last year became a "B" show by passing up the 150 minimum entry requirement for registered shows.

"It was our feeling that a 'B' show was probably big enough for our area and for our committee," J. D. Ackerman, show secretary, was quoted as saying. "For that reason we have never really solicited entries just for entries' sake. However, with 200 entries in already, there is a possibility at least that we might become a Class A show by passing the required mark of 225.

Class A is the top designation in the quarter horse business and would make the Pikes Peak Show one of the biggest and most important in the Rocky Mountains.

"Class B or Class A, this show has everything for the performer and for the spectator," President Jack Blasingame said on the eve of the opening. "We have the halter and show events during the day Friday and Saturday, with no charge to the public. Each evening at 8 o'clock there will be roping, reining, team roping, jumping, pleasure horses and barrel racing for the spectator."

What started out as a trial event two years has become the biggest team tying event in the state. The Pikes Peak Invitational Team Tying championship, with a first go-round Friday afternoon, and with the second go-round Saturday afternoon and continuing Saturday night, has attracted 32 of the best ropers in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Kansas. Purse for the event has already reached $1,060. Total prizes, including cash, trophies and ribbons, approximate $5,000.

Tickets for both night shows will be on sale at the stadium.

Allott Is Boosted For GOP Nod By Chairman Tool

The Colorado chairman, Jean K. Tool, told a reporter he hopes to corral 100 of about 1,300 national convention votes for Allott by next summer.

Tool used a pre-meeting reception to begin sounding out Western state chairmen about supporting Allott, 56, who is serving his second term.

The Colorado chairman labeled his campaign "A trial balloon at the practical level" and said the principal reason was to let the nation know that Allott is available.

Neither Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York ror Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, most frequently mentioned presidential possibilities, is expected to attend the meetings.

George L. Hinman, New York national committeeman and a leader in the Rockefeller drive, will be on hand. So will Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas state chairman and a leader of the Goldwater forces.

The chairman of the Southern Association of Republican State Chairmen, Wirt A. Yerger Jr. of Jackson, Miss., injected Goldwater's name into a talk with reporters late Wednesday.

He called the Arizona senator "The man best able to carry the South" and at the same time referred to Rockefeller as a liberal and added, "It is pretty hard to sell a liberal in the South, or any state, if he is a Republican."

Yerger, during the meeting with reporters, said, "In my opinion it is apparent that the Kennedys have in effect instigated and provoked demonstrations and riots in this country by these (civil rights) groups. I think it is a very dangerous thing when a President and attorney general will not condemn these unlawful demonstrations."

He said he feels certain it was done to divert attention from domestic and foreign problems.

The primary business of the Republican leaders is a meeting of the party's national committee Friday and Saturday to select a time and place for the 1964 national convention which will nominate a rival for Democratic President John F. Kennedy.

The site selection committee, headed by National Chairman William Miller with Tool as vice chairman, scheduled a final meeting today to make its recommendation. Tool said the site recommendation will be kept secret until it goes to the national committee shortly before noon Saturday.

Other activities on today's schedule of all Republican state chairmen, both also closed to reporters.

Tool said the site selection committee wants the convention to open July 13, 1964.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 p.m. yesterday)

More isolated thunderstorms occurred along the South Carolina coast and over the plateau of Utah and Nevada. In contrast to this summer-like air mass, cool air is pressing southward across the western Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi Valley.

Some cloudiness and a few very light showers are associated with the frontal zone along the leading edge of this colder dryer air. In the far west, low cloudiness and fog shrouds the Pacific coastline while generally fair weather prevails farther inland.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s and 70s over the easternhalf of the nation except for some 50s in northern New England, and 40s and 50s in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, and the northern portions of Illinois and Iowa.

Scattered reports of readings in the upper 30s were received from stations in northern Minnesota and upper Michigan.

In the far west, temperatures were near normal ranging from the 50s in the north to the 70s in the southern deserts.

Chipper Chews Tree Branches Into Shreds

That whining sound accompanying city trucks and crews in their cleanup job is a "chipper"—a grinding saw which chews leaves and branches into shreds.

The machine was in use Wednesday along east Kiowa Street, and other parts of the city where park and recreation crews are working to clean up tree damages from the recent storm.

Don Lawrie, city street superintendent, said that as of noon Wednesday, 290 truck loads of debris have been hauled off city streets since the rains started last Friday.

Some parts of the city have been cleaned up three times since last Friday. Most of the storm damage was concentrated on the west side, but there was some on the east side and isolated spots elsewhere.

Dirt and gravel washed onto the streets from unpaved alleys thruout the city, and many branches were broken by the hail.

Lawrie reminded residents not to throw grass cuttings into the streets because they clog the storm drains.

Cardinals Fail to Elect Pope on First Two Ballots

A progressive Pope and a conservative secretary of state would tend to balance the two groups. The secretary of state is the church's second most important official. The post was last held by Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, but his appointment ended with the death of Pope John XXIII.

Vatican sources reported that the progressive wing of the College of Cardinals was determined to elect one of their faction in order ot carry on Pope John's campaigns for Christian unity and improved relations between the church and the Communist governments.

The cardinals were locked into the conclave area of the Vatican Wednesday night. They entered into a period of isolation to be ended only with the election of Pope John's sccessor.

The cardinals and 190 persons assisting and serving them in the conclave area were sworn to keep happenings in the area secret. the outside world's only knowledge comes from the Sistine Chapel smokestack and from the routine prescribed by the rigid rules of the conclave.

This is the routine:

The cardinals attend mass each morning in the Sistine Chapel. They recite the hymn "Veni, Creator Spiritus"—Come O Creating Spirit.

Lots are drawn to decide which cardinals will scrutinize the voting and bring to the chapel the ballots of cardinals too ill to leave their cells.

The ballots are distributed. These are simple forms inscribed with the Latin words, "Eligo in summum ponteficem rev. mum d. meum d. cardinal"—"I elect as supreme pontiff the most rev. my lord cardinal."

The cardinals fold their ballots and carry them to the altar, where they deposit them in a gold chalice. They hold the ballots with only two fingers as they deposit them.

They pause a moment in prayer and say: "I call on the Lord Jesus Christ who must judge me to testify that I am voting for the one who I believe should be elected according to the will of God."

The chalice is shaken to mix the ballots.

One of the cardinals picked to scrutinize the vote takes the ballots one by one from the chalice and puts them in another chalice as he counts them without unfolding them.

If there are as many ballots as cardinals, the counting of the votes starts.

If the number of ballots is not equal to the number of cardinals, then all ballots are sewed into a cloth sack and another vote is ordered.

At the end of each valid vote, the ballots are sewed into a cloth sack. At the end of each voting session the sacks of ballots are placed in the chapel stove.

Ft. Carson Denies Report of Nerve Gas Shipments

of the shells to fire out of them," Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, commanding general at Ft. Carson, said in reiterating that the division had been issued the launchers only.

He said that the M91 launchers are nothing new and in fact have been used at Ft. Carson for some time in training. He said that the launchers were placed on public display at the post in February.

Heintges said that the only gases at Ft. Carson are tear gas and smoke. Both of these are used in training recruits, he explained.

The general, in denying that the division has the nerve gas rockets, said, however, that "if we went to war tomorrow, we'd no doubt have it — nerve gas — if there was any indication there was going to be any use of gas.

The Ft. Carson information officer, Maj. Warren Mahr, said the announcement concerning the launchers was issued as a matter of course since he didn't recall ever having pubicized their arrival.

The news release concerning the launchers described them as an "ordinance weapon used by the artillery to fire a chemical round . . .It is unique in that it replaces no other armament organic to the division."

Each launcher is capable of firing 45 six-foot-long rockets in a 25-second period. A timing device is used to fire the rockets which can cover a target area ranging from 1.7 miles to near 7 miles.

Maj. George Carroll, 5th Division chemical officer, described the rocket launcher as the first such large area weapon designed to spread chemical agents.

Officials said that each rocket is charged with five quarts of liquid GB which is vaporized on impact after firing. In some ways, the agent resembles the mist from an aerosal spray in that it is colorless and leaves a residue in the area which can kill by attacking the nervous system.

NERVE 'GAS' LAUNCHERS — Pfc. Lowell Adkins, left, and Spec. 4 Merritt Kernahner, of 1st battalion, 19th Artillery, check over one of the six M91 rocket launchers which have been issued to the 5th Division and which will be used, if necessary, to launch rockets filled with a lethal nerve "gas."

Estate Heirs May Reside In Region

Dame fortune is smiling on two heirs of an estate described as "of some worthwhile value", and it is thoughtt that both persons may reside in the Colorado Springs Area.

Clay Banta, Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager, reported today that he has received a letter from W. Hugh McLaughlin, attorney, Suite 530 Professional Building, Kansas City, Mo., which states that Terrance J. Patrick, born Oct. 28, 1931 and Shirley Patrick, born Nov. 5, 1937 are heirs of their grandfather Allie De Patrick.

McLaughlin states in the letter that the son of De Patrick, Raymond Murdock Patrick who was heir at law to the estate, lived in Colorado Springs at one time. He died Sept. 21, 1940 and was buried at Colorado Springs.

Russian Combat Troops Thinned Out in Cuba

The first reports of these Cuban replacements were given newsmen on an "off-the-record" basis, but subsequently have been confirmed by a number of U.S. officials without this restriction.

The State Department declined to say how many Russian combat or non-combat troops it believed had left Cuba. There were 21,000 to 22,000 on the island at the height of the October crisis, including 5,000 to 6,000 in combat groups.

(Cuban exile leaders in Miami disagreed with the State Department's report. They said there were more Russian troops in Cuba now than ever).

The Russians withdrew their "offensive" weapons — the intermediate and medium-range missiles and long-range bombers — last fall. But troop withdrawls since then have been gradual and the Russians haev been training Cubans. Since the offensive missiles left, Cuba's military strength may have been increased rather than decreased, many officials believe.

500 Anti-Red Commandos Reported Landed in Cuba

"war communique number one." It was signed by Jose Fernandez Badue, council member and commissioner of the information department.

Premier Fidel Castro, in a speech Tuesday, said that 14 counter-revolutionary bands have been smashed in recent weeks in Matanzas Province. There was no indication whether these alleged bands were affiliated with the Miami Revolutionary Council.

The council, which recently split with the Kennedy administration due to its crackdown on anti-Castro raider groups and apparent lack of a detailed policy to free Cuba from Communist control, was the overt sponsor of the ill-fated, American-conceived Pigs Bay invasion of April 17, 1961.

The president of the council, Antonio Maceo, could not be reached immediately.

But informed sources said the landings were carried out from a boat before dawn today. They said the basic objective of the debarkation was to "reinforce" rebels in Cuba.

"A large quantity of arms was put ashore and many of the men are experts in guerrilla warfare," one source said.

About half of the 16 council members resigned with Miro.

The remaining members elected Maceo, descendant of Cuba's independence hero, Gen. Antonio Maceo, president. Among those who stayed with the council was Manuel (Tony) de Varona, a former prime miniter of Cuba.

Annual Quarter Horse Show All Set to Go

The fourth annual Pikes Peak Quarter Horse Show opens Friday in Penrose Stadium, with performances morning, afternoon and evening, and local officials are wondering just how big it will be by post time.

Originated in 1960 by a group of Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo and Pikes Peak Range Rider committeemen, the local show was designed to provide display space for regional horse breeders, plus entertainment for the residents and tourists. It started as a "D" show (under 75 entries), quickly became a "C" show (125 entries) in 1961 and last year became a "B" show by passing up the 150 minimum entry requirement for registered shows.

"It was our feeling that a 'B' show was probably big enough for our area and for our committee," J. D. Ackerman, show secretary, was quoted as saying. "For that reason we have never really solicited entries just for entries' sake. However, with 200 entries in already, there is a possibility at least that we might become a Class A show by passing the required mark of 225.

Class A is the top designation in the quarter horse business and would make the Pikes Peak Show one of the biggest and most important in the Rocky Mountains.

"Class B or Class A, this show has everything for the performer and for the spectator," President Jack Blasingame said on the eve of the opening. "We have the halter and show events during the day Friday and Saturday, with no charge to the public. Each evening at 8 o'clock there will be roping, reining, team roping, jumping, pleasure horses and barrel racing for the spectator."

What started out as a trial event two years has become the biggest team tying event in the state. The Pikes Peak Invitational Team Tying championship, with a first go-round Friday afternoon, and with the second go-round Saturday afternoon and continuing Saturday night, has attracted 32 of the best ropers in Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Kansas. Purse for the event has already reached $1,060. Total prizes, including cash, trophies and ribbons, approximate $5,000.

Tickets for both night shows will be on sale at the stadium.

Cache La Poudre Street, according to the report.

The man, who never spoke a word during the attempted rape, was described as being white, 5 feet 9 inches tall with dark hair and a stocky build. He was wearing a white jacket and white trousers according to the report.

The girl said that she had run home after the attack and called her boy friend who lives in Pueblo before notifying police.

The Colorado chairman, Jean K. Tool, told a reporter he hopes to corral 100 of about 1,300 national convention votes for Allott by next summer.

Tool used a pre-meeting reception to begin sounding out Western state chairmen about supporting Allott, 56, who is serving his second term.

The Colorado chairman labeled his campaign "A trial balloon at the practical level" and said the principal reason was to let the nation know that Allott is available.

Neither Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York ror Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, most frequently mentioned presidential possibilities, is expected to attend the meetings

George L. Hinman, New York national committeeman and a leader in the Rockefeller drive, will be on hand. So will Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas state chairman and a leader of the Goldwater forces.

The chairman of the Southern Association of Republican State Chairmen, Wirt A. Yerger Jr. of Jackson, Miss., injected Goldwater's name into a talk with reporters late Wednesday.

He called the Arizona senator "The man best able to carry the South" and at the same time referred to Rockefeller as a liberal and added, "It is pretty hard to sell a liberal in the South, or any state, if he is a Republican."

Yerger, during the meeting with reporters, said, "In my opinion it is apparent that the Kennedys have in effect instigated and provoked demonstrations and riots in this country by these (civil rights) groups. I think it is a very dangerous thing when a President and attorney general will not condemn these unlawful demonstrations."

He said he feels certain it was done to divert attention from domestic and foreign problems.

The primary business of the Republican leaders is a meeting of the party's national committee Friday and Saturday to select a time and place for the 1964 national convention which will nominate a rival for Democratic President John F. Kennedy.

The site selection committee, headed by National Chairman William Miller with Tool as vice chairman, scheduled a final meeting today to make its recommendation. Tool said the site recommendation will be kept secret until it goes to the national committee shortly before noon Saturday.

Other activities on today's schedule of all Republican state chairmen, both also closed to reporters.

Tool said the site selection committee wants the convention to open July 13, 1964.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 8:30 a.m. yesterday)

More isolated thunderstorms occurred along the South Carolina coast and over the plateau of Utah and Nevada. In contrast to this summer-like air mass, cool air is pressing southward across the western Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi Valley.

Some cloudiness and a few very light showers are associated with the frontal zone along the leading edge of this colder dryer air. In the far west, low cloudiness and fog shrouds the Pacific coastline while generally fair weather prevails farther inland.

Early morning temperatures were in the 60s and 70s over the easternhalf of the nation except for some 50s in northern New England, and 40s and 50s in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, and the northern portions of Illinois and Iowa.

Scattered reports of readings in the upper 30s were received from stations in northern Minnesota and upper Michigan.

In the far west, temperatures were near normal ranging from the 50s in the north to the 70s in the southern deserts.

Chipper Chews Tree Branches Into Shreds

That whining sound accompanying city trucks and crews in their cleanup job is a "chipper"—a grinding saw which chews leaves and branches into shreds.

The machine was in use Wednesday along east Kiowa Street, and other parts of the city where park and recreation crews are working to clean up tree damages from the recent storm.

Don Lawrie, city street superintendent, said that as of noon Wednesday, 290 truck loads of debris have been hauled off city streets since the rains started last Friday.

Some parts of the city have been cleaned up three times since last Friday. Most of the storm damage was concentrated on the west side, but there was some on the east side and isolated spots elsewhere.

Dirt and gravel washed onto the streets from unpaved alleys thruout the city, and many branches were broken by the hail.

Lawrie reminded residents not to throw grass cuttings into the streets because they clog the storm drains.

Cardinals Fail to Elect Pope on First Two Ballots

a conservative secretary of state.

A progressive Pope and a conservative secretary of state would tend to balance the two groups. The secretary of state is the church's second most important official. The post was last held by Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, but his appointment ended with the death of Pope John XXIII.

Vatican sources reported that the progressive wing of the College of Cardinals was determined to elect one of their faction in order ot carry on Pope John's campaigns for Christian unity and improved relations between the church and the Communist governments.

The cardinals were locked into the conclave area of the Vatican Wednesday night. They entered into a period of isolation to be ended only with the election of Pope John's secessor.

The cardinals and 190 persons assisting and serving them in the conclave area were sworn to keep happenings in the area secret. the outside world's only knowledge comes from the Sistine Chapel smokestack and from the routine prescribed by the rigid rules of the conclave.

This is the routine:

The cardinals attend mass each morning in the Sistine Chapel. They recite the hymn "Veni, Creator Spiritus"—Come O Creating Spirit.

Lots are drawn to decide which cardinals will scrutinize the voting and bring to the chapel the ballots of cardinals too ill to leave their cells.

The ballots are distributed. These are simple forms inscribed with the Latin words, "Eligo in summum ponteficem rev. mum d. meum d. cardinal"—"I elect as supreme pontiff the most rev. my lord cardinal."

The cardinals fold their ballots and carry them to the altar, where they deposit them in a gold chalice. They hold the ballots with only two fingers as they deposit them.

They pause a moment in prayer and say: "I call on the Lord Jesus Christ who must judge me to testify that I am voting for the one who I believe should be elected according to the will of God."

The chalice is shaken to mix the ballots.

One of the cardinals picked to scrutinize the vote takes the ballots one by one from the chalice and puts them in another chalice as he counts them without unfolding them.

If there are as many ballots as cardinals, the counting of the votes starts.

If the number of ballots is not equal to the number of cardinals, then all ballots are sewed into a cloth sack and another vote is ordered.

At the end of each valid vote, the ballots are sewed into a cloth sack. At the end of each voting session the sacks of ballots are placed in the chapel stove.

Ft. Carson Denies Report of Nerve Gas Shipments

of the shells to fire out of them." Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges, commanding general at Ft. Carson, said in reiterating that the division had been issued the launchers only.

He said that the M91 launchers are nothing new and in fact have been used at Ft. Carson for some time in training. He said that the launchers were placed on public display at the post in February.

Heintges said that the only gases at Ft. Carson are tear gas and smoke. Both of these are used in training recruits, he explained.

The general, in denying that the division has the nerve gas rockets, said, however, that "if we went to war tomorrow, we'd no doubt have it — nerve gas — if there was any indication there was going to be any use of gas.

The Ft. Carson information officer, Maj. Warren Mahr, said the announcement, concerning the launchers was issued as a matter of course since he didn't recall ever having pubicized their arrival.

The news release concerning the launchers described them as an "ordinance weapon used by the artillery to fire a chemical round. . . .It is unique in that it replaces no other armament organic to the division."

Each launcher is capable of firing 45 six-foot-long rockets in a 25-second period. A timing device is used to fire the rockets which can cover a target area ranging from 1.7 miles to near 7 miles.

Maj. George Carroll, 5th Division chemical officer, described the rocket launcher as the first such large area weapon designed to spread chemical agents.

Officials said that each rocket is charged with five quarts of liquid GB which is vaporized on impact after firing. In some ways, the agent resembles the mist from an aerosal spray in that it is colorless and leaves a residue in the area which can kill by attacking the nervous system.

Hopper Plague Seen In Northern Colorado

DENVER (UPI)—Colorado agriculture officials and farmers—who were worried about growth of crops until the rains of last weekend—now are worrying about the crops being eaten up.

State Agriculture Commissioner Paul Swisher said a recent survey showed about 25 grasshoppers to the square yard in a 20,000-acre area of Northern Colorado near Lyons.

He said unless immediate action were taken, the infestation could spread widely thrugh other portions of the state.

Swisher said he was contemplating the possibility of forming a pest control district, which would use state and individual monies for spraying the area.

PASSES INSURANCE BILL

CAPITOL STUFF

BY MICHAEL O'NEILL

WASHINGTON — Greatness is created in the forge of crisis, but this is not an inevitable process. There is no guarantee that it will rise now to guide the nation thru its ordeal over civil rights.

Nowhere is this more apparent than in the Congress, where so many men still cling meanly to the laws of parochial interest and expediency — where so few lift their heads above mass emotions to do what is right and good for the nation instead of what is merely profitable politically.

When President Kennedy sends his civil rights program to Congress what Southern senator or representative will have the courage to stand at its side? What Southern will even have the courage to defend the right of the Senate to act and oppose the filibuster?

Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, ranked as one of the great intellects of the Senate, a one-time Rhodes scholar and chairman of the prestigious Foreign Relations Committee, takes pride in his reasoned view of the world and in his liberal philosophy. One might expect him to feel commanded by principle to stand against segregation.

If he were to rise in the well of the Senate and announce his support for futher Negro guarantees-whether they are the administration proposals or not—he would be assured a place in history. Past performance suggests, however, that he will not be so daring that he will remain the captive of political necessity, if not of intellectual conviction.

The result is that Fulbright is likely to be forgotten by history. All of his career, all of his votes, all of his contributions to foreign policy will count for very little when they are measured against his actions in a time of crisis calling for a national consciousness and greatness.

The tragedy of fulbright, of course, is repeated with other Southern leaders. Although some might recognize the rightness of further action to guarantee Negro rights, they tie themselves to the views of the white majorities in their states. Sen. Lister Hill D-Ala., ranked as one of the South's so-called liberals, put it bluntly. He said:

"I was elected by the people of Alabama to represent their views in the greatest lawmaking body in the world, and I intend to do that regardless of the lawless threats of extremists. I will oppose the President's civil rights program with every power in my command .. the filibuster and any other means..."

Hill's comments underline one of the chief sources of criticism of Congress. This is the fact that this institution — even at the height of a momentous "moral crisis" — still seems to be a babble of voices echoing local emotions and narrow sectional interest instead of the overriding national purpose. No one hears the call of courageous leadership; no one feels the force of greatness.

A former senator — President Kennedy — argued eloquently in his book, "Profiles of Courage," that a congressman is not sent to Washington merely to mirror the views of the voters back home, merely to follow their leadership whether it is good or bad. He is sent there to exercise his own best judgment about what is best not only for his own constitutents but for the nation as a whole.

Senators are sworn in by the Vice President, not by the governor of their states. They come to the nation's capital, as Kennedy put it, paraphrasing Edmund Burke, "not as hostile ambassadors or special pleaders for our state of section, in opposition to advocates and agents of other areas, or as members of the deliberative assembly of one nation with one interest."

This principle, which is the bedrock on which the founding fathers built the Congress, means that lawmakers must sometimes go against the whims of will of the voters even at great political risk. "We must, on occasion, lead," Kennedy wrote, "correct and sometimes even ignore constituent opinion, if we are to exercise fully the judgment for which we were elected."

Kennedy argued that in the political profession, above all, a man is expected "to sacrifice all—including his own career — for the national good." This is one of the concepts which has set America's government apart from the parliamentary governments of some other republics. It should be especially governing in moments of great crisis when large issues divide the nation.

Courage and self-sacrifice is not unprecedented in American life, even in Congress. At another time when the problem of civil rights loomed large, Daniel Webster rose above many of his past failings to support Henry Clay's great compromise. He invited the condemnation of his own voters — even of poets—but he defied them all to do what he could to prevent a civil war.

John Quincy Adams, when he was in the Senate, broke with his party, with the officials of his state, with his own voters and with his family to support Jefferson in calling for an embargo against Britain in 1807. He acted even tho Jefferson had defeated his own father for the Presidency.

The late great speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn of Teras, conceoer once that every congressman must represent his constituents to the best of his ability. But this doesn't mean just blindly following them. He said "it's a pretty poor congressman who cannot lead his own district."

With the advent of mass communications and pollsters, many congressmen have taken the easy out of merely reacting to popular opinion rather than attempting to shape it to their own considered views. Somehow or other, the current crisis over civil rights seems to call for something more noble than this.

The coming struggle over new guarantees for Negroes will tell us whether there is still greatness and courage and self-sacrifice in our midst or only the sorry spectacle of another filibuster.

Twins Still Being Killed in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Twins are still being killed by superstitious parents in some parts of Africa, reports Dr. M. D. W. Jeffreys of Witwatersrand University, a social anthropologist.

Writing in the South African Journal of Science, Dr. Jeffreys says, "In some savage communities twins are regarded as extremely lucky and are credited with supernatural powers. In others they are regarded as extremely unlucky and are killed at birth."

Likely explanation for killing off twins, he says, is that the "cult of twins" is part of the ritual of tribes who still tend to believe in sun worship.

Dr. Jeffreys' researches in Mozambique and the southern Camerouns suggest twins are born there twice as often as in the United States.

SHIPS COLLIDE

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI)—The 38-ton Japanese coastal vessel Koho Maru 18 sank early today following a collision with the American freighter Evergreen State.

An intensive search was launched for the helmsman of the Japanese ship, the only one of the 23 crewmen missing following the collision off Gozensaki Cape in Central Honshu Province. The others were picked up by another Japanese vessel.

The American freighter apparently sustained no serious damage.

Flaw Will Send Philatelist Into Delight Spasm

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You don't have to smile when you call a man a philatelist, but sometimes it's hard to keep from it.

Stamp collectors comprise one of the few groups on earth that cherish imperfection. Even the smallest flaw in a postage stamp will send a philatelist into spasms of delight.

This passion for the defective seems a mite curious to those of us who regard the postage stamp merely as something to mail a letter with.

Some of the controversies that shake the philatelic world — as, for example, the inverted printing of the Dag Hammarskjold memorial stamp last fall—are likely to cause a non-philatelist to quiver with amusement.

It doesn't go on sale until July 25, but already an issue has arisen over whether R. M. Bower, who engraved the stamp, negelcted to equip Miss Earheart's likeness with eyebrows.

When I heard about this, I stopped by the department to take a look at the sample and also to inspect a photographic enlargment of the area around her eyes.

Bower, who worked from an old photograph, pictured Miss Earhart boyishly attired in slacks and shirt and standing in front of the silver monoplane in which she disappeared.

To me, her brow seemed as barren of upholstery as that of the Mona Lisa. But when I asked a department press officer whether Bower had indeed omitted her eyebrows, all I got was an enigmatic smile.

The official policy of the postal service is to be as inscrutable as possible. I assume it seeks to avoid giving the stamp an inflated value on the philateiic market, as might be the case if word got out that Bower had goofed.

In addition to the controversy over Miss Earhart's eyebrows, there also has been considerable discussion regarding her facial expression, which I would describe as a "grile," or a cross between a grin and a smile.

She apparently was squinting into the sun when the original photograph was taken. Some philatelists say the engraving presents an optical illusion in which the eyes appear open one moment and closed the next.

Commenting on that, the press officer said "at eight cents, an animated postage stamp might be regarded as one of the better buys of the year."

Australia Fights Big Battle Over New Mazooma

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Australians are squabbling bitterly over whether they should pay two wombats or two dingos for a dozen beers. Others insist that their roos, emus and opals are "real" money, some cry for support to harden the melba and still others plump for a pound or a dollar.

The controversy is over the name Australia should give its new currency when it abandons pounds, shillings and pence in 1965 for decimal coinage.

The present Australian pound will be split into two units—each worth 10 shillings or $1.75. But just what the name of the new unit will be is still not decided.

Federal treasurer Harold Holt says he favors the name "austral" so the currency will have an Australian flavor.

"Stop this damn nonsense." It added that to call any piece of currency an "austral" was "ridiculously parochial."

"Any effort to find a name typically Australian would make the nation look foolish in the eyes of the world," it said.

The Mirror said there was nothing wrong with either the dollar or the pound since both were accepted at the world's financial centers.

But there is strong criticism against any Australian dollar being introduced on grounds that too many countries use the name and it would mean Australia was taking another step towards "Americanization."

So the tussle goes on with Australian animals such as wombat and kangaroos — which have two abbreviations, kanga and roo—the emu, opals and even the nation's famous opera star, Nellie Melba, being mentioned as possible contenders for monetary fame.

Meanwhile, the Australian makes do with his customary quids or sheets (pounds), deeners or bobs (shillings) and coppers or brownies (pennies).

A stated meeting of Snowflake Chapter No. 153, Order of the Eastern Star, was held Friday evening, with the annual election of officers. Elected were: Mrs. Barbara Elwell, worthy matron; Harold Elwell, worthy patron; Mrs. Arylene Benge, associate matron, all of Woodland Park; Vincent Cornett, associate patron, Chipita Park; Mrs. Penny Tillman secretary; Mrs. Laura Jones treasurer, both of Green Mountain Falls and both re-elected: Mrs. Nina Wiggins, conductress and Mrs. Wilma Cornett, associate conductress, both of Chipita Park. Installation of new officers will be held at the September meeting, which will be held at the Masonic Temple, Manitou Springs. The Past Matrons Club of Liberty Chapter No. 108, Fairplay, Colo., presented the 96-year-old Work of 1867, Order of the Eastern Star, at a special meeting Saturday night, held in the Woodland Park High School, as guests of Snowflake Chapter. Directing the "rocking chair" initiation were Jewell Locke and Mamie Young, with Webb Skinner, informer (Master of Ceremonies). Taking part as officers of the 1867 meeting were: Jewell Locke, worthy president; Gerald Galloway, vice president; Nellie Dial, secretary; Martha Hall, conductor; Audrey Roy, treasurer; Madge Gatley, chaplain; Dorothy Angelo, first patron; Elsie Singleton, second patron; Helen Settele, third patron; Mamie Young, fourth patron; Edith Teter, fifth patron; Clair Hall, guard; Pearl Dial, sentinal and Grace Wells, applicant.

The first part of the meeting was the opening of the adoptive Masonry Initiatory Service, followed by the lodge called from Labor in American Adoptive Rite to Labor in the Eastern Star Degree initiatory Service. Music was furnished by Mrs. Molly Galloway, pianist, member of Snowflake Chapter. Mrs. Clair Carvill was accompanied by Mrs. Jane Bonifield in singing "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" and "Beautiful Dreamer." Some 150 persons attended the meeting, with a reception afterwards. Mrs Hermine Bucher was in charge.

Mrs. Maisie Newell, vice president of the Ute Pass Eastern Star Fellowship, presided at its June meeting, held Tuesday, at the home of Mrs. Pauline Shores on Highway 67, with 21 members present, and Mrs. Elmer Tesker of Cascade a guest. Mrs. Bessie Barnes was co-hostess. A devotional topic on "Friendship" was given by Maude Cranmer. Announcement was made of the evening "Fun Night", scheduled for July 18, in the Community Building, Green Mountain Falls. Dessert and coffee will be served at 7:30 p.m., followed by choice of bridge, canasta, checkers, dominoes, pinochle, marbles etc., those at each table bringing their own cards, etc. A white elephant silent auction will be held all evening. Awards will be made and donation for each person will be 50 cents, the proceeds for Snowflake Chapter OES treasury. Mrs. Carolyn McAdams is general chairman, assisted by Barbara Elwell, Polly Lamb, Betty Reasonover, Florence Salisbury, Ruth Elwell, Claire Carvill, Bessie Barnes, Marilyn Wolfe and Helen Sever.

Mrs. G. K. Clark, on Highway 24 entering Cascade, was hostess for the annual picnic meeting of the Ladies Guild, Church in the Wildwood, Green Mountain Falls, on June 12. This was the last meeting of the Guild until fall. The annual bazaar, given by the members, will be held in August, at the Church in the Wildwood. Miss Marguerite McLellan is president of the group.

Members of the Color Slide Club met Saturday night at the home of its new president, Elmer Tesker and Mrs Tesker on Rampart Terrace, to plan for the meetings next year. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Fahl, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Behm, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Steinhorst and Rudy and Kitty Brookshire. At alternate meetings, subjects for slides to be judged will be: September, "Statues", November, "Nature"; January, "Annual Salon", February, "Simplicity"; April, "Sequences" and June, "Miniatures."

Harold Stumbough, choir director for the Church in the Wildwood, invites summer visitors and residents to join the choir, if only for a short time. Soloists are cordially welcome to inform Mr Stumbough. Rehearsals are every Thursday evening at 7:30 at the church in Green Mountain Falls.

The Ute Pass Bible Church conducted its first Vacation Bible School the week of June 10, with an enrollment of 40 children, under the direction of Mrs. John Wonderjim of Woodland Park. Classes were held from 9:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., with a sack lunch at noon, in the Fire House Hall in Cascade. Teachers were Miss Judy McGuire, of Fountain, Colo., for the beginners class; Miss Patsy Cooke of Peyton, primary; Mrs Wonderjim, juniors, and Mrs Jane Hutchens, musician. Other helpers were Cathy Miller, Barbara Slaven and Emily Cash. Mrs Donna Heisch was monitor for the Friday evening program, which was attended by 79 persons. Frank Delp, loaned chairs from the Top of Shop Restaurant Store, to accomodate the crowd.

Beginning with a processional, pledges were given to the American Flag, the Christian Flag and the Bible followed by the hymn, "My Redeemer," by the congregation. Rev Paul Hutchins, pastor of the church gave the welcome and prayer, with Barbara Slaven reading the scripture. The beginners' class sang, "Zachaeus," with verses and certificates were presented. All classes sang "On Calvary." The next was song and verses by the primary class, "Tis Simple As Can Be." Andy Heisch gave an accordion solo, followed by the junior class giving "The Plan of Salvation," "Keeping In Touch," with song and verse and all receiving their certificates. A duet was sung by Marvin and Larry Hey, titled "Now I Believe in Jesus." Kathy, Scott, Linda and Sharon Miller sang a quartet number. An accordion solo was given by Ronda Bachman. After acknowledges and thanks to all, the program ended with an organ solo, "A Mansion Over the Hill," by Ronnie Slaven. Iana, presented colored slides of the camp.

Hopper Plague Seen In Northern Colorado

DENVER (UPI)—Colorado agriculture officials and farmers—who were worried about growth of crops until the rains of last weekend—now are worrying about the crops being eaten up.

State Agriculture Commissioner Paul Swisher said a recent survey showed about 25 grasshoppers to the square yard in a 20,000-acre area of Northern Colorado near Lyons.

He said unless immediate action were taken, the infestation could spread widely thrugh other portions of the state.

Swisher said he was contemplating the possibility of forming a pest control district, which would use state and individual monies for spraying the area.

PASSES INSURANCE BILL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House passed and sent to the Senate Monday a bill which would extend for another two years liberal home financing mortgage insurance now available to low-and-moderate-income families.

Under the law, such families can obtain loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration for up to 40 years with a minimum cash payment of $200. Action on the bill came by voice vote.

CAPITOL STUFF

BY MICHAEL O'NEILL

WASHINGTON — Greatness is created in the forge of crisis, but this is not an inevitable process. There is no guarantee that it will rise now to guide the nation thru its ordeal over civil rights.

Nowhere is this more apparent than in the Congress, where so many men still cling meanly to the laws of parochial interest and expediency — where so few lift their heads above mass emotions to do what is right and good for the nation instead of what is merely profitable politically.

When President Kennedy sends his civil rights program to Congress what Southern senator or representative will have the courage to stand at its side? What Southern will even have the courage to defend the right of the Senate to act and oppose the filibuster?

Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, ranked as one of the great intellects of the Senate, a one-time Rhodes scholar and chairman of the prestigious Foreign Relations Committee, takes pride in his reasoned view of the world and in his liberal philosophy. One might expect him to feel commanded by principle to stand against segregation.

If he were to rise in the well of the Senate and announce his support for futher Negro guarantees—whether they are the administration proposals or not—he would be assured a place in history. Past performance suggests, however, that he will not be so daring that he will remain the captive of political necessity, if not of intellectual conviction.

The result is that Fulbright is likely to be forgotten by history. All of his career, all of his votes, all of his contributions to foreign policy will count for very little when they are measured against his actions in a time of crisis calling for a national consciousness and greatness.

The tragedy of fulbright, of course, is repeated with other Southern leaders. Although some might recognize the rightness of further action to guarantee Negro rights, they tie themselves to the views of the white majorities in their states. Sen. Lister Hill D-Ala., ranked as one of the South's so-called liberals, put it bluntly. He said:

"I was elected by the people of Alabama to represent their views in the greatest lawmaking body in the world, and I intend to do that regardless of the lawless threats of extremists. I will oppose the President's civil rights program with every power in my command .. the filibuster and any other means."

Hill's comments underline one of the chief sources of criticism of Congress. This is the fact that this institution — even at the height of a momentous "moral crisis" — still seems to be a babble of voices echoing local emotions and narrow sectional interest instead of the overriding national purpose. No one hears the call of courageous leadership, no one feels the force of greatness.

A former senator — President Kennedy — argued eloquently in his book, "Profiles of Courage," that a congressman is not sent to Washington merely to mirror the views of the voters back home, merely to follow their leadership whether it is good or bad. He is sent there to exercise his own best judgment about what is best not only for his own constitutents but for the nation as a whole.

Senators are sworn in by the Vice President, not by the governor of their states. They come to the nation's capital, as Kennedy put it, paraphrasing Edmond Burke, "not as hostile ambassadors or special pleaders for our state of section, in opposition to advocates and agents of other areas, but as members of the deliberative assembly of one nation with one interest."

This principle which is the bed rock on which the founding fathers built the Congress means [illegible] go against the whims of will of the voters even at great political risk. "We must, on occasion, lead," Kennedy wrote, "correct and sometimes even ignore constituent opinion, if we are to exercise fully the judgment for which we were elected."

Kennedy argued that in the political profession, above all, a man is expected "to sacrifice all—including his own career — for the national good." This is one of the concepts which has set America's government apart from the parliamentary governments of some other republics. It should be especially governing in moments of great crisis when large issues divide the nation.

Courage and self-sacrifice is not unprecedented in American life, even in Congress. At another time when the problem of civil rights loomed large, Daniel Webster rose above many of his past failings to support Henry Clay's great compromise. He invited the condemnation of his own voters — even of poets—but he defied them all to do what he could to prevent a civil war.

John Quincy Adams, when he was in the Senate, broke with his party, with the officials of his state, with his own voters and with his family to support Jefferson in calling for an embargo against Britain in 1807. He acted even tho Jefferson had defeated his own father for the Presidency.

The late great speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn of Teras, conceder once that every congressman must represent his constituents to the best of his ability. But this doesn't mean just blindly following them. He said "it's a pretty poor congressman who cannot lead his own district."

With the advent of mass communications and pollsters, many congressmen have taken the easy out of merely reacting to popular opinion rather than attempting to shape it to their own considered views. Somehow or other, the current crisis over civil rights seems to call for something more noble than this.

The coming struggle over new guarantees for Negroes will tell us whether there is still greatness and courage and self-sacrifice in our midst or only the sorry spectacle of another filibuster.

Twins Still Being Killed in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Twins are still being killed by superstitious parents in some parts of Africa, reports Dr M D W Jeffreys of Witwatersrand University, a social anthropologist.

Writing in the South African Journal of Science, Dr Jeffreys says, "In some savage communities twins are regarded as extremely lucky and are credited with supernatural powers. In others they are regarded as extremely unlucky and are killed at birth."

Likely explanation for killing off twins, he says, is that the "cult of twins" is part of the ritual of tribes who still tend to believe in sun worship.

Dr Jeffreys' researches in Mozambique and the southern Cameroons suggest twins are born there twice as often as in the United States.

SHIPS COLLIDE

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI) —The 38-ton Japanese coastal vessel Koho Maru 18 sank early today following a collision with the American freighter Evergreen State.

An intensive search was launched for the helmsman of the Japanese ship, the only one of the 23 crewmen missing following the collision off Gozensaki Cape in Central Honshu Province. The others were picked up by another Japanese vessel.

Flaw Will Send Philatelist Into Delight Spasm

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You don't have to smile when you call a man a philatelist, but sometimes it's hard to keep from it.

Stamp collectors comprise one of the few groups on earth that cherish imperfection. Even the smallest flaw in a postage stamp will send a philatelist into spasms of delight.

This passion for the defective seems a mite curious to those of us who regard the postage stamp merely as something to mail a letter with.

Some of the controversies that shake the philatelic world — as, for example, the inverted printing of the Dag Hammarskjold memorial stamp last fall—are likely to cause a non-philatelist to quiver with amusement.

It doesn't go on sale until July 25, but already an issue has arisen over whether R. M. Bower, who engraved the stamp, negelcted to equip Miss Earheart's likeness with eyebrows.

When I heard about this, I stopped by the department to take a look at the sample and also to inspect a photographic enlargment of the area around her eyes.

Bower, who worked from an old photograph, pictured Miss Earhart boyishly attired in slacks and shirt and standing in front of the silver monoplane in which she disappeared.

To me, her brow seemed as barren of upholstery as that of the Mona Lisa. But when I asked a department press officer whether Bower had indeed omitted her eyebrows, all I got was an enigmatic smile.

The official policy of the postal service is to be as inscrutable as possible. I assume it seeks to avoid giving the stamp an inflated value on the philatelic market, as might be the case if word got out that Bower had goofed.

In addition to the controversy over Miss Earhart's eyebrows, there also has been considerable discussion regarding her facial expression, which I would describe as a "grile," or a cross between a grin and a smile.

She apparently was squinting into the sun when the original photograph was taken. Some philatelists say the engraving presents an optical illusion in which the eyes appear open one moment and closed the next.

Commenting on that, the press officer said "at eight cents, an animated postage stamp might be regarded as one of the better buys of the year."

Australia Fights Big Battle Over New Mazooma

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Australians are squabbling bitterly over whether they should pay two wombats or two dingos for a dozen beers. Others insist that their roos, emus and opals are "real" money, some cry for support to harden the melba and still others plump for a pound or a dollar.

The controversy is over the name Australia should give its new currency when it abandons pounds, shillings and pence in 1965 for decimal coinage.

The present Australian pound will be split into two units—each worth 10 shillings or $1.75. But just what the name of the new unit will be is still not decided.

Federal treasurer Harold Holt says he favors the name "austral" so the currency will have an Australian flavor.

"Stop this damn nonsense." It added that to call any piece of currency an "austral" was "ridiculously parochial."

"Any effort to find a name typically Australian would make the nation look foolish in the eyes of the world," it said.

The Mirror said there was nothing wrong with either the dollar or the pound since both were accepted at the world's financial centers.

But there is strong criticism against any Australian dollar being introduced on grounds that too many countries use the name and it would mean Australia was taking another step towards "Americanization."

So the tussle goes on with Australian animals such as wombat and kangaroos — which have two abbreviations, kanga and roo—the emu, opals and even the nation's famous opera star, Nellie Melba, being mentioned as possible contenders for monetary fame.

Meanwhile, the Australian makes do with his customary quids or sheets (pounds), deeners or bobs (shillings) and coppers or brownies (pennies).

Wolves Don't Survive Too Well in Rome

ROME (AP) — A live wolf is kept caged on the hillslope below Rome's city hall in token of the legendary wolf which suckled Romulus and Remus, the city's founders.

But a new wolf has to be caught up in the Abruzzi hills every two or three years to replace the old one. They don't survive well in Rome's blistering summer heat.

Highlights of Civil Rights Proposal Shown

The Problem

The result of continued federal legislative inaction will be continued if not increased racial strife—causing the leadership on both sides to pass from the hands of reasonable and responsible men to the purveyors of hate and violence. This would endanger domestic tranquility, retard the nation's economic and social progress and weaken the respect with which the rest of the world regards this country.

Congress should stay in session this year until it has enacted—preferably as a single omnibus bill—the "most responsible, reasonable and urgently needed solutions to this problem, solutions which should be acceptable to all fair minded men." In addition to earlier recommendations, new legislation should be enacted dealing with public accommodations, employment, federally assisted programs, a community relations service and education. Budget amendments also were requested to improve the training, skills and economic opportunities of the economically distressed and discontented, white and Negro alike. Congress also should enact previously requested legislation to protect Negro voting rights and give the Civil Rights Commission a new four-year lease on life.

Authority was requested for the attorney general to initiate in the federal district courts legal proceedings against local public school boards or public institutions of higher learning to enforce desegregation under certain conditions. Federal money help should be given areas having trouble complying with school desegregation orders.

Additional funds were requested to broaden the manpower development and training program and to finance the pending youth employment bill. Additional funds also should be provided for vocational education to provide a work study program for youth of high school age and to raise the ceiling on adult basic education provisions in the pending education program.

Persons would be given the right to obtain a court order against any hotel, retsauraon tr against any hotel, restaurant or retail store which denies them equal access to its facilities. The attorney general would be authorized to enter the case if he deemed it necessary. Kennedy said this provision would "open doors in every part of the country which never should have been closed."

HIT AND GALLOP

NEW BERLIN, Wis. (UPI)—Police today were on the lookout for a "hit and run horse."

Arthur Lambrecht, 58, told police he stopped his car when confronted by two horses. He said one of the horses jumped on the hood of his auto and butted his head into the windshield, breaking it and showering Lambrecht and his wife with glass.

The horse then climbed off the car and strolled off with its friend.

Free World Oil Negotiations May Be Torpedoed

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., said Wednesday that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro would use his nation's place in the sixth World Petroleum Congress this month to "torpedo free world negotiations."

Simpson, writing in "Republican Trunkline," said there was little doubt the Cubans would go into the congress to press for international cooperation in the Soviet Union's attempt to build an oil pipeline across Europe and to recruit foreign technicians to help nurse along Cuba's crippled refineries.

Simpson said Cuba has no oil resources of its own, but is never the less "viewing the petroleum congress with unusual anticipation.

"If there is an issue on which all Cuban refugees agree, it is the importance of oil to the Caribbean satellite," the senator said. "Most sources feel that the only economic measure that could trigger Castro's downfall would be to cut off all oil imports. Some refugees predict that Castro's military machine would be completely immobilized in less than two months and that Castro's last link with the semblance of national economy would be severed."

Simpson also voiced the fear that the Soviet Union could use its proposed 40-inch pipeline to supply Red troops in divided Berlin with "fuels and lubricants of war."

He noted the pipeline also would carry fuels to ports closer to Cuba than Russia now enjoys, as well as to markets which could provide "brutal economic competition for western oil."

"This is proof that the Communist bloc has learned well the bitter lessons of World War II when shortages of petroleum products, especially fuels, brought certain theaters of the war to a grinding halt. It also proves graphically that oil is still one of the most important elements in the world struggle between Communism and the free world," Simpson said.

Wolves Don't Survive Too Well in Rome

ROME (AP) — A live wolf is kept caged on the hillslope below Rome's city hall in token of the legendary wolf which suckled Romulus and Remus, the city's founders.

But a new wolf has to be caught up in the Abruzzi hills every two or three years to replace the old one They don't survive well in Rome's blistering summer heat.

Highlights of Civil Rights Proposal Shown

The Problem

The result of continued federal legislative inaction will be continued if not increased racial strife —causing the leadership on both sides to pass from the hands of reasonable and responsible men to the purveyors of hate and violence. This would endanger domestic tranquility, retard the nation's economic and social progress and weaken the respect with which the rest of the world regards this country

Congress should stay in session this year until it has enacted—preferably as a single omnibus bill—the "most responsible, reasonable and urgently needed solutions to this problem, solutions which should be acceptable to all fair minded men." In addition to earlier recommendations, new legislation should be enacted dealing with public accommodations, employment, federally assisted programs, a community relations service and education. Budget amendments also were requested to improve the training, skills and economic opportunities of the economically distressed and discontented, white and Negro alike. Congress also should enact previously requested legislation to protect Negro voting rights and give the Civil Rights Commission a new four-year lease on life.

Authority was requested for the attorney general to initiate in the federal district courts legal proceedings against local public school boards or public institutions of higher learning to enforce desegregation under certain conditions. Federal money help should be given areas having trouble complying with school desegregation orders.

Additional funds were requested to broaden the manpower development and training program and to finance the pending youth employment bill. Additional funds also should be provided for vocational education to provide a work study program for youth of high school age and to raise the ceiling on adult basic education provisions in the pending education program.

Persons would be given the right to obtain a court order against any hotel, retsauraon tr against any hotel, restaurant or retail store which denies them equal access to its facilities. The attorney general would be authorized to enter the case if he deemed it necessary. Kennedy said this provision would "open doors in every part of the country which never should have been closed."

HIT AND GALLOP

NEW BERLIN, Wis. (UPI)—Police today were on the lookout for a "hit and run horse."

Arthur Lambrecht, 58, told police he stopped his car when confronted by two horses. He said one of the horses jumped on the hood of his auto and butted his head into the windshield, breaking it and showering Lambrecht and his wife with glass.

The horse then climbed off the car and strolled off with its friend.

Free World Oil Negotiations May Be Torpedoed

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., said Wednesday that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro would use his nation's place in the sixth World Petroleum Congress this month to "torpedo free world negotiations."

Simpson, writing in "Republican Trunkline," said there was little doubt the Cubans would go into the congress to press for international cooperation in the Soviet Union's attempt to build an oil pipeline across Europe and to recruit foreign technicians to help nurse along Cuba's crippled refineries.

Simpson said Cuba has no oil resources of its own, but is never the less "viewing the petroleum congress with unusual anticipation.

"If there is an issue on which all Cuban refugees agree, it is the importance of oil to the Caribbean satellite," the senator said. "Most sources feel that the only economic measure that could trigger Castro's downfall would be to cut off all oil imports. Some refugees predict that Castro's military machine would be completely immobilized in less than two months and that Castro's last link with the semblance of national economy would be severed."

Simpson also voiced the fear that the Soviet Union could use its proposed 40-inch pipeline to supply Red troops in divided Berlin with "fuels and lubricants of war."

He noted the pipeline also would carry fuels to ports closer to Cuba than Russia now enjoys, as well as to markets which could provide "brutal economic competition for western oil."

"This is proof that the Communist bloc has learned well the bitter lessons of World War II when shortages of petroleum products, especially fuels, brought certain theaters of the war to a grinding halt. It also proves graphically that oil is still one of the most important elements in the world struggle between Communism and the free world," Simpson said.

Pricing Policies Not Injurious, Probers Declare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tariff Commission said Wednesday an investigation disclosed that U.S. producers of hot-rolled carbon steel wire rods have not been injured by the pricing policies of Belgian producers of the same product.

The commission had been asked to determine whether the wire rods from Belgium were being sold in this country for prices "at less than fair value" in violation of the U.S. Antidumping Act.

Generally, this law is intended to prevent foreign manufacturers from selling their products at prices in the U.S. which are lower than those charged at home.

The commission said its study indicated that the situation presented "no injury or likelihood thereof" to domestic producers of hot-rolled carbon steel wire rods.

It said that large quantities of imported wire rods were marketed in the U.S. at prices substantially below those for domestic rods, and that the situation "disturbed the integrated domestic producers." However, the opinion added:

"Such disturbance cannot properly be taken into account under the anti dumping act unless attributable in significant part to imports of wire rods sold at less than fair value.

"Less than fair value imports, however, have not been a significant factor in the situation."

Green Mountain Falls News

By CAROLYN McADAMS — MU 7-9065

The sixth annual Vacation Church School at Church in the Wildwood was conducted the week of June 10, with an enrollment of 75 children in classes, seven in the nursery and 22 workers under the co-directors, Helen Quinn, Carolyn Houchin and Jonell Ewart.

Teachers and workers were Beverly Page, CAROL Anderson, Sandy Jolly, Barbara Patterson, Pat Penman, Maxine Van Arsdale; Jan Pettit, Grace Wilson, Martha Crabbs, Doris Pierson, Lucille White, Elaine White, Cheryl Dowden, Judy Lofland, Sharaon Ernst, Susan Todd, Linda Houchin, Jane Dzwons, Irene Sole, and Wini Pyle, with Polly Lamb and Elaine Fine the musicians. Cost of the Nursery School was $55.84, with $37.50 paid by the registration fee of 50 cents per child, and the balance financed by the Junior Guild. Thanks is extended to those who furnished cookies, coolaid and sugar for refreshments each day. Mrs. Helen Quinn, president of the Junior Guild, reported that out of the 75 children registering for the five days there were only three absent.

The noon picnic planned for Friday in Green Mountain Falls Park was held indoors because of rain. The evening program June 14 began at 7:30 in the church sanctuary. Carolyn Houchin was in charge. Each teacher and helper was presented with a carnation corsage and each child given a small wood placque, carved with a mountain and pine tree background and inscribed with the words, "God is Love."

Awards and certificates were presented to each class by its teachers as they stood on the church chancel platform and sang appropriate songs. The theme of the Church School was, "Widening Relations." The preschool class sang, "Thank You, God". The kindergarten class recited a poem in unison and sang, "Let's All Sing Together." The primary class sang, "Jesus Loves Me," first in the American language, then in Chinese language. The Lo-Junior's each held a doll typical of different countries from the doll collection of Ronda Mallett and sang, "America the Beautiful" and "In Christ There is no East and West." The Junior class sang, "God Loves His Children," and "I want to be a Christian."

The closing song was, "Church in the Wildwood," by the congregation. After the program the parents and visitors were served refreshments in Fellowship Hall and visited the class rooms where craftwork and studies that had been accomplished were on display.

Sunday was the first of the summer schedule with two worship services at the Church in the Wildwood, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 10:55 a.m. A Children's Church and an Adult Bible Class will also be conducted at the 9:30 a.m. period, each Sunday. The offertory, "Oh Lovely Peace" (Handel), was a duet sung by Mrs. Norma Lee Miles, Warrensburg, Mo., and Miss Leah Heilig, of Dallas, Tex. The sermon topic was, "Dads and Lads," by Conard Pyle, minister.

A family reunion of four brothers and a sister with their families of 10 children arrived June 17, for a week's vacation in the Ken-Mar apartments. From Seattle, Wash., came Mr. and Mrs. B. Cuthbertson are from Great Bend, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Cuthbertson are from Nickerson, Kan.

Miss Candy Tillman, Miss Jane Ann Carlson, with Miss Sharaon Ryan, were among the twelve delegates from Teller County who attended the 4-H state home economics judging show held at Ft. Collins last week, returning home Friday. The girls were lodged at Allison Hall dormitory. There were over 2,000 4-H boys and girls at the State Fair. Miss Tillman was especially interested in the food cooking demonstration in the experimental ovens for high altitudes.

Mrs. Gay Stafford was assisted by Mrs. Marge Kemp at the open house tea and reception held at Book Worm's Lair for its formal opening June 15 and 16.

Mrs. Hermine Bucher, "Trail's End" residence at Paint Pony Country Club, was given a birthday surprise Wednesday evening by her husband, Clarence Bucher, when neighbors came for a patio supper at 4:30 p.m. Mrs. Bucher's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Landis, Robert and Judy from Dayton, O. had arrived the day before for a visit on their way to San Francisco. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Salisbury, Westwood Lakes, and Mr. and Mrs. L. H. McAdams, Circle D Ranch, on Highway 67.

Electronic War Conducted by U.S., Russians

By COL. RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A fantastic electronic war rivalry is secretly under way between the United States and Russia.

It could push the intercontinental ballistic race into the background. Or rather, it could if the two programs were not so tightly tied together.

Electronic warfare is the use of electronically generated electromagnetic waves to disrupt, "spoof" or degrade radar, radio and wire communications, airplane or missile guidance systems, various automatic fuses and other electronic systems on which defense increasingly depends.

The stakes are big. The Russians aim at electronically nullifying U.S. antimissile defenses, missiles and lessening U.S. ability to command and control military forces. They also aim at preventing the United States from doing the same things to them.

Specifically, the Soviet Union's military men hope by research in electronic warfare to be able to:

Do damage by "radio emission" the "electronic detonators" of American missiles that they will either explode permaturely or not explode at all.

Prevent American planes from effective aerial reconaissance by interfering with their radio - electronic equipment.

Disrupt the operation of ground-based "radio-electronic" apparatus used by American troops, thus undermining the U.S. Army's battlefield command and control system.

Use "radio interference" to disrupt the command and control systems of American anti-missile systems and early warning systems.

Be able to spoof U.S. radar, sonar and other warning systems, thus permitting Red missiles, submarines and aircraft to penetrate American defenses.

The Soviet Union also is stepping up sharply its use of electronic intelligence to keep close tabs on U.S. and Allied military forces — especially troop, air and ship movements. The Soviets are understood to be taking a special interest in tracking the big U.S. aircraft carriers.

In fiscal 1964 the U.S. plans to spend a quarter of a billion dollars —a fourth of the Air Force missile research and development funds — on advanced ballistic reentry systems. These are principally electronic systems for confusing present and future Russian defenses which are aimed at sensing and deterring American ICBMs.

The U.S. Army and Navy likewise have sizable amounts of money here and there in their budgets for electronic warfare.

In general, the U.S. program aims are parallel with those of the Russians.

In an area as secret as electronic warfare, it is difficult to tell who is winning. But indirect States is ahead of the Soviet Union in this critical field. The United States apparently began intensive work on electronic warfare earlier than did the Russians.

But this current U.S. predominance—assuming that it exists—will not prevent the Russians from being able to do a terrible amount of damage in the event of a war.

Defensive electronic warfare is much more difficult and complicated than offensive. The U.S. program on counter electronic warfare has had some remarkable successes. But there are serious problems which need to be solved if we are to prevent serious Soviet interference with future U.S. military posture.

Higher-Priced Federal Maps Are Demanded

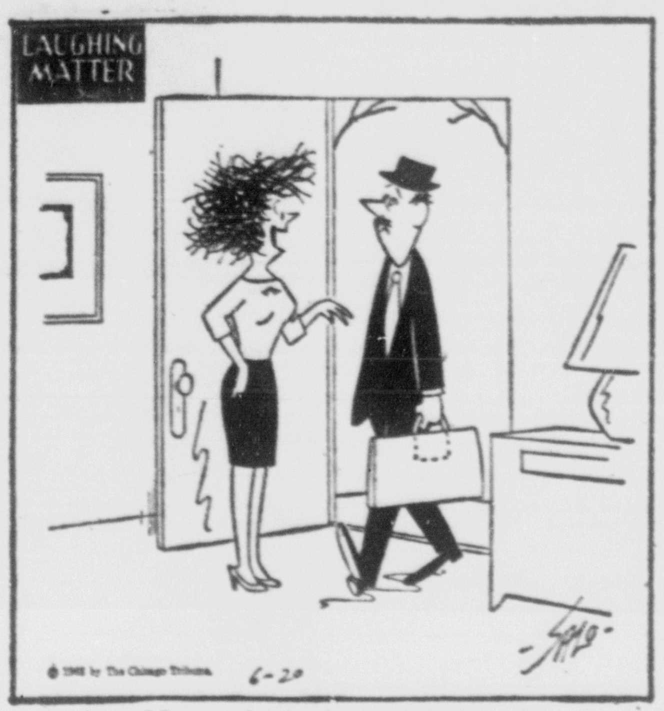
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four Colorado lawmakers urged Congress today to require the Coast and Geodetic Survey to raise its prices for navigational charts and maps.

Sen. Gordon Allott was leadoff witness in behalf of his bill before the Senate Aviation Subcommittee.

"Simply stated," Allott said, "the bill would provide that so long as the United States government produces highly specialized charts used in the aviation industry, it does so by charging the purchasers a realistic price."

Allott said a Denver firm, Jeppesen & Co., was hard put to compete with the government in sales of charts on this basis.

Joining in urging passage of the bill were Sen. Peted Dominick, and Reps. Byron Rogers, and Don Brotzman. Rogers has sponsored a similar bill in the House.



"Guess what kind of car I tried out this afternoon?"

Water Rises Again In Snake River Area

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—Water began cresting Wednesday along the swollen Snake River, which flooded several thousand acres of farm lands in east Idaho and knocked a huge chunk from a dam.

Snake River Watermaster Henry Eagle said the flow of water from Palisades Dam on the Idaho-Wyoming border had been reduced again in an effort to ease the situation.

Tuesday, Palisades was releasing 24,700 second feet into the rain-swollen river. This was cut to 21,900 Tuesday night and then again Wednesday morning to 21,200.

The fast high water knocked out a chunk about 100 feet long and two to three feet deep from a dam at the Idaho Falls. It did not create any hazard, however, and probably will not be repaired until late summer or early fall when the portion would be needed to divert water into the area to serve the power plant.

HEART'S DELIGHT

FALFURRIAS, Tex. (AP)—The exotic pink pompon-like flower known as Heart's Delight is said to grow no where else in the United States except for an expanse near here.

The flower is native to India and it is believed that the seeds were brought to this area in the hair of Brahma cattle imported from that country, or in the fodder sent with the cattle from India.

The sixth annual Vacation Church School at Church in the Wildwood was conducted the week of June 10, with an enrollment of 75 children in classes, seven in the nursery and 22 workers under the co-directors, Helen Quinn, Carolyn Houchin and Jonell Ewart.

Teachers and workers were Beverly Page, CAROL Anderson, Sandy Jolly, Barbara Patterson, Pat Penman, Maxine Van Arsdale; Jan Pettit, Grace Wilson, Martha Crabbs, Doris Pierson, Lucille White, Elaine White, Cheryl Dowden, Judy Lofland, Sharaon Ernst, Susan Todd, Linda Houchin, Jane Dzwons, Irene Sole, and Wini Pyle, with Polly Lamb and Elaine Fine the musicians. Cost of the Nursery School was $55.84, with $37.50 paid by the registration fee of 50 cents per child, and the balance financed by the Junior Guild. Thanks is extended to those who furnished cookies, coolaid and sugar for refreshments each day. Mrs. Helen Quinn, president of the Junior Guild, reported that out of the 75 children registering for the five days there were only three absent.

The noon picnic planned for Friday in Green Mountain Falls Park was held indoors because of rain. The evening program June 14 began at 7:30 in the church sanctuary. Carolyn Houchin was in charge. Each teacher and helper was presented with a carnation corsage and each child given a small wood placque, carved with a mountain and pine tree background and inscribed with the words, "God is Love."

Awards and certificates were presented to each class by its teachers as they stood on the church chancel platform and sang appropriate songs. The theme of the Church School was, "Widening Relations." The preschool class sang, "Thank You, God". The kindergarten class recited a poem in unison and sang, "Let's All Sing Together." The primary class sang, "Jesus Loves Me," first in the American language, then in Chinese language. The Lo-Junior's each held a doll typical of different countries from the doll collection of Ronda Mallett and sang, "America the Beautiful" and "In Christ There is no East and West." The Junior class sang, "God Loves His Children," and "I want to be a Christian."

The closing song was, "Church in the Wildwood," by the congregation. After the program the parents and visitors were served refreshments in Fellowship Hall and visited the class rooms where craftwork and studies that had been accomplished were on display.

Sunday was the first of the summer schedule with two worship services at the Church in the Wildwood, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. and 10:55 a.m. A Children's Church and an Adult Bible Class will also be conducted at the 9:30 a.m. period, each Sunday. # Electronic War Conducted by U.S., Russians

By COL. RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A fantastic electronic war rivalry is secretly under way between the United States and Russia.

It could push the intercontinental ballistic race into the background. Or rather, it could if the two programs were not so tightly tied together.

Electronic warfare is the use of electronically generated electromagnetic waves to disrupt, "spoof" or degrade radar, radio and wire communications, airplane or missile guidance systems, various automatic fuses and other electronic systems on which defense increasingly depends.

The stakes are big. The Russians aim at electronically nullifying U.S. antimissile defenses, missiles and lessening U.S. ability to command and control military forces. They also aim at preventing the United States from doing the same things to them.

Specifically, the Soviet Union's military men hope by research in electronic warfare to be able to:

Do damage by "radio emission" the "electronic detonators" of American missiles that they will either explode permaturely or not explode at all.

Prevent American planes from effective aerial reconaissance by interfering with their radio - electronic equipment.

Disrupt the operation of ground-based "radio-electronic" apparatus used by American troops, thus undermining the U.S. Army's battlefield command and control system.

Use "radio interference" to disrupt the command and control systems of American anti-missile systems and early warning systems.

Be able to spoof U.S. radar, sonar and other warning systems, thus permitting Red missiles, submarines and aircraft to penetrate American defenses.

The Soviet Union also is stepping up sharply its use of electronic intelligence to keep close tabs on U.S. and Allied military forces — especially troop, air and ship movements. The Soviets are understood to be taking a special interest in tracking the big U.S. aircraft carriers.

In fiscal 1964 the U.S. plans to spend a quarter of a billion dollars —a fourth of the Air Force missile research and development funds — on advanced ballistic reentry systems. These are principally electronic systems for confusing present and future Russian defenses which are aimed at sensing and deterring American ICBMs.

The U.S. Army and Navy likewise have sizable amounts of money here and there in their budgets for electronic warfare.

In general, the U.S. program aims are parallel with those of the Russians.

In an area as secret as electronic warfare, it is difficult to tell who is winning. But indirect States is ahead of the Soviet Union in this critical field. The United States apparently began intensive work on electronic warfare earlier than did the Russians.

But this current U.S. predominance—assuming that it exists—will not prevent the Russians from being able to do a terrible amount of damage in the event of a war.

Defensive electronic warfare is much more difficult and complicated than offensive. The U.S. program on counter electronic warfare has had some remarkable successes. But there are serious problems which need to be solved if we are to prevent serious Soviet interference with future U.S. military posture.

Higher-Priced Federal Maps Are Demanded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four Colorado lawmakers urged Congress today to require the Coast and Geodetic Survey to raise its prices for navigational charts and maps.

Sen. Gordon Allott was leadoff witness in behalf of his bill before the Senate Aviation Subcommittee.

"Simply stated," Allott said, "the bill would provide that so long as the United States government produces highly specialized charts used in the aviation industry, it does so by charging the purchasers a realistic price."

Allott said a Denver firm, Jeppesen & Co., was hard put to compete with the government in sales of charts on this basis.

Joining in urging passage of the bill were Sen. Peter Dominick and Reps. Byron Rogers and Don Brotzman. Rogers has sponsored a similar bill in the House.

Water Rises Again In Snake River Area

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—Water began cresting Wednesday along the swollen Snake River, which flooded several thousand acres of farm lands in east Idaho and knocked a huge chunk from a dam.

Snake River Watermaster Henry Eagle said the flow of water from Palisades Dam on the Idaho-Wyoming border had been reduced again in an effort to ease the situation.

Tuesday, Palisades was releasing 24,700 second feet into the rain-swollen river. This was cut to 21,900 Tuesday night and then again Wednesday morning to 21,200.

The fast high water knocked out a chunk about 100 feet long and two to three feet deep from a dam at the Idaho Falls. It did not create any hazard, however, and probably will not be repaired until late summer or early fall when the portion would be needed to divert water into the area to serve the power plant.

Tax Cut May Have to Wait Another Year

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern resentment against President Kennedy's sweeping civil rights program may make it impossible to enact a tax cut until next year, if then.

Congressional sources close to the strategy behind the President's $10-billion tax cut proposal said today the situation shapes up like this:

The bill faces the possibiity of a slowdown in the House, but administration forces there calculate they still have a reasonable chance of passing it this year.

In the Senate, however, the outlook is dimmer. Even if the bill moves on schedule through the House, it's doubtful Congress will remain in session long enough to allow time for protracted Senate hearings and debate on the measure. Any delay in the House would lengthen the odds against passage this year.

Backers of the tax measure are haunted by what they regard as two ominous possibilities:

1. Southern members under pressure to fight civil rights bills tooth and toenail will feel obliged to build up an anti-Kennedy voting record on all issues—including the tax bill

2. The civil rights fight, including an almost inevitable filibuster, could break out in he Senate while that body's Finance Committee still has the tax measure under consideration. In that case, Chairman Harry Flood Byrd, D-Va., has said, he will suspend sessions on the fiscal bill while the civil rights debate is on.

Byrd is one of three Southern committee chairmen who more than other members control the fate of the tax measure. The others are Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee which is still writing the bill, and Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the House Rules Committee, to which the bill must go for clearance.

Mills' committee suspended sessions on the tax measure Wednesday, a few hours before the civil rights message was read in the House.

The suspension, which committee sources said might continue for a week or 10 days, was in line with previously disclosed plans to let the committee staff, which is drafting into legislative form the provisions already agreed on, catch up with the committee's decisions.

But the delay can easily be prolonged if Mills and other leaders feel the mood of the House makes it unduly risky to bring the issue to a vote in July, the long-established date.

Indications are that, if the final Senate vote on the tax bill does not come until next year, administration leaders still will try to make any tax cuts retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

Race Demonstration Practice Arranged

GRUESOME RELIC

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An item of equipment which hasn't been used in this century was found recently in a dark storage spot beneath the Montgomery County jail.

It's a hangman's scaffold. Records show it last was used June 15, 1877, when a Union Army veteran — charged with bashing in a companion's head to get his money—was hanged.

Other Battles Bloodier Than Gettysburg

IN ROLLING FIELDS

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (NEA) — Of the 20 major battles of the Civil War, Gettysburg is by far the most famous. Other battles were bloodier for the time they lasted (Antietam), more decisive in their outcome (Appomattox), or even more brilliantly conducte (Chancellorsville), but Gettysburg had everything.

For three days more than 160,000 men struggled; 50,000 of them were casualties. Then, as if to fix Gettysburg forever in the American memory, Abraham Lincoln went to the little town on Nov. 19, 1863, to dedicate a soldiers' cemetery where he spoke the most eloquent words inspired by the war.

July 1 to 3 will be the 100th anniversary of Gettysburg. This will be the fourth observance of the battle. The 25th anniversary in 1888 was well attended by vigorous middle-aged veterans.

In 1913, the 50th anniversary was celebrated by bringing together all the surviving veterans of the Union and Confederate Armies who wanted to come and were able to travel. Some 62,000 elderly men lived for three days in hundreds of army tents on the field which had been the scene of Pickett's Charge.

The last big reunion, the 75th, took place in 1938, when only 1,845 veterans (average age 94) could be present, although 8,000 were still alive. President Roosevelt dedicated the eternal Light Peace Memorial and lighted the flame intended to burn forever.

For the celebration of the 100th Anniversary a new Vistiros' Center has been built on the field. It houses the famous Cyclorama of Pickett's Charge, painted by Paul Philippoteaux in 1883, when many of the men who took part in that famous encounter were still alive and could tell the French artist about their experiences.

In this building, the visitor first enters an auditorium where a 15-minute illustrated talk informs him about what there is to see and do. Then displays of weapons, maps, and relics clarify the development of the three-day battle.

A number of realistic dioramas re-create what happened. After this preparatory survey, visitors are free to explore the huge field.

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (NEA) — Of the 20 major battles of the Civil War, Gettysburg is by far the most famous. Other battles were bloodier for the time they lasted (Antietam), more decisive in their outcome (Appomattox), or even more brilliantly conducte (Chancellorsville), but Gettysburg had everything.

For three days more than 160,000 men struggled; 50,000 of them were casualties. Then, as if to fix Gettysburg forever in the American memory, Abraham Lincoln went to the little town on Nov. 19, 1863, to dedicate a soldiers' cemetery where he spoke the most eloquent words inspired by the war.

July 1 to 3 will be the 100th anniversary of Gettysburg. This will be the fourth observance of the battle. The 25th anniversary in 1888 was well attended by vigorous middle-aged veterans.

In 1913, the 50th anniversary was celebrated by bringing together all the surviving veterans of the Union and Confederate Armies who wanted to come and were able to travel. Some 62,000 elderly men lived for three days in hundreds of army tents on the field which had been the scene of Pickett's Charge.

The last big reunion, the 75th, took place in 1938, when only 1,845 veterans (average age 94) could be present, although 8,000 were still alive. President Roosevelt dedicated the eternal Light Peace Memorial and lighted the flame intended to burn forever.

For the celebration of the 100th Anniversary a new Vistiros' Center has been built on the field. It houses the famous Cyclorama of Pickett's Charge, painted by Paul Philippoteaux in 1883, when many of the men who took part in that famous encounter were still alive and could tell the French artist about their experiences.

In this building, the visitor first enters an auditorium where a 15-minute illustrated talk informs him about what there is to see and do. Then displays of weapons, maps, and relics clarify the development of the three-day battle.

A number of realistic dioramas re-create what happened. After this preparatory survey, visitors are free to explore the huge field.

Tax Cut May Have to Wait Another Year

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern resentment against President Kennedy's sweeping civil rights program may make it impossible to enact a tax cut until next year, if then.

Congressional sources close to the strategy behind the President's $10-billion tax cut proposal said today the situation shapes up like this:

The bill faces the possibility of a slowdown in the House, but administration forces there calculate they still have a reasonable chance of passing it this year.

In the Senate, however, the outlook is dimmer. Even if the bill moves on schedule through the House, it's doubtful Congress will remain in session long enough to allow time for protracted Senate hearings and debate on the measure. Any delay in the House would lengthen the odds against passage this year.

Backers of the tax measure are haunted by what they regard as two ominous possibilities:

1. Southern members under pressure to fight civil rights bills tooth and toenail will feel obliged to build up an anti-Kennedy voting record on all issues—including the tax bill

2. The civil rights fight, including an almost inevitable filibuster, could break out in he Senate while that body's Finance Committee still has the tax measure under consideration. In that case, Chairman Harry Flood Byrd, D-Va., has said, he will suspend sessions on the fiscal bill while the civil rights debate is on.

Byrd is one of three Southern committee chairmen who more than other members control the fate of the tax measure. The others are Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee which is still writing the bill, and Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the House Rules Committee, to which the bill must go for clearance.

Mills' committee suspended sessions on the tax measure Wednesday, a few hours before the civil rights message was read in the House.

The suspension, which committee sources said might continue for a week or 10 days, was in line with previously disclosed plans to let the committee staff, which is drafting into legislative form the provisions already agreed on, catch up with the committee's decisions.

But the delay can easily be prolonged if Mills and other leaders feel the mood of the House makes it unduly risky to bring the issue to a vote in July, the long-established date.

Indications are that, if the final Senate vote on the tax bill does not come until next year, administration leaders still will try to make any tax cuts retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

Race Demonstration Practice Arranged

PLAQUEMINE, La. (AP)—City officials turned on the lights at a ball park here so Negroes could practice for a demonstration.

Police Chief Dennis Songy said Negro leaders promised to advise him a day or so prior to a planned demonstration.

GRUESOME RELIC

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — An item of equipment which hasn't been used in this century was found recently in a dark storage spot beneath the Montgomery County jail.

It's a hangman's scaffold. Records show it last was used June 15, 1877, when a Union Army veteran — charged with bashing in a companion's head to get his money—was hanged.

Man Booked On Forgery Complaint

John David Friestuhler, 23, of 2205 E. Yampa St. was booked into county jail Wednesday following a signed complaint alleging forgery, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Sheriff's Detective Woodrow Littrell, Richard Tait, manager of Miller's Food Bank, Knob Hill, came to him with an Army and Air Exchange check for $91.58. It was made payable to Ernest E. Lewis and bore a signature, "Ernest E. Lewis" which Tait said was a forgery. The true Lewis had signed an affadavit swearing this was not his handwriting.

Tait told the detective that the check had been cashed by Friestuhler who was then picked up and brought to the sheriff's office. When confronted by his picture which was taken at the time the check was cashed he first denied the matter, the report says, but later admitted stealing the check when he was in the office at Ent and endorsing it with Lewis's name.

RESCUE ACT RECOGNIZED — Boy Scout Charles Oliver Wednesday received a Boy Scout life saving certificate of merit for rescuing a friend during a severe rain storm a week ago. Holley, scoutmaster of Troop 14, of which young Oliver is a member, and the boys mother, Mrs. C. L. Oliver, 1428 Tweed St. Young Oliver saved John Sutter, 2023 Winston Rd., from a rain-swept culvert near Constitution Avenue and McArthur Street by throwing him a garden hose and helping him to safety.

Largest Class to Get Taste of Academy Life

Approximately 850 young men from thruout the United States and one foreign country will begin an intensive eight-week basic training course at 7:30 a.m.

The first three days of their stay at the Academy will be devoted to processing. They will be guided thru this phase by Academy NCO's and airmen.

During this phase the cadets of the Class of 1967 will complete all necessary administrative procedures; be issued clothing and equipment; be introduced to "shots" and receive squadron orientation to learn what will be expected of them in the immediate weeks ahead.

Included among the cadets, as last year, will be a "Doolie" from the Philippine Islands.

The Virgin Islands are also expected to send one cadet — the first from an American possession.

A specially selected cadre of Academy first classmen will take over the training of basic cadets immediately following the oath of allegiance ceremony and commandant of cadets briefing Wednesday evening. The oath will be administered by Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr., commandant of cadets.

Basic cadet training at the Academy serves to receive, process, and equip new cadets; to develop in them a strong sense of duty and honor; to provide training in basic military subjects; to develop physical fitness; to motivate the basic cadet for cadet life, and to permit first classmen to develop their command leadership and instructor abilities.

After testing in mathematics, chemistry, English, and reading ability, basic cadets begin instruction in a wide variety of topics, including the cadet honor code, professional ethics, military customs and courtesies, military justice, drill and manual of arms and many others.

Cadets will drill with the M-1 rifle, learn to disassemble and assemble the infantry's standard weapon, and will fire it on the range for familiarization. They wil also be trained with the 38 caliber revolver — standard Air Force side arm — and will fire the weapon for record.

Each basic cadet, after an intesive "short course" in the problems of high altitude flight, will receive an orientation ride in both a T-33 jet trainer and a conventional T-29 twin engined aircraft.

Survival training consists of five days in the Pike National Forest during which the basics are instructed in survival techniques by upper classmen and a team of NCO's from the Air Force Survival School at Stead AFB, Nev.

A basic cadet field day winds up the intensive summer training. Competiton is keen among the eight squadrons into which the cadets are formed. A guidon streamer presented by the commandant of cadets awaits the unit making the best showing.

The new fourth classmen will receive their shoulder boards and hat insignia — symbols they have taken the first step on the road to graduation and an Air Force commission.

Commissioners Set New Rules For All Plats

El Paso County Commissioners passed a resolution Tuesday which requires that all plats finally approved after Sept. 1, 1963 must meet the following requirements:

A central sewer and water system must be included for all developments on tracts of 2½ acres or less.

The resolution provides that individual water and sewer systems will be approved only on tracts consisting of five acres or more.

Commissioners held a pubic hearing on the proposed resolution May 27 which was attended by local sub-dividers and developers who voiced approval of the sewer and water requirements. The resolution had been under advisement since the hearing.

Work Under Way on New Water Plant at Florence

Work on the new Florence water plant, which is expected to be completed and in operation by September, is under way and progressing rapidly, according to City Manager Frank Carochi, who made the first preliminary report on the plant construction to the city council Monday night.

Tony Beltramo, Canon City, was awarded the excavating contract for the new plant, and last Thursday began moving dirt for the huge standpipe which will be located on the West Mesa.

If present construction speed is maintained, Carochi indicated that concrete may be poured at the site this week and excavation will be well along on the basement area of the pump station and main building unit.

Four truck loads of pipe, or about 85 tons of the 200 hundred tons of pipe needed for the job, have already been delivered to the site and the general contractor, BBS Construction company, has sent in its superintendent, Art L. Adams, to work with engineers from the firm of Stearns-Rogers.

The biggest phase of the job will be the excavating and concrete work, Carochi explained. He noted that specifications call for about 800 yards of cement at the plant site.

In other business at the council meeting Monday night, city fathers interviewed William A. Young who proposed to the council that it hire his company, Silvercliff Products Corporation, to seal the two city reservoirs with tripilets at a cost of $5,800.

Young, who is in partnership with L. W. Patton, told the council that they would guarantee a permanent sealing job with the newly-developed material.

Young, who brought endorsements for his product from the soil conservation service and a larger rancher in the Colorado Springs area, asked the council to consider his proposal on the basis of $2,900 if the council approved of the measure and the remainder when the sealing was proved satisfactory. The council is now taking the proposal under advisement and will further investigate jobs done by the firm.

Reporting on the recent drought-breaking rains in the area, Manager Carochi told the council that both Adobe and Newlin creeks are bringing in two inches of water or more and if normal summer rains continue the critical shortage will be broken in Florence.

The council, in more routine business, granted a release of a lien on property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dunn on Midland Avenue involving paving and adopted Ordinance No. 503 on second reading making possible the transfer of cemetery funds.

The meeting was concluded with a heated discussion on the collection of delinquent water accounts with the council insisting that water be turned off on accounts with overdue and unpaid balances.

Gold Camp Picnic Set July 7

The 15th annual Cripple Creek-Victor District Club picnic will be held July 7 at the Chuck Wagon site in the Garden of the Gods.

H. J. "Jolly" Johnson of Manitou Springs, club president, said activities will get under way at 10 a.m. on that day.

At least 15 musicians from the Cripple Creek-Victor High School band will be on hand to provide entertainment at the picnic. Picnic kits will be provided so that youngsters can play various games.

Those who plan to attend should bring their own basket lunch, Johnson said. The club will furnish coffee, cream and sugar.

The picnic annually attracts many of the former Gold Campers who now reside in the Pikes Peak region, plus many now living in Victor and Cripple Creek.

Johnson said some former Cripple Creek and Victor residents now residing elsewhere in the United States plan their vacations in order to attend the picnic and renew old acquaintances.

"All former residents of the Gold Camp are invited to attend the annual picnic," Johnson said. Indications are already that more persons will attend this picnic than any one in the previous history of the club.

Driver Found Not Guilty In City Court

A woman charged with following too close was found not guilty Wednesday in Municipal Court when she used as her defense a game she said is played by local teenagers.

"They get in front of cars and keep slamming on their brakes," said Mary Lawman, 45, 914 E. Platte Ave., in explaining why she hit a car in front of her June 14 at Wahsatch Avenue and Bijou Street.

"Because of the erratic driving by the boy in front of me," Miss Lawman said, "it was impossible for me to control the speed of my car."

Judge Allan Asher accepted her defense, adding that these were facts that the officer who cited her could not see.

John Murphy, 55, 727 E. Pikes Peak Ave., pleaded guilty to a charge of taking the right of way and was fined $10.

The Judge ordered bonds of $25 each be forfeited by John Duran, 69, 335 W. Costilla, and James Kennis, 31, 425 N. El Paso, who failed to appear in court on drunk charges.

Doris Bryson, 43, of Denver, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was given a 10-day suspended jail sentence on condition that she return to Denver and not come back to Colorado Springs within a year's time.

Merna Kay Voorhees, 19, of Chadron, Neb., pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge and was given a 20-day jail sentence.

Name Calling, Fight Brings Fines to Three in Court

Two Ft. Carson soldiers who had on May 31 exhibited indignant displeasure at being called "black niggers" by a local white man aired their racial resentment Wednesday in a hearing in Municipal Court.

The soldiers, James White, 19, and Jesse Willis, 21, and Dennis Solberg, 23, 2910 N. Tejon St., had be cited for riotous conduct by Patrolman Victor Morris who testified that he broke up their three-way fight May 31 in the 00 block of South Nevada Avenue.

Willis and White had previously pleaded guilty but disposition had been continued by Judge Allan Asher until Wednesday as Solberg had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The two soldiers testified that as they were crossing the street, White had heard Solberg refer to them as "black niggers." When White asked the defendant to repeat his remark, Willis said, with an apology to the court, that Solberg had called them "black SOBs."

Willis said White then suggested "Let's get him," and admitted that they tied into Solberg.

Alfred Wilson, a white soldier from Carson, testified that he had witnessed the fray, had heard the offensive remarks, but added that after the fight broke up, Solberg started after the two Negroes, "still looking for trouble."

Solberg's story was that as he stepped off the curb, the two soldiers had pushed him off the crosswalk.

"I called them something; I do not remember," he said.

When Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac persisted, Solberg admitted he had used the term "nigger."

"You're aware that's a fightin word?" Isaac asked, but got only a "well" in reply.

Judge Asher agreed that the two soldiers might have had provocation for their actions but advised them that the "test of a mature, intelligent person is that he does not fight at the drop of a hat."

He found both guilty as charged, and fined each $25.

Addressing his next remark to Solberg, Judge Asher said, "We don't impugn other people's races, religions or nationalities."

He found Solberg guilty and fined him $40.

Nature Gives Spruce Budworm Fight an Assist

Unknown natural factors have so reduced the larva population of the spruce budworm, which defoliates spruce and fir trees, that aerial spraying of insecticide over 3,000 acres of National Forest land which had been scheduled to begin this week may not be necessary in the Pike Forest, G. E. Weidenhaft, supervisor, announced today. He said that field investigations in 1962 showed that the spruce budworm had been building up to epidemic proportions in Douglas fir timber stands. It was a threat to Christmas trees.

Weidenhaft said that last minute field checks by Forest Service personnel indicated that unknown natural factors have miraculously entered in to reduce the insect larva population to a low level.

A DDT mixture not to exceed one gallon per acre was to be deployed from helicopters under contract from Sky Hook, Inc., of Durango, Colo.

Plans had been carefully prepared to avoid residential areas as well as lakes, streams, and other open water.

Owners of private land adjacent to the areas to be sprayed had been contacted by the Forest Service and were fully co-operating in the project.

Continued field studies conducted in August will provide additional follow-up information and indicate if the downward trend in this insect's population is continuing, Weidenhaft said. These studies will be conducted by insect biologists from the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station in Fort Collins. Insect egg count surveys will be included in these studies. Both live and dead larva are already being collected by the insect biologists.

The larva will be studied to determine the cause which has resulted in halting an epidemic which threatened thousands of Douglas fir Christmas trees.

Hit, Run Count Brings $50 Fine

Price Eugene Thomas was fined $50 and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Wednesday for hit and run. Price, 33, of 2414 N. Chestnut St. was ticketed Dec. 15 on East Willamette Street by Police Cpl. Q. K. Conrad.

Driving at 96 miles per hour in a 60 zone on U.S. Highway 24 cost a Rush man, Mayo Benton Anderson, 18, $35 and costs. The officer was State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey.

Morrissey also cited Clifford Eugene Miller, 21, of 1349 Diana Lane, and charged him with driving a non-registered vehicle and having no registration card in his car June 13. The incident happened on U.S. Highway 24 and a $10 fine and costs was imposed.

Clark Neil Brown was ticketed by State Patrolman C. V. Hubbard as he had no valid operator's license when driving on U.S. Highway 85-87 Monday. Brown, 41, of 1122 N. Corona St. paid a $5 fine and costs.

Joseph Romauld Hackel, 31, of the Black Forest, received a $5 fine and costs for not having his headlights on when visibility was less than 500 feet. He was served the summons Saturday on U. S. Highway 86-87 by Hubbard.

Fremont Gets Share of Heavy Rains

Heavy weekend rains have temporarily broken the drought in eastern Fremont county after nearly 100 days of little or no moisture.

In the Beaver Park area, Nick Goodall, manager of the Beaver Park company, reported this week that rain in the amount of 1:46 inches was measured during the break in the dry weather.

The Brush Hollow reservoir received an added boost about 8 p.m. Monday when a small flash flood which hit northwest of Penrose brought up the reservoir's water level by 100 acre feet.

Highway 115 in the area was partially blocked by the flood waters which swept over the highway at one point.

In Florence, hail caused some minor damage Saturday before the rain storm. However, Penrose and its big apple crop escaped any hail damage.

Over an inch of rain fell in the Florence area and brought welcomed water down Newlin and Adobe creeks on the city's south watershed.

Rain was measured Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in eastern Fremont county.

In Canon City the rain measured 1.01 inch and at Westcliffe the rain measured over ½-inch. The Arkansas river was reported to have raised about 200 second feet following the storm.

Why Toss Mature Brains on Scrap Heap?

By DR. JOSEPH PECK

There are enough brains growing moldy in the Sun Cities to run the United Nations, Congress and the World Bank.

What a pity the big companies retire even the bosses at age 65 to encourage young executives. This accent on youth, experienced or not, is contributing to our unrest. In a world where a man cannot get a job much before 30, because he must first get a college education, and cannot get work after 45, because he is too old, the turnover in personnel looks like a revolving door. No man is worth a hoot to his organization until he has at least five years experience in applying his college learning to the problems that were never even mentioned in college.

My complaining is not the result of self-interest. The retirement act did not push me out of the work-a-day world, because I was a self-employed physician.

I thought it best to call upon some of my friends in the business world to get their opinions of enforced retirement and the following is from a former utilities executive.

"In my opinion the retirement of men at 65 results in a colossal waste of talent, know-how and experience, which this country or any other cannot afford to lose. In our company we could have retained thousands of healthy, talented and experienced men past 65. Most of them would not then have applied for social security. All the misery and waste they suffer could have been avoided had the company retired for cause only, and kept the efficient ones on the payroll as long as they were useful. There is nothing that so undermines a man's well-being as the feeling he is neither needed or wanted in the world that was his life for so many years.

"This hobby business is much over-rated. A man is so fixed in the pattern of his life's work that when he tries to manufacture a replacement after 65, he comes up minus a few fingers or a hand sacrificed to the little work shop in his basement, a thing that has happened to many men I know."

FAREWELL, DEAR OL' BEN!
HODGINS JR

Youth takes direct action.

* * *

There is a wealth of scientific data to prove that a man of 65 is as efficient or even more so at jobs requiring patience and well-learned skills. As an office man he is a bit slower, but not so liable to go off half-cocked as his younger associate, and he can continue to hold up his end in tasks that are routine.

The Peck Plan

When a man reaches the age of 60, a board should be convened to evaluate his case; if he is not delivering the goods, he should be encouraged to retire at the legal date, and if he is still efficient, he should be allowed to remain at work, if he so chooses. This board should review his case every year he works after 65; and when he begins to lag, either advise him to retire or to take some other job he can handle satisfactorily without feeling he has been cast aside to die of rust and obsolescence.

Companies may think they are being kind to the oldster by adding to his social sercurity in proportion to his length of service, but it is absolutely ridiculous to call an efficient employe in for a big dinner, present him with a bag of golf clubs and tell him "All right, Willy, you can run and play now and don't come back." Such treatment will hasten senility or a complete physical and mental breakdown.

There are 17 million of us old folks who would like to go out of this life looking the black angel straight in the eye, instead of getting prodded from behind like stockyard cattle going up the chute to the killing floor. There must be some way in which we oldsters who prefer the wound in front can be spared the bovine manner of meeting death.

Could not the law be changed so a man who works after age 65 might be classed as self-employed, pay his own social security taxes and still remain on the payroll as long as he was useful? This would relieve his company of some expense.

Give the oldster a chance to be labor without deductions at 72.

Many critics will hail my idea as a warmed-over Townsend plan. I am not sure that this might not be accepted as a compliment. We all thought poor old Dr. Townsend was crazy in those days of financial darkness before Harvard's economists brought forth the light, but maybe he just lived before his time. Today, we have out-Townsend'ed the old man's happy dream.

The Unhappy Ending

The most unhappy man is one who knows his life's work is done. No matter how much he has put away in the bank for his years of idleness and for his kids to fight over, when he gets up in the morning and knows that all he has to anticipate is another useless day, what expectations remain for him except the end and the adventure that lies beyond the curtain? It is a nightmare that comes to him in the wee small hours of the night, and he lies there half dreading, half longing for this, the last great adventure.

Society may like to picture him as a jolly playboy, but in fact he is more like a poor old buck who has been driven out of the herd by the younger bulls, lost his antlers and been treated with a casual indifference by the female who once thrilled to his touch, and, knowingly or subconsciously, prays for the huntsman's bullet.

Social security and old age pen- self-supporting for as much time as possible out of his remaining seven years of probation before he can once again enter the ranks of sions make him a bum, not lord of the manor and head of the clan as he was expected to be by his creator.

While he was working, his family could share the illusion that each morning he was going out into the business jungle and that he might possibly bring home a saber-toothed tiger or a bunch of mink skins in the shape of a pay raise or a killing in the market.

Once he was retired, that beautiful dream ended. His wife knew what his income would be, and, to add to the insult, her name appeared upon the social security check right along with his. Now, her work was made more of a drudgery than ever, because he was underfoot most of the time. Her need for him in a sexual way was forgotten, and like the boss down at the office she began to see him as just so much extra baggage. Unlike the boss she could not discard him upon the first handy junk heap.

Man Booked On Forgery Complaint

John David Friestuhler, 23, of 2205 E. Yampa St. was booked into county jail Wednesday following a signed complaint alleging forgery, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Sheriff's Detective Woodrow Littrell, Richard Tait, manager of Miller's Food Bank, Knob Hill, came to him with an Army and Air Exchange check for $91.58. It was made payable to Ernest E. Lewis and bore a signature, "Ernest E. Lewis" which Tait said was a forgery. The true Lewis had signed an affadavit swearing this was not his handwriting.

Tait told the detective that the check had been cashed by Friestuhler who was then picked up and brought to the sheriff's office. When confronted by his picture, which was taken at the time the check was cashed he first denied the matter, the report says, but later admitted stealing the check when he was in the office at Ent and endorsing it with Lewis's name.

Driver Found Not Guilty In City Court

A woman charged with following too close was found not guilty Wednesday in Municipal Court when she used as her defense a game she said is played by local teenagers.

"They get in front of cars and keep slamming on their brakes," said Mary Lawman, 45, 914 E. Platte Ave., in explaining why she hit a car in front of her June 14 at Wahsatch Avenue and Bijou Street.

"Because of the erratic driving by the boy in front of me," Miss Lawman said, "it was impossible for me to control the speed of my car."

Judge Allan Asher accepted her defense, adding that these were facts that the officer who cited her could not see.

John Murphy, 55, 727 E. Pikes Peak Ave., pleaded guilty to a charge of taking the right of way and was fined $10.

The Judge ordered bonds of $25 each be forfeited by John Duran, 69, 335 W. Costilla, and James Kennis, 31, 425 N. El Paso, who failed to appear in court on drunk charges.

Doris Bryson, 43, of Denver, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was given a 10-day suspended jail sentence on condition that she return to Denver and not come back to Colorado Springs within a year's time.

Merna Kay Voorhees, 19, of Chadron, Neb., pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge and was given a 20-day jail sentence.

RESCUE ACT RECOGNIZED — Boy Scout Charles Oliver Wednesday received a Boy Scout life saving certificate of merit for rescuing a friend during a severe rain storm a week ago. The presentation was made by Col. Howard H. Cloud Jr., president of the Pikes Peak Boy Scout Council, and looking on were Lt. Col. R. L. Holley, scoutmaster of Troop 14, of which young Oliver is a member, and the boys mother, Mrs. C. L. Oliver, 1428 Tweed St. Young Oliver saved John Sutter, 2023 Winston Rd., from a rain-swept culvert near Constitution Avenue and McArthur Street by throwing him a garden hose and helping him to safety.

Largest Class to Get Taste of Academy Life

Approximately 850 young men from thruout the United States and one foreign country will begin an intensive eight-week basic training course at 7:30 a.m.

The first three days of their stay at the Academy will be devoted to processing. They will be guided thru this phase by Academy NCO's and airmen.

During this phase the cadets of the Class of 1967 will complete all necessary administrative procedures; be issued clothing and equipment; be introduced to "shots" and receive squadron orientation to learn what will be expected of them in the immediate weeks ahead.

Included among the cadets, as last year, will be a "Doolie" from the Philippine Islands.

The Virgin Islands are also expected to send one cadet — the first from an American possession.

A specially selected cadre of Academy first classmen will take over the training of basic cadets immediately following the oath of allegiance ceremony and commandant of cadets briefing Wednesday evening. The oath will be administered by Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong Jr., commandant of cadets.

Basic cadet training at the Academy serves to receive, process, and equip new cadets; to develop in them a strong sense of duty and honor; to provide training in basic military subjects; to develop physical fitness; to motivate the basic cadet for cadet life, and to permit first classmen to develop their command leadership and instructor abilities.

After testing in mathematics, chemistry, English, and reading ability, basic cadets begin instruction in a wide variety of topics, including the cadet honor code, professional ethics, military customs and courtesies, military justice, drill and manual of arms and many others.

Cadets will drill with the M-1 rifle, learn to disassemble and assemble the infantry's standard weapon, and will fire it on the range for familiarization. They wil also be trained with the 38 caliber revolver — standard Air Force side arm — and will fire the weapon for record.

Each basic cadet, after an intesive "short course" in the problems of high altitude flight, will receive an orientation ride in both a T-33 jet trainer and a conventional T-29 twin engined aircraft.

Survival training consists of five days in the Pike National Forest during which the basics are instructed in survival techniques by upper classmen and a team of NCO's from the Air Force Survival School at Stead AFB, Nev.

A basic cadet field day winds up the intensive summer training. Competiton is keen among the eight squadrons into which the cadets are formed. A guidon streamer presented by the commandant of cadets awaits the unit making the best showing.

The new fourth classmen will receive their shoulder boards and hat insignia — symbols they have taken the first step on the road to graduation and an Air Force commission.

Commissioners Set New Rules For All Plats

El Paso County Commissioners passed a resolution Tuesday which requires that all plats finally approved after Sept. 1, 1963 must meet the following requirements:

A central sewer and water system must be included for all developments on tracts of 2½ acres or less.

The resolution provides that individual water and sewer systems will be approved only on tracts consisting of five acres or more.

Commissioners held a pubic hearing on the proposed resolution May 27 which was attended by local sub-dividers and developers who voiced approval of the sewer and water requirements. The resolution had been under advisement since the hearing.

'Webelos Day' Slated at Camp Alexander

"Webelos Day" at Camp Alexander will be held June 24. All Cub Scouts who are members of Webelos Cub Scout dens, and Cubs who will be members of Webelos Dens next fall and their Dads are invited to be guests at Boy Scout Camp Alexander on Saturday.

The event is held each year to provide an opportunity for older Cub Scouts to enjoy a brief orientation of what is in store for them when they become Boy Scouts.

Cubs and their Dads will visit the rifle range, archery range, swimming pool, scout skills areas, Handicraft Lodge, dining hall and the tent areas.

Last year 200 Cubs, Leaders and Dads participated in the special event. Scott Kenton, Camp Program Director, and specially selected staff members will serve as hosts to the Cubs and Leaders.

Cubmasters and Webelos Den Leaders are reminded that packs planning to attend Webelos Day should send in reservation cards to Scout Headquarters by Saturday.

The event starts at 10 a.m. from the parade grounds at Camp Alexander. Each person attending should bring his own lunch. Pop will be provided by the Camp. Boys and adults planning to swim should bring swimming trunks.

Work Under Way on New Water Plant at Florence

Work on the new Florence water plant, which is expected to be completed and in operation by September, is under way and progressing rapidly, according to City Manager Frank Carochi, who made the first preliminary report on the plant construction to the city council Monday night.

Tony Beltramo, Canon City, was awarded the excavating contract for the new plant, and last Thursday began moving dirt for the huge standpipe which will be located on the West Mesa.

If present construction speed is maintained, Carochi indicated that concrete may be poured at the site this week and excavation will be well along on the basement area of the pump station and main building unit.

Four truck loads of pipe, or about 85 tons of the 200 hundred tons of pipe needed for the job, have already been delivered to the site and the general contractor, BBS Construction company, has sent in its superintendent, Art L. Adams, to work with engineers from the firm of Stearns-Rogers.

The biggest phase of the job will be the excavating and concrete work, Carochi explained. He noted that specifications call for about 800 yards of cement at the plant site.

In other business at the council meeting Monday night, city fathers interviewed William A. Young who proposed to the council that it hire his company, Silvercliff Products Corporation, to seal the two city reservoirs with tripilets at a cost of $5,800.

Young, who is in partnership with L. W. Patton, told the council that they would guarantee a permanent sealing job with the newly-developed material.

Young, who brought endorsements for his product from the soil conservation service and a larger rancher in the Colorado Springs area, asked the council to consider his proposal on the basis of $2,900 if the council approved of the measure and the remainder when the sealing was proved satisfactory. The council is now taking the proposal under advisement and will further investigate jobs done by the firm.

Reporting on the recent drought-breaking rains in the area, Manager Carochi told the council that both Adobe and Newlin creeks are bringing in two inches of water or more and if normal summer rains continue the critical shortage will be broken in Florence.

The council, in more routine business, granted a release of a lien on property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dunn on Midland Avenue involving paving, and adopted Ordinance No. 503 on second reading making possible the transfer of cemetery funds.

The meeting was concluded with a heated discussion on the collection of delinquent water accounts with the council insisting that water be turned off on accounts with overdue and unpaid balances.

Gold Camp Picnic Set July 7

The 15th annual Cripple Creek-Victor District Club picnic will be held July 7 at the Chuck Wagon site in the Garden of the Gods.

H. J. "Jolly" Johnson of Manitou Springs, club president, said activities will get under way at 10 a.m. on that day.

At least 15 musicians from the Cripple Creek-Victor High School band will be on hand to provide entertainment at the picnic. Picnic kits will be provided so that youngsters can play various games.

Those who plan to attend should bring their own basket lunch, Johnson said. The club will furnish coffee, cream and sugar.

The picnic annually attracts many of the former Gold Campers who now reside in the Pikes Peak region, plus many now living in Victor and Cripple Creek.

Johnson said some former Cripple Creek and Victor residents now residing elsewhere in the United States plan their vacations in order to attend the picnic and renew old acquaintances.

"All former residents of the Gold Camp are invited to attend the annual picnic," Johnson said. Indications are already that more persons will attend this picnic than any one in the previous history of the club.

Name Calling, Fight Brings Fines to Three in Court

Two Ft. Carson soldiers who had on May 31 exhibited indignant displeasure at being called "black niggers" by a local white man aired their racial resentment Wednesday in a hearing in Municipal Court.

The soldiers, James White, 19, and Jesse Willis, 21, and Dennis Solberg, 23, 2910 N. Tejon St., had be cited for riotous conduct by Patroiman Victor Morris who testified that he broke up their three-way fight May 31 in the 00 block of South Nevada Avenue.

Willis and White had previously pleaded guilty but disposition had been continued by Judge Allan Asher until Wednesday as Solberg had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The two soldiers testified that as they were crossing the street, White had heard Solberg refer to them as "black niggers." When White asked the defendant to repeat his remark, Willis said, with an apology to the court, that Solberg had called them "black SOBs."

Willis said White then suggested "Let's get him," and admitted that they tied into Solberg.

Alfred Wilson, a white soldier from Carson, testified that he had witnessed the fray, had heard the offensive remarks, but added that after the fight broke up, Solberg started after the two Negroes, "still looking for trouble."

Solberg's story was that as he stepped off the curb, the two soldiers had pushed him off the crosswalk.

"I called them something. I do not remember," he said.

When Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac persisted, Solberg admitted he had used the term "nigger."

"You're aware that's a fightin word?" Isaac asked, but got only a "well" in reply.

Judge Asher agreed that the two soldiers might have had provocation for their actions but advised them that the "test of a mature, intelligent person is that he does not fight at the drop of a hat."

He found both guilty as charged, and fined each $25.

Addressing his next remark to Solberg, Judge Asher said, "We don't impugn other people's races, religions or nationalities."

He found Solberg guilty and fined him $40.

Nature Gives Spruce Budworm Fight an Assist

Unknown natural factors have so reduced the larva population of the spruce budworm, which defoliates spruce and fir trees, that aerial spraying of insecticide over 3,000 acres of National Forest land which had been scheduled to begin this week may not be necessary in the Pike Forest, G. E. Weidenhaft, supervisor, announced today. He said that field investigations in 1962 showed that the spruce budworm had been building up to epidemic proportions in Douglas fir timber stands. It was a threat to Christmas trees.

Weidenhaft said that last minute field checks by Forest Service personnel indicated that unknown natural factors have miraculously entered in to reduce the insect larva population to a low level.

A DDT mixture not to exceed one gallon per acre was to be deployed from helicopters under contract from Sky Hook, Inc., of Durango, Colo.

Plans had been carefully prepared to avoid residential areas as well as lakes, streams, and other open water.

Owners of private land adjacent to the areas to be sprayed had been contacted by the Forest Service and were fully co-operating in the project.

Continued field studies conducted in August will provide additional follow-up information and indicate if the downward trend in this insect's population is continuing, Weidenhaft said. These studies will be conducted by insect biologists from the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station in Fort Collins. Insect egg count surveys will be included in these studies. Both live and dead larva are already being collected by the insect biologists.

The larva will be studied to determine the cause which has resulted in halting an epidemic which threatened thousands of Douglas fir Christmas trees.

Hit, Run Count Brings $50 Fine

Price Eugene Thomas was fined $50 and costs in Justice of the Peace James F. Quine's court Wednesday for hit and run. Price, 33, of 2414 N. Chestnut St. was ticketed Dec. 15 on East Willamette Street by Police Cpl. Q. K. Conrad.

Driving at 95 miles per hour in a 60 zone on U.S. Highway 24 cost a Rush man, Mayo Benton Anderson, 18, $35 and costs. The officer was State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey.

Morrissey also cited Clifford Eugene Miller, 21, of 1349 Diana Lane, and charged him with driving a non-registered vehicle and having no registration card in his car June 13. The incident happened on U.S. Highway 24 and a $10 fine and costs was imposed.

Clark Neil Brown was ticketed by State Patrolman C. V. Hubbard as he had no valid operator's license when driving on U.S. Highway 85-87 Monday. Brown, 41, of 1122 N. Corona St. paid a $5 fine and costs.

Fremont Gets Share of Heavy Rains

Heavy weekend rains have temporarily broken the drought in eastern Fremont county after nearly 100 days of little or no moisture.

In the Beaver Park area, Nick Goodall, manager of the Beaver Park company, reported this week that rain in the amount of 1:46 inches was measured during the break in the dry weather.

The Brush Hollow reservoir received an added boost about 8 p.m. Monday when a small flash flood which hit northwest of Penrose brought up the reservoir's water level by 100 acre feet.

Highway 115 in the area was partially blocked by the flood waters which swept over the highway at one point.

In Florence, hail caused some minor damage Saturday before the rain storm. However, Penrose and its big apple crop escaped any hail damage.

Over an inch of rain fell in the Florence area and brought welcomed water down Newlin and Adobe creeks on the city's south watershed.

Rain was measured Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in eastern Fremont county.

In Canon City the rain measured 1.01 inch and at Westcliffe the rain measured over ½-inch. The Arkansas river was reported to have raised about 200 second feet following the storm.

Why Toss Mature Brains on Scrap Heap?

By DR. JOSEPH PECK

There are enough brains growing moldy in the Sun Cities to run the United Nations, Congress and the World Bank.

What a pity the big companies retire even the bosses at age 65 to encourage young executives. This accent on youth, experienced or not, is contributing to our unrest. In a world where a man cannot get a job much before 30, because he must first get a college education, and cannot get work after 45, because he is too old, the turnover in personnel looks like a revolving door. No man is worth a hoot to his organization until he has at least five years experience in applying his college learning to the problems that were never even mentioned in college.

My complaining is not the result of self-interest. The retirement act did not push me out of the work-a-day world, because I was a self-employed physician.

I thought it best to call upon some of my friends in the business world to get their opinions of enforced retirement and the following is from a former utilities executive.

"In my opinion the retirement of men at 65 results in a colossal waste of talent, know-how and experience, which this country or any other cannot afford to lose. In our company we could have retained thousands of healthy, talented and experienced men past 65. Most of them would not then have applied for social security. All the misery and waste they suffer could have been avoided had the company retired for cause only, and kept the efficient ones on the payroll as long as they were useful. There is nothing that so undermines a man's well-being as the feeling he is neither needed or wanted in the world that was his life for so many years.

"This hobby business is much over-rated. A man is so fixed in the pattern of his life's work that when he tries to manufacture a replacement after 65, he comes up minus a few fingers or a 'hand sacrificed to the little work shop in his basement, a thing that has happened to many men I know."

* * *

There is a wealth of scientific data to prove that a man of 65 is as efficient or even more so at jobs requiring patience and well-learned skills. As an office man he is a bit slower, but not so liable to go off half-cocked as his younger associate, and he can continue to hold up his end in tasks that are routine.

The Peck Plan

When a man reaches the age of 60, a board should be convened to evaluate his case. If he is not delivering the goods, he should be encouraged to retire at the legal date, and if he is still efficient, he should be allowed to remain at work, if he so chooses. This board should review his case every year he works after 65, and when he begins to lag, either advise him to retire or to take some other job he can handle satisfactorily without feeling he has been cast aside to die of rust and obsolescence.

Companies may think they are being kind to the oldster by adding to his social sercurity in proportion to his length of service but it is absolutely ridiculous to call an efficient employe in for a big dinner, present him with a bag of golf clubs and tell him "All right, Willy, you can run and play now and don't come back." Such treatment will hasten senility or a complete physical and mental breakdown.

There are 17 million of us old folks who would like to go out of this life looking the black angel straight in the eye, instead of getting prodded from behind like stockyard cattle going up the chute to the killing floor. There must be some way in which we oldsters who prefer the wound in front can be spared the bovine manner of meeting death.

Could not the law be changed so a man who works after age 65 might be classed as self-employed, pay his own social security taxes and still remain on the payroll as long as he was useful? This would relieve his company of some expense.

Give the oldster a chance to be labor without deductions at 72.

Many critics will hail my idea as a warmed-over Townsend plan. I am not sure that this might not be accepted as a compliment. We all thought poor old Dr. Townsend was crazy in those days of financial darkness before Harvard's economists brought forth the light but maybe he just lived before his time. Today, we have out-Townsend'ed the old man's happy dream.

Society may like to picture him as a jolly playboy, but in fact he is more like a poor old buck who has been driven out of the herd by the younger bulls, lost his antlers and been treated with a casual indifference by the female who once thrilled to his touch and knowingly or subconsciously prays for the huntsman's bullet.

Social security and old age pen- self supporting for as much time as possible out of his remaining seven years of probation before he can once again enter the ranks as sions make him a bum, not lord of the manor and head of the clan as he was expected to be by his creator.

Ricketts Says Reds Could Not Prevent Retaliation

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Claude V. Ricketts said today the Russians "would be incapable of preventing retaliation" from a fleet of Polaris missile-firing ships operating under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations and the Navy's top expert on the proposed multilateral NATO nuclear force, made this confident statement in an exclusive interview.

It was his first such interview since returning June 8 from London. There, he explained to British naval and government officials the U.S. Navy's thinking on the proposed force of merchant-type vessels to be manned by mixed crews from some of the 15 NATO nations.

The British have been pictured as skeptical about the concept. In fact, except for the West Germans, no NATO nation has demonstrated any readiness to contribute cash and men to such a nuclear force.

Challenging the doubters, Ricketts contended a ship-borne Polaris force would have "a high degree of survivability" — meaning ability to elude any Soviet attack.

The Navy's second-in-command argued it would be impossible for the Soviets to pinpoint all or even a considerable number of the Polaris ships in the millions of square miles of ocean in which such vessels would roam.

This was the basis of Ricketts' assertion that the Russians would be unable to prevent this force of about 25 ships from launching their 200 or so missiles at Soviet targets if war came.

"We of the U.S. Navy have made a very thorough analysis of all of the military facets of this question," the three-star admiral told an AP reporter.

"We have come to the very definite conclusion that this would be a very effective force. We are convinced that our conclusions are right."

Ricketts disclaimed any role as salesman for the multilateral plan—one London paper called him a "Polaris peddler"—but said he went to London to answer whatever questions the British had in mind concerning the technical and strategic aspects of the proposal.

He stressed he did not get into political questions or the issue of money contributions.

Meanwhile, it was learned from other knowledgeable sources that current U.S. thinking follows these lines:

—The cost of building and operating a force of some 25 Polaris surface vessels mounting about eight missiles apiece would be substantially less—perhaps $1 billion less—than the $5 billion mentioned in the past.

—The proposed NATO fleet would be built over a period of six or seven years.

—The Polaris launching ships would be constructed in the yards of the participating countries, which would provide a means of offsetting some of the cost of joining the force.

—Command of the vessels and the composition of their crews would probably be allocated in proportion to national contributions. Under present prospects, that would mean the United States and West Germany would dominate, although each ship would have at least three nations represented.

—The force probably would be under the NATO supreme commander in Europe, currently U.S. Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

British doubts about the surface Polaris fleet reportedly have revolved around these main points:

Whether such ships could roam the Atlantic and Europe's coastal waters undetected, whether the surface ships would have to be escorted to protect them from air or submarine attack, whether they would have to carry anti-aircraft guns or missiles to defend themselves, and whether a mixed crew would present serious problems of compatability and efficiency.

U.S. authorities are counting on the surface Polaris ships to blend into thousands of merchant-type vessels plying the Atlantic and Mediterranean on any given day.

It's the U.S. view that the Russians would face an impossible task in locating and trailing each of the Polaris ships, and keeping an accurate fix on them so as to be able to strike all of them at one time.

There is no plan to escort the Polaris surface ships, or to arm them with defensive weapons. Escorting warships would add heavily to the cost of the force and would draw attention to the Polaris ships.

The U.S. Navy agrees that crews of mixed nationality would pose critical problems in the close confinement of submarines but the experts believe the problems are much less severe on surface ships.

American officials foresee no trouble in maintaining proper safeguards against premature firing or in developing the machinery for rapid response.

As they view it, the problem of command and control is no more complicated than that which they say has been successfully overcome with other weapons systems under NATO.

Ricketts Says Reds Could Not Prevent Retaliation

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. Claude V. Ricketts said today the Russians "would be incapable of preventing retaliation" from a fleet of Polaris missile-firing ships operating under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Ricketts, vice chief of naval operations and the Navy's top expert on the proposed multilateral NATO nuclear force, made this confident statement in an exclusive interview.

It was his first such interview since returning June 8 from London. There, he explained to British naval and government officials the U.S. Navy's thinking on the proposed force of merchant-type vessels to be manned by mixed crews from some of the 15 NATO nations.

The British have been pictured as skeptical about the concept. In fact, except for the West Germans, no NATO nation has demonstrated any readiness to contribute cash and men to such a nuclear force.

Challenging the doubters, Ricketts contended a ship-borne Polaris force would have "a high degree of survivability" — meaning ability to elude any Soviet attack.

The Navy's second-in-command argued it would be impossible for the Soviets to pinpoint all or even a considerable number of the Polaris ships in the millions of square miles of ocean in which such vessels would roam.

This was the basis of Ricketts' assertion that the Russians would be unable to prevent this force of about 25 ships from launching their 200 or so missiles at Soviet targets if war came.

"We of the U.S. Navy have made a very thorough analysis of all of the military facets of this question," the three-star admiral told an AP reporter.

"We have come to the very definite conclusion that this would be a very effective force. We are convinced that our conclusions are right."

Ricketts disclaimed any role as salesman for the multilateral plan —one London paper called him a "Polaris peddler"—but said he went to London to answer whatever questions the British had in mind concerning the technical and strategic aspects of the proposal.

He stressed he did not get into political questions or the issue of money contributions.

Meanwhile, it was learned from other knowledgeable sources that current U.S. thinking follows these lines:

—The cost of building and operating a force of some 25 Polaris surface vessels mounting about eight missiles apiece would be substantially less—perhaps $1 billion less—than the $5 billion mentioned in the past.

Palmer Lake Area

By Marian McIntyre McDonough
GR 5-2323

Long looked for rain arrived over the weekend on the Divide and with the deluge came hail. Palmer Lake received the brunt of the terrific hail storm on Saturday starting with stones as large as golf balls. Much damage was done to roofs and most gardens were stripped and flattened. Many housewives spent most of Sunday stopping leaks with buckets and kitchen pans.

The 4-H Club group which was to have done clean-up work and planting at the Palmer Lake Community Center on Monday was forced to postpone coming to work until Thursday. A number of the Home Demonstration Club women are furnishing cookies and punch to the young people.

Miss Diane Pierce and Donnie Richardson were honored at a bridal shower June 13 at the Little Log Church. The couple will be married Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kenneth McCall are vacationing with relatives in Oregon.

The Norman Mecks of Boulder spent a rcent weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elign Mecks.

Inez Hunt, author, poet and lecturer, of Colorado Springs, was the speaker at the tea held recently by the Cherry Homemakers to honor the club's charter members. Guests from Palmer Lake were Mrs. Katherine Curtis, Mrs. Waune Loose, Mrs. Clifford W. Davis, Mrs. Walter Clausing, Mrs. John Bertrand, Mrs. Tom Hafer, Mrs. James Reed, Mrs. Maud Redman, Mrs. Douglass Eiseman, Mrs. Mary Liming and Mrs. Eston Royse.

Mrs. Elgin Mecks attended a meeting of the American Radio Relay League in Pueblo Sunday.

On Monday the Vacation Bible School started at the Little Log Church. Classes will begin at 9 a.m. and last until 11:45 a.m. and ends on June 28.

The Palmer Lake Town Council will hold a second meeting Thursday evening to complete unfinished business from the last session.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Herring of Boulder spent the weekend at the Pines in Glen Park.

The Dickey cottage in Glen Park is open for the summer while the Irving Snattenger cabin in Palmer Lake is being made ready for his arrival from Topeka to spend the summer season.

Miss Kendra Englert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Englert of Colorado Springs, will give the program at the Palmer Lake Historical Society meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in the Town Hall. Miss Englert, a high school senior, is curator this summer of the Henry McAllister House maintained by El Pomar Foundation and the Colorado Colonial Dames. She will present her prize winning historical papers in which she placed at the Central City annual Colorado Day contest for a "True Colorado Episode" which occured 100 years ago. Her articles are entitled, "The Road That Wrecked a Town," "Petticoat Justice" and "The Hoax of Eliphant Price and John O'Keefe." Hostesses for the social hour following the program are Mrs. Gilbert Campbell and Mrs. Lollie Watrous. Members are asked to bring guests and the meeting is open to the public.

A two-weeks summer camp for boys and girls is being held at Red Rocks Ranch. Instruction is being given in all phases of horseback riding. A gymkhana will be held each Friday during the camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Ancel Earp of Oklahoma City and Green Mountain Falls were luncheon guests and spent the day Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hafer. Mrs. Earl is an aunt of Mrs. Hafer's

Loveland Will Vote On New Local Rule

LOVELAND (AP) — A special election Aug. 6 was ordered Tuesday night for voters in this city of 11,000 to decide a proposal to establish a council-city manager form of government.

The plan has the support of Mayor Ray L. Patterson and a majority of eight present council members.

The council set the election date after a citizen's committee appointed by the council submitted a petition bearing the names of 793 residents. Supporters of the city manager form of government contend it would be more efficient and provide better coordination between governmental units.

Under the city manager proposal, the mayor would be elected from the council instead of by vote of the people. The mayor and councilmen would draw no salaries, in contrast to the present system.

In other action Tuesday night, Delmer E. Hunter, a mortician, was appointed to replace grocer Leo Shannon on the council.

Shannon is moving outside the city limits. His term would have expired in November.

Longer Lease Favored For U.S. Indian Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department says it favors longer leases for Indian lands to pave the way for large-scale commercial or recreational developments.

Under present law, leases of Indian lands for other than farming or grazing are limited to a 25-year term, except on five reservations where 99-year leases has been authorized.

The department said Tuesday it was backing a Senate bill to permit leasing for up to 55 years for all reservations.

Officials pointed out that problems arise for those planning construction or redevelopment loans because the minimum unexpired lease period normally is 50 years from the date a mortgage is executed.

The reservations were 99-year leases already have been authorized will not be affected by the bill. They are Southern Ute in Colorado; Colorado River in Arizona and California; Navajo in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah; Palm Springs in California and Dania in Florida.

SURE EXTERMINATION

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Pete Ciaramitaro, 40, had mice in his house trailer.

He sealed off the trailer Monday and lighted a fumigation bomb underneath. The bomb ignited leaking butane gas, and the explosion shot flames high into the air, setting off ammunition in the trailer. While firemen dodged bullets, a television set blew out and crashed through the side of the trailer.

Ciaramitaro no longer has mice in his trailer.

Any mint flavoring in the house? Flavor chocolate milk with it, add scoops of chocolate ice cream and you'll have a dream offering for teen-agers or oldsters. Small fry will probably prefer this refreshing beverage without the mint flavoring, and may prefer to have vanilla rather than chocolate ice cream in the chocolate-flavored milk.

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: It doesn't seem right to me to hire and pay a music director for our church. What is your opinion? —. F.

ANSWER: A minister of music sometimes has as important a ministry to a Christian congregation as does the minister who preaches. God has gifted many men with a ministry in music. The question of whether or not that particular music director is worth his salary is a question for the leaders of the church to determine. Certainly if the purpose of a director of music is to entertain a group of religious people, then it has no place in the church. If, on the other hand, he can assist a congregation in glorifying God through the medium of music, then there is no reason why he could not be a paid, qualified music director. I agree with you that terms sound rather mercenary and professional but it need not be so—if put on a spiritual basis.

It has been said by some that Martin Luther's hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," has as much to do with bringing about the Reformation as did the preaching of the reformers. It is of course debatable, but it does point up the significance of music in worship.

John Wesley in the height of the great revival in Britain made the statement that if the hymns of the church could not be sung well and on key, they should not be sung at all.

The rightness of having a director of music depends entirely upon what his contribution is to the spiritual life of the church and how much the church expects him to invest in the way of his time and of his talent.

The Scripture teaches that a "laborer is worthy of his hire."

QUESTION: If God directs and allows everything that happens to a Christian, what happens between God and a Christian when a sin is committed?—E. P.

ANSWER: I believe the best answer to your question has to be answered by reference to an illustration. I ask you this question—what happens to the father—son relationship in everyday life when the son does something that is displeasing to the father?

The Bible does not tell us that we are going to live free from sin as long as we are in this body. The Bible says, "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." (I John 1:8)

Actually what will happen is that there is a rupture that takes place in our fellowship, and this fellowship is not completely restored until confession of that sin is made. In other words, we may still be sons of God without enjoying the fellowship that sons rightfully should have. There are thousands of Christians that do not have the joy and peace that fellowship with God brings. There is no joy or ecstasy quite like that of daily fellowship with God. Try it!

Breckenridge Plans Year-Around Resort

That's the aim of the Breckenridge Lands, Inc., which tabbed another $1 million in capital funds to expedite the transition this summer.

A Wichita, Kan., firm purchased the additional stock of Breckenridge Lands, the company announced, to make the resort and some 5,500 acres of land beside the high Blue River Valley a subsidiary of the multi-million-dollar Rounds and Porter Lumber Co., of Wichita.

Since 1961, Breckenridge Lands have spent nearly $3 million building four ski lifts and more than 12 miles of ski runs at the resort area, in addition to a modern inn, an annex, and other improvements.

SOMETHING MISSING

ALANREED, Tex. (UPI) —Mr. and Mrs. Charles Logan of Roswell, N.M., returning home Tuesday from a trip to Illinois, looked in the back seat of their car a scant 100 miles from home and discovered something was missing. It was their 5-year-old daughter Cathy.

Two hundred miles away in Alanreed, service station owner Jimmy Hill looked up from a car he was servicing and discovered something that wasn't supposed to be there. Again, little Cathy.

Hill notified Alanreed police, the Logans notified Portales, N.M., police and 300 miles later the family was united.

Local Altrusans to Attend International Convention

"Better volunteer services to local communities" will be the major objective of some 1,000 executive business and professional women, who, as delegates and representatives from some 500 Altrusa Clubs, will attend the biennial convention of Altrusa International, in Philadelphia, Pa., July 21 to 25, at the Belview-Stratford Hotel.

The local club is sending to this convention as delegates, Mrs. Adeline Cunningham, and Mrs. Byron Thady.

Mrs. Clyde A. Milner, head of the psychology department of Guilford College, N.C., as president of this oldest service organization for women, states that the five day convention will concern itself with increasing and improving Altrusa-sponsored community service projects.

Highlights of the Altrusa convention program in Philadelphia will include: seminars on leadership, an election of Altrusa International officers, and the following speakers: Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director, Service Bureau of Womens Organizations, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Augusta H. Clawson, manpower development specialist, Office of Manpower, Automation and Training, U.S. Department of Labor; Dr. Lillian Gilbreath, famous for the techniques she and her husband developed in the field of time and motion study; the Honorable Muriel McQ Fergusson, attorney and member of the Canadian Senate; Miss Pauline Frederick, U.N. correspondent for NBC.

An international night, July 2, will honor Altrusans from nine countries in which Altrusa International is established outside of the U.S.: Bermuda, Canada, Guatemala, India, Ireland, Mexico, England, the Philippines, Puerto Rico.

A feature of the evening will be a piano recital by twins from Argentina, who, under Altrusa grants-in-aid, are studying with the world renowned duo-pianists, Vronski and Babin, in Cleveland.

The final event will be the installation of officers Thursday evening, July 25. Mrs. Manual DeBusk, an attorney, from Dallas, Tex., now president elect, will assume the presidency.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Your hint regarding the use of white dime store chalk to eliminate the yellow lines which builds up on the collars of husband's white shirts was a perfect gem!

I thought you might be interested in knowing that I used the same method to eliminate a yellow line which had built up on the shawl collar of a heavy white sweater and which even the cleaners failed to remove! It worked perfectly. —Laura M.

Ladies:

All we said about this was that you could go to your dime store or drug store and buy a box of chalk. This is the same type chalk that Mary and Johnny use on their blackboard, only theirs is a harder chalk. The stuff that you will buy in your local store will be much softer.

All one does is take soft chalk and draw a heavy white line across the yellow line on your shirt collar, where body oils from our necks rub off on the garments, and the chalk will absorb the body oils.

You have to get that oil out of the neckline on your garment before you can remove the spot completely!

The chalk will absorb the body oil and then the soil will come loose.

Leave the chalk on the shirt collars a few hours or overnight. The longer the better. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I'd like to add a hint or two which I have discovered in repayment for those who have helped me.

I use a shower cap instead of a scarf to keep my hair-do dry when having to gather my clothes off the line in a hurry due to a sudden shower. —Fan RH

Dear Heloise:

Here is a good idea I would like to share with your readers who have large families and not enough time to write to each other often.

Our family of seven is scattered all over the United States and we have been writing this copy system for years. It is on the order of a chair letter!

We write a page or two and send it to the nearest brother or sister, who in turn adds his or her letter and sends it to the next one.

Sometimes we include a snapshot, hint and joke, etc.

We really enjoy doing this as otherwise we may not have the time to keep in touch individually as a family should. —Mrs. Carl Thompson

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that you could add 1 sliced banana to the white of an egg and beat until entirely stiff and then add a little sugar and beat some more. The banana will dissolve entirely and this makes a wonderful substitute for whipped cream for those who are on a budget. —C. Laymay

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

Here is my "sneaky" technique for exterminating the loathsome and wary bedroom fly.

Calmly turn off the light.

Get the flyswatter.

Go into the bathroom.

Turn on the light.

Wait patiently for a few minutes with flyswatter in hand.

The fly will go to the lighted room.

Close the door, give the fly time to land. (I usually turn off the light at this time.)

Turn on the light and hunt it down. (This is easier in a small room.)

Swat it dead.

Go back to bed and resume reading in peace. —Jules Bertrand

Highlights of the Altrusa convention program in Philadelphia will include: seminars on leadership, an election of Altrusa International officers, and the following speakers: Mrs Chase Going Woodhouse, director, Service Bureau of Womens Organizations, Hartford, Conn.; Miss Augusta H. Clawson, manpower development specialist, Office of Manpower, Automation and Training, U.S. Department of Labor; Dr Lillian Gilbreath, famous for the techniques she and her husband developed in the field of time and motion study; the Honorable Muriel McQ Fergusson, attorney and member of the Canadian Senate; Miss Pauline Frederick, U.N. correspondent for NBC.

An international night, July 2, will honor Altrusans from nine countries in which Altrusa International is established outside of the U.S.: Bermuda, Canada, Guatemala, India, Ireland, Mexico, England, the Philippines, Puerto Rico.

A feature of the evening will be a piano recital by twins from Argentina, who, under Altrusa grants-in-aid, are studying with the world renowned duo-pianists, Vronski and Babin, in Cleveland.

The final event will be the installation of officers Thursday evening, July 25. Mrs. Manual DeBusk, an attorney, from Dallas, Tex., now president elect, will assume the presidency.

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♣ | Pass | 1 ◇ | Pass |
| 3 NT | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Opening lead: Jack of ♡

It required very alert defense to prevent South from scampering off with nine tricks in today's hand.

South's jump rebid to three no-trump holding a singleton diamond is admittedly not taken from the book, but the alternative call of three clubs is a decided underbid and may well elicit a pass from partner. All North requires to produce nine top tricks is either major suit king or the ace of diamonds.

West opened the jack of hearts, and declarer saw at once that the dummy was not the right hand for his purposes. In order to establish a trick in diamonds, he must risk surrendering the lead. If the hearts were divided four-four, it would not matter, since the defenders could take at most three hearts and one diamond. In any event, South did not dare hold up his ace of hearts, for a spade shift at any point by the defense would surely establish enough tricks to defeat the contract.

Declarer took the first trick as East signaled with the six of hearts. The queen of diamonds was led next and West came up with a big league play. He saw that the hearts were ready to run and his side could take five quick tricks provided East played his ace of diamonds. In order to dissuade his partner from holding of West followed to South's diamond lead with the nif.

From East's point of view, this marked West with either one, two, or four diamonds, for if he had three he would surely have followed up the line. If West held either a singleton or doubleton there was no point in holding up for South could not be exhausted of the suit. If West had four diamonds, there was no need to duck. East therefore won the trick and, when he returned the queen of hearts, West overtook to cash out the setting tricks.

Had East ducked even one diamond, declarer might well have been expected to run for home with nine tricks.

Resurgence of Syphilis Is Reported in U.S.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Syphilis, the "great pox" of medevial times, is resurging in the United States, and there may be as many as 1,200,000 hidden cases a top U.S. Public Health Service's venereal disease fighter said today.

Dr. M. Brittain Moore Jr., chief of the agency's VD Research Laboratory, Atlanta, said in a report prepared for the American Medical Association convention that the malady is being reported with increasing frequency throughout the country.

During 1962, he said, there were some 124,000 reported cases—including more than 21,000 in infectious, transmissible stages, the greatest number in the latter category since 1950.

Reasons for the rise in cases, he declared, include:

Rapid growth of cities; greatly increased mobility of populations; loss of strong family ties; international tensions; inadequacy of health and sex education; "declining morals;" and incomplete detection of carriers before they spread the disease.

Mickey Rooney Says He Is Bankrupt Now

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Mickey Rooney claims he's bankrupt despite earnings of $12 million in 30 years.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She's Tired of Ham

DEAR ABBY: As I sit here writing this letter I cannot hear anything but my neighbor's mouth. He has a short wave set that completely blocks out the sound from my television set. As a result, we hear only "him" talking to people in other States. He talks at regular intervals of approximately five minutes. At night, when other people begin to watch TV, he starts to mess it up. Our other neighbors say they get the same interference. He only does this at night. But that's the only time we use our TV set. Is there some way to stop this?—IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: "Tell" your neighbor. I have heard there is a very inexpensive little gadget that he can put on his set (or you can put on yours) that will filter his interference.

DEAR ABBY: We are planning to adopt a baby in the near future? Is it proper for my mother to give me a baby shower? I have been told that it isn't considered good etiquette to give a shower for an adopted baby.—

DEAR MOTHER-TO-BE: It "is" proper to honor a mother-to-be with a shower for an adopted baby. But your mother should not give it. Showers are given by friends—not relatives.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with the most wonderful boy in the world. He is in the reformatory now, but I know he did not do all the things they said he did. He is 16 and I am 15 and I love him more than anything on this earth, Abby. My problem is my mother. She won't let me write him. She says if any letters come from him to me, she won't give them to me. Do you think this is fair? If he thinks the whole world is against him, he won't have any reason to want to get out and lead a better life. How can I explain this to my mother? —IN LOVE

DEAR "IN LOVE": You would be wise to listen to your mother, Honey. When your boy friend gets out, give him plenty of time in which to prove that he can lead a better life. In the meantime, accept your mother's decision.

Grime Dirty Word to Expert in Cleanliness

By JOHN BARNETT
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When F. C. Lewis talks about getting things clean, he doesn't mean just squeaky clean — he means microscopically clean.

"The world is really quite a dirty place, you know," he said. "Nothing personal, of course, but your shirt is covered with tens of thousands of dirt particles —and then there are particles from your scalp, and your skin is constantly flaking away."

Lewis is a slim, dapper — and most tidy-looking Englishman who sells commercial dry cleaning equipment that he says will get garments, blankets and the like cleaner than anything else yet devised. It takes a microscope to find "dirt" on garments run through his equipment.

This sort of cleanliness has become of vital importance in this era of space technology, according to Lewis.

A wayward speck of dust, an eyelash, even a fingerprint can cause malfunction in the delicate control mechanisms of rockets and space capsules.

In fact, Lewis said, several accidents involving the loss of expensive missiles have been traced to such "contamination."

One way of preventing this is doing a super-cleaning job on the clothes of workers in the so-called "clean rooms" where certain space equipment components are assembled under ultra-sanitary conditions.

Lewis' company, the J. C. Spencer Corporation of America, is the U.S. marketing organization for equipment developed by Lewis and manufactured in England by Neil & Spencer Ltd. Lewis is president of the marketing firm, which has headquarters in Los Angeles.

He came to the United States four years ago to sell dry cleaning equipment for Neil & Spencer, but soon learned of the demand for special equipment. He went to work on the development and has doubled sales in the past five months.

A machine called the "micronic"—after the micron, one thousandth part of one millimeter—is sold by Lewis for cleaning the garments of "clean room" workers. He says that its combination of solvents, air blasts and filters is the most effective cleaning means developed for clothing worn by "clean room" workers, far better than other methods which involve washing with water.

"We still sell ordinary dry cleaning equipment, too," Lewis said. "These are relatively new products with us — but we feel they can be of great importance in this age of space. Losses to the government through space failures caused by contamination could be staggering."

Crows Patronize Hot Dog Stand

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Crows are such adaptable feeders that they patronize hot dog stands in Hollywood, scientists were told today.

"The voice of the crow is now part of city life" and their robbing of the nests of mocking birds and jays has brought a new noise to urban communities — a new phenomenon, Roland Cass Ross of Los Angeles State College told the 44th annual meeting of the Pacific division, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Crows have survived by adaptation and dispersion," he said.

"Feeding habits have changed." Now in some communities, North Hollywood for instance, "their first flight mornings is to hot dog stands, night gas stations and drive-in movie lots for food debris and light-killed insects before cleanup crews arrive," Ross reported.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Barbecuing has gone from big feasts to big business—via little feasts in the backyard.

Old - time political barbecue, featured 1,000 to 1,500 pound cattle, quartered and roasted over open fires. Halved sheep and whole pigs were cooked the same way.

An estimated 100,00 persons ate 50 oxen and a herd of sheep at one such cookout in West New York, N.J., says Col. Edgar Garbisch, president of Grocery Store Products, Inc.

Garbisch, a retired army colonel, added that this summer alone, 81 per cent of American families are expected to buy $10 million worth of cooking equipment and $750 million worth of food for 1.3 billion outdoor meals.

In popular usage, the noun, barbecue, means anymeat , poultry or fish cooked on an open fire and basted with a sauce. But the word's origin is disputed, said the colonel. Some historians trace it to the medieval French practice of spit - roasting whole animals from "barbe" to "queue"-whiskers to tail.

Others credit the Spanish "barbacoa," a dual - purpose wooden framework used either for cooking or sleeping. European invaders of 16th century Mexico cooked meat on such a device. So did American Indians, who supported the cooking food on green twigs held in place by four forked supports. Smoke from the green wood also flavored the food, Col. Garbisch added.

Barbecuing had political overtones in the late 19th century America. Opposing parties competed with each other to supply the largest amounts of food and drink for bi-partisan barbecues, said Col. Garbisch.

Dainty hors d'oeuvreand canapes were unheard of. Typical fare consisted of barbecued meat, sweet potatoes, corn, thick slices of homemade bread, and fresh and pickled cucumbers, washed down with hot black coffe, brandy or whiskey, and plenty of beer or wine.

Plain salted water was used to baste the meat during cooking. Dipney, the equivalent of today's barbecue sauce, was daubed on at the carving table. It was a mixture of sweet country lard, strong vinegar, and red and black pepper.

Saucy

In a saucepan, combine 2 tablespoons each of salad oil and vinegar, 1 tablespoon of bottled gravy coloring, ½ cup ech of catsup and finely diced onion, ¼ cup of water, 1 garlic clove, minced, 2 teaspoons of worcestershire sauce, 2 drops of liquid red pepper sauce, 1 teaspoon of salt, ½ teaspoon of chili powder, and ¼ teaspoon of black pepper and dry mustard.

Bring to boil. Cool before using as marinade. Several hours chilling helps the flavors blend. Makes about 1½ cups, enough for 4 to steaks, or 8 hamburgers, or 4 split broilers. Leftover sauce can be heated and served with the meat.

Soviet Radio Jamming Takes 10-Day Vacation

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation reported Wednesday night its Russian language broadcasts have been virtually free from Soviet jamming for the past 10 days—the longest period without interference in three years.

The BBC said a substantial reduction in jamming was noted at the beginning of June and since June 8 and even broadcasts on subjects which would previously have attracted jamming have gone through without interference.

The longest period was in 1960 after the Soviet government announced it would no longer jam grams. But selective jamming of certain programs was resumed later in the year at the time of the U2 spy plane incident.

HOT PARAKEETS

HOUSTON (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy who tried to trade "hot" parakeets for a couple of chipmunks was questioned by juvenile authorities today.

The youth admitted he broke into a garage and stole 45 parakeets from an aviary. All but 17 flew away as he hurried to a pet shop. When the boy arrived and offered the 17 birds for two chipmunks, he was nabbed by police.

Dieting Woman Does Not Feel Like Eating

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Marvin Fingar has 82½ pounds to go in her crash diet to lose 100 pounds. She says she doesn't feel much like eating.

The 34-year-old mother from West Ghent, N.Y., stands less than 5 feet tall. She weighed 219 pounds when she entered Memorial Hospital here June 2.

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday Mrs. Fingar "was progressing favorably" after losing 17½ pounds.

Mrs. Fingar said Wednesday she felt "a bit wobbly and rather depressed." Her hunger pangs, she said, have been succeeded by an utter lack of appetite.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of ♡

South's jump rebid to three no-trump holding a singleton diamond is admittedly not taken from the book, but the alternative call of three clubs is a decided underbid and may well elicit a pass from partner. All North requires to produce nine top tricks is either major suit king or the ace of diamonds.

West opened the jack of hearts, and declarer saw at once that the dummy was not the right hand for his purposes. In order to establish a trick in diamonds, he must risk surrendering the lead. If the hearts were divided four-four, it would not matter, since the defenders could take at most three hearts and one diamond. In any event, South did not dare hold up his ace of hearts, for a spade shift at any point by the defense would surely establish enough tricks to defeat the contract.

Declarer took the first trick as East signaled with the six of hearts. The queen of diamonds was led next and West came up with a big league play. He saw that the hearts were ready to run and his side could take five quick tricks provided East played his ace of diamonds. In order to dissuade his partner from holding of West followed to South's diamond lead with the nif.

From East's point of view, this marked West with either one, two, or four diamonds, for if he had three he would surely have followed up the line. If West held either a singleton or doubleton there was no point in holding up for South could not be exhausted of the suit. If West had four diamonds, there was no need to duck. East therefore won the trick and, when he returned the queen of hearts, West overtook to cash out the setting tricks.

Had East ducked even one diamond, declarer might well have been expected to run for home with nine tricks.

Resurgence of Syphilis Is Reported in U.S.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Syphilis, the "great pox" of medieval times, is resurging in the United States, and there may be as many as 1,200,000 hidden cases a top U.S. Public Health Service's venereal disease fighter said today.

Dr M. Brittain Moore Jr, chief of the agency's VD Research Laboratory, Atlanta, said in a report prepared for the American Medical Association convention that the malady is being reported with increasing frequency throughout the country.

During 1962, he said, there were some 124,000 reported cases—including more than 21,000 in infectious, transmissible stages, the greatest number in the latter category since 1950.

Reasons for the rise in cases, he declared, include:

Rapid growth of cities; greatly increased mobility of populations; loss of strong family ties; international tensions; inadequacy of health and sex education; "declining morals;" and incomplete detection of carriers before they spread the disease.

Mickey Rooney Says He Is Bankrupt Now

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Mickey Rooney claims he's bankrupt despite earnings of $12 million in 30 years.

Rooney, 40, testified at a bankruptcy hearing Wednesday that "practically everything I've made in the past 15 years has been attached" for taxes or other debts.

Rooney listed debts of $464,914 and assets of $500 plus clothes and household goods when he filed for bankruptcy in June of 1962.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She's Tired of Ham

DEAR ABBY: As I sit here writing this letter I cannot hear anything but my neighbor's mouth. He has a short wave set that completely blocks out the sound from my television set. As a result, we hear only "him" talking to people in other States. He talks at regular intervals of approximately five minutes. At night, when other people begin to watch TV, he starts to mess it up. Our other neighbors say they get the same interference. He only does this at night. But that's the only time we use our TV set. Is there some way to stop this?—IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: "Tell" your neighbor. I have heard there is a very inexpensive little gadget that he can put on his set (or you can put on yours) that will filter his interference.

DEAR ABBY: We are planning to adopt a baby in the near future? Is it proper for my mother to give me a baby shower? I have been told that it isn't considered good etiquette to give a shower for an adopted baby.—

DEAR MOTHER-TO-BE: It "is" proper to honor a mother-to-be with a shower for an adopted baby. But your mother should not give it. Showers are given by friends—not relatives.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with the most wonderful boy in the world. He is in the reformatory now, but I know he did not do all the things they said he did. He is 16 and I am 15 and I love him more than anything on this earth, Abby. My problem is my mother. She won't let me write him. She says if any letters come from him to me, she won't give them to me. Do you think this is fair? If he thinks the whole world is against him, he won't have any reason to want to get out and lead a better life. How can I explain this to my mother? —IN LOVE

DEAR "IN LOVE": You would be wise to listen to your mother, Honey. When your boy friend gets out, give him plenty of time in which to prove that he can lead a better life. In the meantime, accept your mother's decision.

Grime Dirty Word to Expert in Cleanliness

By JOHN BARNETT
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When F. C. Lewis talks about getting things clean, he doesn't mean just squeaky clean — he means microscopically clean.

"The world is really quite a dirty place, you know," he said.

"Nothing personal, of course, but your shirt is covered with tens of thousands of dirt particles —and then there are particles from your scalp, and your skin is constantly flaking away."

Lewis is a slim, dapper — and most tidy-looking Englishman who sells commercial dry cleaning equipment that he says will get garments, blankets and the like cleaner than anything else yet devised. It takes a microscope to find "dirt" on garments run through his equipment.

This sort of cleanliness has become of vital importance in this era of space technology, according to Lewis.

A wayward speck of dust, an eyelash, even a fingerprint can cause malfunction in the delicate control mechanisms of rockets and space capsules.

In fact, Lewis said, several accidents involving the loss of expensive missiles have been traced to such "contamination."

One way of preventing this is doing a super-cleaning job on the clothes of workers in the so-called "clean rooms" where certain space equipment components are assembled under ultra-sanitary conditions.

Lewis' company, the J. C. Spencer Corporation of America, is the U.S. marketing organization for equipment developed by Lewis and manufactured in England by Neil & Spencer Ltd. Lewis is president of the marketing firm, which has headquarters in Los Angeles.

He came to the United States four years ago to sell dry cleaning equipment for Neil & Spencer, but soon learned of the demand for special equipment. He went to work on the development and has doubled sales in the past five months.

He says that its combination of solvents, air blasts and filters is the most effective cleaning means developed for clothing worn by "clean room" workers, far better than other methods which involve washing with water.

"We still sell ordinary dry cleaning equipment, too," Lewis said. "These are relatively new products with us — but we feel they can be of great importance in this age of space. Losses to the government through space failures caused by contamination could be staggering."

Small Changes Seen in Market; Trade Moderate

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to grope in moderate trading early this afternoon.

Changes of most key stocks were small.

An assortment of selected issues were actively traded but there was no decisive trend in this group.

Stock market analysts looked upon the "consolidation" of the past few weeks as a process which may be necessary to form a base for a further advance.

Meanwhile, the news background was as indecisive as the market itself. The house Ways & Means Committee suspended temporarily action on tax cut legislation. Steel labor negotiators continued trying to reach an understanding. Orders for durable goods were reported lower in May, but the April total was a record.

The trend among steels, motors, and tobaccos was lower, Sugars and rails advanced. Oils were narrowly mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 273.1 with industrials off .3, rails up .5, and utilities up .1.

Chrysler continued with its sinking spell, dropping a couple of points. General Motors and Ford lost fractions. American motors was steady and Studebaker eased.

The top steelmakers took minor losses. The same pattern prevailed among the leading cigarette manufacturers.

Sugars moved ahead unanimously but except for American Sugar, which rose more than a point, gains were fractional.

News that some Los Angeles savings and loan associations planned small increases in dividends paid to savers had no immdiate impact on stocks of savings-and-stock holding companies. The leading issues were narrowly mixed. Among the more actively traded issues, Olin Mathieson, responding to favorable advisories in the street, gained a fraction. Avco, with record sales and earnings, also gained a fraction, along with Chock Full O' Nuts, Korvette and Jonathan Logan. Pacific Petroleums was about a point lower. Western Union and Belco Petroleum were fractional losers.

IBM was off about 5 points and Xerox 6.

American Electric Power traded unchanged at 35¾ on 20,000 shares. Twentieth Century-Fox dropped more than a point. Merck was off about a point. Schering was about a point ahead.

Some stocks weakened following news that the Cuban Revolutionary Council had said its commandos had landed "some place in Cuba."

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 1.55 at 718.29 while the Dow Jones composite of 65 industrials, rails and utilities was up .08 at 257.23.

Prices were mixed in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange. Prentice-Hall and Muskeon Piston Ring gained about a point each. Down about a point were Dome Petroleum and General Plywood. Syntex and Magellan Petroleum were active fractional gainers. Fractional losses were taken by Canadian Javelin, Scurry Rainbow Oil, Barnes Engineering and Alan Wood Steel.

Corporate bonds were mixed with rails lower. U.S. Government bonds were irregular.

Garden Ranch Area Warned of Snakes

Capt. H. L. "Red" Davis of the Colorado Springs Police Department has warned residents of the Garden Ranch district that the area is infested with rattle snakes and that parents should warn their children to keep away from them.

As an example of the danger to children in the area, Davis related an experience he had a few days ago. He says, "I was driving my car out there and saw a rattler in the road. I ran over him and then stopped and got out to see if I had killed him. Well, I hadn't. In a gravely area on the side of the road it had joined another rattler. I shot both of them and then noticed a few toy cars and miniature roads in the gravel where children had apparently been playing a short time before."

Davis said the snakes were about 28 inches long. He recommended that parents tell their children not to try to catch the snakes or annoy them in any way, since the danger of being bitten is great.

Attorney Named For Creditors Of Joe Newcomer

Attorney Darrell Thomas has been named by the creditors committee of depositors in the Joe Newcomer Finance Co. to represent them in future court hearings into the financially troubled company.

Mrs. Lena Meier, chairman of the committee, said that Attorney Paul Evans would assist Thomas. She said the attorneys would also act as advisors to the committee.

The attorneys were selected as a meeting of the committee held Wednesday at the offices of the insolvent finance company.

Mrs. Meier said that the committee completed its organization at the meeting "so that it can work effectively to protect the interests of all involved in the present proceedings."

Newcomer's financial empire, built on a shaky pyramid of high interest rates for depositors and a dozen or so subsidiary companies, toppled last April when the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission clamped down on the local firm for alleged violations of its rules.

The company is in danger of being declared bankrupt by U.S. District court in November unless depositors, shareholders and the court-appointed trustee can show that the company is on its way to becoming solvent and can work out its financial difficulties.

Latest estimates place the Newcomer Company liabilities at more than $3 million. An audit is being undertaken at the present time and should be completed July 15.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market mustered a little firmness in spots at times today in mixed transactions on the board of trade.

Brokers said that except for a little bearish influence linked with a tie up of some shipping at coastal ports, trade factors were virtually unchanged from the past several days.

One analyst said that with most grain moving out of Chicago on the great lakes now, a slow down from ports elsewhere cold hardly be serious to the trade just now.

Prices ranged from firm to weak with speculators covering on setbacks and selling on bulges.

Estimated carlot receipts were corn 50, oats 1, barley 7, soybeans 14 and wheat and rye, none.

Exiles Denounce Claim That Red Troops Leaving

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban exile leaders today voiced sharp disagreement with a State Department report that Soviet troops in Cuba are "thinning out." They said there are more Russian troops on the island than ever.

"Only those with bad eyesight or those seeking to deceive the American public could make such a report," said former prime Minister Manuel de Verona, leader of the Revolutionary Democratic Rescue Exile group.

Luis Conte Aguero, leader of the Sentinels of Liberty and other underground organizations, said "more Soviet soldiers have entered Cuba than have left since the Caribbean crisis last fall. Only a few weeks ago, early in May, some 8,000 Soviet troops debarked at Santiago, Cuba, in full view of everybody."

New Cabinet Is Being Sought By Italians

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP)—Giovanni Leone, president of Italy's Chamber of Deputies, began a new attempt today to form a government by calling in leaders of nearly every political group—from Communists to fascists.

President Antonio Segni asked the Neopolitan to seek a way out of the worsening political crisis, which today rounded out its fifth week with no solution in sight.

It appears highly unlikely that Italy will have anything more than an interim government by June 30, when President Kennedy is scheduled to arrive.

A middle-of-the-road Christian Democrat, Leone, 54, was named premier-designate after the leader of his party, Alod Moro was forced to abandon his attempts to form a new center-left government. A Socialist party revolt deprived Moro of the support he needed to get a majortiy behind a coalition of Christian Democrats, Democratic Socialists and Republicans.

Immediately after getting the nod from Segni, Leone went into conference with leaders of his own party. Then, for the first time since the crisis began with Amintore Fanfani's resignation May 16, he arranged consultations with leaders of parties outside the four with whom Moro had been dickering.

This indicated that Leone had been picked to explore and then offer a workable solution.

Some of the possibilities:

He could suggest a time-marking minority government of Christian Democrats only. By agreement such a government would would have everyone's support to enact only necessary business. This government would stay in until some better working arrangement emerged from the current political confusion.

He could try fo do what Moro failed at—get the Socialists behind a new center-left arrangement.

He could try for a center-right alliance, replacing the Socialists with the conservative Liberals. Either arrangement would give the government a parliamentary majority. But the Democratic Socialists strongly oppose collaboratio with the Liberals.

He could report back to Segni that it might be bet to call Fanfani back and ask him to try to re-form the center-left alliance he headed for 20 months before last April's parliamentary election.

To some observers this last seems a strong likelihood. A strong pro-Communist group in the Socialist Central Committee rejected cooperation with Moro because they considered him too conservative. But many in the Socialist party find Fanfani more to their taste.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investment advisor Walter McKibben of Investograph Stock Survey says he ventures to predict a new high very soon, and with it the return of the small investor.

"We can only hope that the economy remains strong enough so that the small investor is not immediately and badly burned," McKibben says. He believes the small investor is entering the market much too late to profit substantially but notes that "He is unlikely to get too badly hurt if he buys near current levels." McKibben warns that the time for caution will be if the market shoots up a quick 40 or 50 points.

Standard & Poor's notes that the market may have to work its way through a further period of consolidation before the advance can be resumed. It believes that increasing emphasis should be placed on realistic values in any new commitments.

Sylvan Epstein of Reuben Rose & Co., Inc. believes the market will eventually work its way out of the current narrow range and move forward. He notes that several important indicators are decidedly bullish and lead him to believe that the next few weeks may see the beginning of another strong upward move.

Three Injured As Car, Trailer Roll Wednesday

Three persons were injured and over $4,000 estimated damage done when a car pulling a trailer went out of control and left U.S. Highway 24, four miles east of Colorado Springs Wednesday afternoon, the State Patrol reported.

F. E. Rayner, 71, of Big Bend, received a bruised forehead. All three were taken to a motel where a physician was called.

According to State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey, Mrs. Thuesen was driving with the right wheels of the trailer and car on the black top shoulder to stop the trailer from whipping. The shoulder turned to gravel and there was a three inch drop which caused the driver to lose control.

Morrissey said the east bound vehicles continued down the road making "S" turns from the gravel shoulder to the concrete for 300 feet, then into a side skid for 79 feet across the highway. The car finally rolled over once and landed on its wheels in the median strip. All three of the car's occupants remained in the car during the roll, according to the report.

Police Protect Party Girl in British Scandal

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Police guarded party girl Christine Keeler today because of threats stemming from the Profumo scandal that has rocked the government and shocked London society.

A police spokesman said guards were posted at Miss Keeler's apartment after a number of anonymous threats against her life were made by telephone. Authorities warned the 22-year-old redhead not to answer her door.

Scotland Yard was reported planning to question more society figures in a vice probe connected with the sex and security scandal touched off by the resignation of War Minister John Profumo because of his illicit love affair with Miss Keeler.

On the political front, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan fought a rear-guard action against persistent demands that he resign because of his handling of the Profumo affair. The 69-year-old Conservative party leader was determined not to let the scandal force him out of office.

The prime minister called a cabinet meeting this morning, followed by a session with opposition Labor Party Leader Harold Wilson to discuss further steps for an inquiry into the Profumo case.

Profumo, 48, quit June 4 after admitting he lied in telling the House of Commons on March 22 that there was nothing improper about his friendship with Miss Keeler. It turned out he was having an affair with her at the time she also was the mistress of Soviet assistant naval attache Eugene Ivanov.

The House of Commons had before it a motion citing Profumo's "grave contempt" of Parliament. The motion was tabled Wednesday night by both the Conservative and Labor parties.

The political infighting tended to be overshadowed by new developments in the vice case against society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, 50, who introduced Profumo and Ivanov to Christine. Ward is awaiting trial on charges of living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Scotland Yard detectives Chief Inspector Samuel Herbert and Sgt. John Burrows questioned Profumo for two hours Wednesday in connection with the Ward case. Police have said more charges may be lodged against Ward.

No statements were made after Promumo left his meeting with the detectives. The former war minister returned home Tuesday for the first time since he went into hiding after resigning.

Miss Keeler has told police that Ward once asked her to try to get from Profumo the date of delivery of nuclear warheads to Germany. The requested information presumably was earmarked for Ivanov, Ward's friend and suspected intelligence agent. Miss Keeler said she did not ask the question.

Money Speaking Louder Than Rosy Forecasts

BY SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Dollars speak louder than rosy forecasts to businessmen—and to workers and investors and job seekers.

So, however promising the future looks to the planners, what really counts for the nation's retailers and producers and all other citizens is how the money is coming in right now.

For most it is coming in very well indeed.

The total of wages and salaries nis rising. The sums that stockholders are getting in dividends are at a record high, because the net profits of U.S. corporations have gone up despite the complaints of a profit squeeze.

Retailers are taking in more money, even if they'd like to ring up more. Savings institutions are taking in more money, too.

Builders are starting more houses. Factories as a whole are hiring more employes, despite the mechanization that in some industries means turning out more goods with fewer workers. The average work week has increased. The service industries continue to make more jobs, although not enough more to solve the personal problems of the unemployed.

All hands realize that this could change—either way. The expected slight summer letdown could be extended and then the money wouldn't pour in as it should. Or the economy could take off to new heights as the forecasters in Washington hope.

But today the dollars and cents figures speak loud.

Income is flowing into individual pockets at an annual rate of $458.2 billion, according to latest government figures. This pace is $18.5 billion faster than a year ago. It is also $1.2 billion better than in April, with most of the increase in wages and salaries.

This means that the five-point rise in the federal Reserve Board index of industrial production since the first of the year is benefitting the employes as well as the manufacturers.

But the corporations are doing all right, too. Early reports show a rise in profits in the current quarter. In the January-March qaurter earnings before taxes totalled $53.5 billion, compared with $53.25 billion in the final three months of 1962 and with $50.9 billion in the April-June period last year.

Rising wage and salary payments have kept most retailers on the upgrade. Biggest advances have been in sales of autos and other consumer hard goods. Both the car and appliance men are confident the better sales trend will continue. Appliance sales have picked up this spring.

Part of this is due to replacements. But a large part is tied in with the rise in home building. In May, housing units were being started at an annual rate of 1,728,000, a pace 149,000 faster than than a year ago, and 101,000 better than in April.

State Plans Big Cuts in Aged Medicare Pay

DENVER (AP) — Big cuts in Colorado's old age medical care program were forecast Wednesday by Welfare Director Guy Justis.

Justis said the cuts would take effect July 1 and are necessary if the medicare fund is to remain within its constitutional $10 million limit.

Justis said the slashes would mean, for the most part, that elderly pensioners would have to pay out more of their own money.

Pensioners will be limited to a maximum of 15 days in a hospital once a year with no extensions.

They will have to contribute $3.50 daily of their own money toward hospital costs. Pensioners receive $113 a month.

A new Blue Cross plan will cover pensioners — "Standard" instead of "Standard A." This will mean that pensioners will have to pay physicians more from their own pockets and that doctors will receive less from the state.

The state will not permit new admissions to nursing homes until the present 3,800 medicare patients now in the homes drops to 3,200. The 3,200 level will then be maintained.

The free drug phase of the program will be dropped.

Justis said welfare officials will discuss the proposals Friday morning with Gov. John Love.

The first happened to a bus belonging to the City Bus Co. when a side window was shot out with a BB gun. The vehicle had stopped just south of Sears Roebuck at Southgate.

Deputy Sheriff Al Moore said damage was estimated at $25.

The second sincident also concerned a broken window. Walter B. Hazlett of 3907 Mariposa St. told Deputy Sheriff Bernard Barry that the rear window of the family car had been smashed with a rock. The car was parked in front of the Hazlett home at the time and damage amounted to $10.

Lowden said the battery cover on his car had been broken. Damage is $5.

Garden Ranch Area Warned of Snakes

Capt. H. L. "Red" Davis of the Colorado Springs Police Department has warned residents of the Garden Ranch district that the area is infested with rattle snakes and that parents should warn their children to keep away from them.

As an example of the danger to children in the area, Davis related an experience he had a few days ago. He says, "I was driving my car out there and saw a rattler in the road. I ran over him and then stopped and got out to see if I had killed him. Well, I hadn't. In a gravely area on the side of the road it had joined another rattler. I shot both of them and then noticed a few toy cars and miniature roads in the gravel where children had apparently been playing a short time before."

Davis said the snakes were about 28 inches long. He recommended that parents tell their children not to try to catch the snakes or annoy them in any way, since the danger of being bitten is great.

Attorney Named For Creditors Of Joe Newcomer

Attorney Darrell Thomas has been named by the creditors committee of depositors in the Joe Newcomer Finance Co. to represent them in future court hearings into the financially troubled company.

Mrs. Lena Meier, chairman of the committee, said that Attorney Paul Evans would assist Thomas. She said the attorneys would also act as advisors to the committee.

The attorneys were selected as a meeting of the committee held Wednesday at the offices of the insolvent finance company.

Mrs. Meier said that the committee completed its organization at the meeting "so that it can work effectively to protect the interests of all involved in the present proceedings."

Newcomer's financial empire, built on a shaky pyramid of high interest rates for depositors and a dozen or so subsidiary companies, toppled last April when the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission clamped down on the local firm for alleged violations of its rules.

The company is in danger of being declared bankrupt by U.S. District court in November unless depositors, shareholders and the court-appointed trustee can show that the company is on its way to becoming solvent and can work out its financial difficulties.

Latest estimates place the Newcomer Company liabilities at more than $3 million. An audit is being undertaken at the present time and should be completed July 15.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market mustered a little firmness in spots at times today in mixed transactions on the board of trade.

Brokers said that except for a little bearish influence linked with a tie up of some shipping at coastal ports, trade factors were virtually unchanged from the past several days.

One analyst said that with most grain moving out of Chicago on the great lakes now, a slow down from ports elsewhere cold hardly be serious to the trade just now.

Prices ranged from firm to weak with speculators covering on setbacks and selling on bulges.

Estimated carlot receipts were corn 50, oats 1, barley 7, soybeans 14 and wheat and rye, none.

Exiles Denounce Claim That Red Troops Leaving

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban exile leaders today voiced sharp disagreement with a State Department report that Soviet troops in Cuba are "thinning out." They said there are more Russian troops on the island than ever.

"Only those with bad eyesight or those seeking to deceive the American public could make such a report," said former prime Minister Manuel de Verona, leader of the Revolutionary Democratic Rescue Exile group.

Luis Conte Aguero, leader of the Sentinels of Liberty and other underground organizations, said "more Soviet soldiers have entered Cuba than have left since the Caribbean crisis last fall. Only a few weeks ago, early in May, some 8,000 Soviet troops debarked at Santiago, Cuba, in full view of everybody."

New Cabinet Is Being Sought By Italians

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP)—Giovanni Leone, president of Italy's Chamber of Deputies, began a new attempt today to form a government by calling in leaders of nearly every political group—from Communists to fascists.

President Antonio Segni asked the Neopolitan to seek a way out of the worsening political crisis, which today rounded out its fifth week with no solution in sight.

It appears highly unlikely that Italy will have anything more than an interim government by June 30, when President Kennedy is scheduled to arrive.

A middle-of-the-road Christian Democrat, Leone, 54, was named premier-designate after the leader of his party, Alod Moro was forced to abandon his attempts to form a new center-left government. A Socialist party revolt deprived Moro of the support he needed to get a majortiy behind a coalition of Christian Democrats, Democratic Socialists and Republicans.

Immediately after getting the nod from Segni, Leone went into conference with leaders of his own party. Then, for the first time since the crisis began with Amintore Fanfani's resignation May 16, he arranged consultations with leaders of parties outside the four with whom Moro had been dickering.

This indicated that Leone had been picked to explore and then offer a workable solution.

Some of the possibilities:

He could suggest a time-marking minority government of Christian Democrats only. By agreement such a government would have everyone's support to enact only necessary business. This government would stay in until some better working arrangement emerged from the current political confusion.

He could try fo do what Moro failed at—get the Socialists behind a new center-left arrangement.

He could try for a center-right alliance, replacing the Socialists with the conservative Liberals. Either arrangement would give the government a parliamentary majority. But the Democratic Socialists strongly oppose collaboratio with the Liberals.

He could report back to Segni that it might be bet to call Fanfani back and ask him to try to re-form the center-left alliance he headed for 20 months before last April's parliamentary election.

To some observers this last seems a strong likelihood. A strong pro-Communist group in the Socialist Central Committee rejected cooperation with Moro because they considered him too conservative. But many in the Socialist party find Fanfani more to their taste.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investment advisor Walter McKibben of Investograph Stock Survey says he ventures to predict a new high very soon, and with it the return of the small investor.

"We can only hope that the economy remains strong enough so that the small investor is not immediately and badly burned," McKibben says. He believes the small investor is entering the market much too late to profit substantially but notes that "He is unlikely to get too badly hurt if he buys near current levels." McKibben warns that the time for caution will be if the market shoots up a quick 40 or 50 points.

Standard & Poor's notes that the market may have to work its way through a further period of consolidation before the advance can be resumed. It believes that increasing emphasis should be placed on realistic values in any new commitments.

Sylvan Epstein of Reuben Rose & Co., Inc. believes the market will eventually work its way out of the current narrow range and move forward. He notes that several important indicators are decidedly bullish and lead him to believe that the next few weeks may see the beginning of another strong upward move.

Three Injured As Car, Trailer Roll Wednesday

Three persons were injured and over $4,000 estimated damage done when a car pulling a trailer went out of control and left U.S Highway 24, four miles east of Colorado Springs Wednesday afternoon, the State Patrol reported.

F. E. Rayner, 71, of Big Bend, received a bruised forehead. All three were taken to a motel where a physician was called.

According to State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey, Mrs. Thuesen was driving with the right wheels of the trailer and car on the black top shoulder to stop the trailer from whipping. The shoulder turned to gravel and there was a three inch drop which caused the driver to lose control

Morrissey said the east bound vehicles continued down the road making "S" turns from the gravel shoulder to the concrete for 300 feet, then into a side skid for 79 feet across the highway. The car finally rolled over once and landed on its wheels in the median strip. All three of the car's occupants remained in the car during the roll, according to the report.

Police Protect Party Girl in British Scandal

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Police guarded party girl Christine Keeler today because of threats stemming from the Profumo scandal that has rocked the government and shocked London society.

A police spokesman said guards were posted at Miss Keeler's apartment after a number of anonymous threats against her life were made by telephone. Authorities warned the 22-year-old redhead not to answer her door.

Scotland Yard was reported planning to question more society figures in a vice probe connected with the sex and security scandal touched off by the resignation of War Minister John Profumo because of his illicit love affair with Miss Keeler.

On the political front, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan fought a rear-guard action against persistent demands that he resign because of his handling of the Profumo affair. The 69-year-old Conservative party leader was determined not to let the scandal force him out of office.

The prime minister called a cabinet meeting this morning, followed by a session with opposition Labor Party Leoder Harold Wilson to discuss further steps for an inquiry into the Profumo case.

Profumo, 48, quit June 4 after admitting he lied in telling the House of Commons on March 22 that there was nothing improper about his friendship with Miss Keeler. It turned out he was having an affair with her at the time she also was the mistress of Soviet assistant naval attache Eugene Ivanov.

The House of Commons had before it a motion citing Profumo's "grave contempt" of Parliament. The motion was tabled Wednesday night by both the Conservative and Labor parties.

The political infighting tended to be overshadowed by new developments in the vice case against society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, 50, who introduced Profumo and Ivanov to Christine. Ward is awaiting trial on charges of living off the earnings of prostitutes.

Scotland Yard detectives Chief Inspector Samuel Herbert and Sgt. John Burrows questioned Profumo for two hours Wednesday in connection with the Ward case. Police have said more charges may be lodged against Ward.

No statements were made after Promumo left his meeting with the detectives. The former war minister returned home Tuesday for the first time since he went into hiding after resigning.

Miss Keeler has told police that Ward once asked her to try to get from Profumo the date of delivery of nuclear warheads to Germany. The requested information presumably was earmarked for Ivanov, Ward's friend and suspected intelligence agent. Miss Keeler said she did not ask the question.

Money Speaking Louder Than Rosy Forecasts

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Dollars speak louder than rosy forecasts to businessmen—and to workers and investors and job seekers.

So, however promising the future looks to the planners, what really counts for the nation's retailers and producers and all other citizens is how the money is coming in right now.

For most it is coming in very well indeed.

The total of wages and salaries nis rising. The sums that stockholders are getting in dividends are at a record high, because the net profits of U.S. corporations have gone up despite the complaints of a profit squeeze.

Retailers are taking in more money, even if they'd like to ring up more. Savings institutions are taking in more money, too.

Builders are starting more houses. Factories as a whole are hiring more employes, despite the mechanization that in some industries means turning out more goods with fewer workers. The average work week has increased. The service industries continue to make more jobs, although not enough more to solve the personal problems of the unemployed.

All hands realize that this could change—either way. The expected slight summer letdown could be extended and then the money wouldn't pour in as it should. Or the economy could take off to new heights as the forecasters in Washington hope.

But today the dollars and cents figures speak loud.

Income is flowing into individual pockets at an annual rate of $458.2 billion, according to latest government figures. This pace is $18.5 billion faster than a year ago. It is also $1.2 billion better than in April, with most of the increase in wages and salaries.

This means that the five-point rise in the federal Reserve Board index of industrial production since the first of the year is benefitting the employes as well as the manufacturers.

But the corporations are doing all right, too. Early reports show a rise in profits in the current quarter. In the January-March qaurter earnings before taxes totalled $53.5 billion, compared with $53.25 billion in the final three months of 1962 and with $50.9 billion in the April-June period last year.

Rising wage and salary payments have kept most retailers on the upgrade. Biggest advances have been in sales of autos and other consumer hard goods. Both the car and appliance men are confident the better sales trend will continue. Appliance sales have picked up this spring.

Part of this is due to replacements. But a large part is tied in with the rise in home building. In May, housing units were being started at an annual rate of 1,728,000, a pace 149,000 faster than than a year ago, and 101,000 better than in April.

State Plans Big Cuts in Aged Medicare Pay

DENVER (AP) — Big cuts in Colorado's old age medical care program were forecast Wednesday by Welfare Director Guy Justis.

Justis said the cuts would take effect July 1 and are necessary if the medicare fund is to remain within its constitutional $10 million limit.

Justis said the slashes would mean, for the most part, that elderly pensioners would have to pay out more of their own money.

Pensioners will be limited to a maximum of 15 days in a hospital once a year with no extensions.

They will have to contribute $3.50 daily of their own money toward hospital costs. Pensioners receive $113 a month.

A new Blue Cross plan will cover pensioners — "Standard" instead of "Standard A." This will mean that pensioners will have to pay physicians more from their own pockets and that doctors will receive less from the state.

The state will not permit new admissions to nursing homes until the present 3,800 medicare patients now in the homes drops to 3,200. The 3,200 level will then be maintained.

The free drug phase of the program will be dropped.

Justis said welfare officials will discuss the proposals Friday morning with Gov. John Love.

Tablet Tells If Teeth Get Daily Brushoff

By JOSH EPPINGER

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A little red tablet has brought drama to the dentist's chair. Some dentists are now using a harmless food coloring dye to show their patients the ineffectiveness of their tooth-brushing exercise.

The dye is contained in a red tablet (on the market as x-pose tablets).

You pop the tablet into your mouth, chew for 30 seconds, open your mouth and see your teeth and gums stained red wherever your toothbrush missed.

Brother, if you see red, you had better do more than stop. What you may think is last night's nightmare is really transparent mucilaginous material — or what dentists refer to as dental plaques.

By selectively staining the bacterial plaques, the tablet shows you where your brush is failing. Bacteria thrives within the plaques. And where there's bacteria, dentist bills aren't too far behind.

Within seconds, acid forms on the plaque and the tooth gradually dissolves — first the enamel softens and then a hole or cavity forms.

Use of the tell-tale dye has also changed many dentists' thinking about dental hygiene. Many now feel brushing after every meal is not enough. In addition, they urge use of dental floss, a thread-like material.

A few feel the routine should even be prolonged by massaging of the gums with match - like sticks enclosed in a match - like book.

One San Francisco dentist suggested the after-meal ritual can be performed while watching television or listening to the radio.

Silent Spring Is Feared In Halls of U.S. Congress

By JOHN A. BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — This noisy spring, Congress is worried over the possibility of a silent one.

Two congressional committees are occupied with health warnings on the dangers of pesticides, demonstrations of the sex habits of the male cockroach, and cries of concern for man's feathered and furred friends.

Such is the legislative impact of Rachel Carson's popular anthology of death, "Silent Spring," and the public clamor it has evoked.

Already Miss Carson has testified before one committee, and asked Congress to curb sales of pesticides, and to cut down on serial spraying.

Beside this she wants to arm individuals with the legal right to seek redress in the courts against neighbors who spray not too well, but too widely, and allow poisons to intrude another's domestic domain.

She insisted repeatedly that she does not want to stamp out pest control—but instead wants reasonable controls on the use of pesticides.

Even before she testified the President's Science Advisory Committee had suggested there be tighter federal controls.

The committee also urged a philosophy of insect control, rather than insect eradication, by pesticide-using federal agencies.

The U.S. Forest Service—about to spray private land in Washington State—called off its plans because it couldn't guarantee the safety of oysters in nearby coastal waters.

Thus did the oysters save a pest called the hemlock looper from the ravages of DDT.

Senators sat in rapt attention while agriculture experts showed how male cockroaches frantically trailed the scent of the female cockroach — a lure the experts hope to make a lethal one in insect control.

Two bills are pending in the Senate to better protect wildlife from any spraying programs, and to tighten labeling regulations on toxic chemicals.

Government officials have stepped into the fray. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall testified that pesticide residues are fied that pesticide residues ar being found in a number of bird astepped into the fray. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall testified that pesticide residues are being found in a number of bird and animal specimens and even in fish caught far from land.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn. a former secretary of health education and welfare, has called on private industry to seek new pest controls which would be potentially less dangerous.

Presidential science advisor Jerome Wiesner has testified that the contamination of the environment with chemicals including pesticides is potentially more hazardous than radioactive fallout. He was quick to add that this is not now the case.

Probably the most hard-headed report on the situation so far has been that prepared by Weisner's science committee.

It noted specific needs for stronger federal control, some past deficiencies too. But it cautioned against devaluing the use of pesticides too much.

Discussing man's ability to manipulate his environment, the report said:

"Advances have always entailed a degree of risk which society must weigh and either accept, or reject, as the price of material progress."

The report credited modern chemicals with easing the control of insect-carriers of disease, and with the "unprecedented production of food, feed and fiber."

But, the report added, there is concern about the increasing contamination by pesticide chemicals of the environment.

Because these chemicals are designed to kill or block life, they are potentially dangerous to other living creatures. The scientific panel said there must be a more complete understanding of these chemicals and their long-term effect on living creatures, including man.

Little is known about the danger of pesticide use to man. The science committee would like to see more studies spell out just how much of the toxic chemicals man can take, whether there are hidden, long-term dangers.

Texan Gets Windfall Pay From Uncle Sam

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — Lon Hawkins, 83, received $3,559 unexpectedly because of a mixup in his Social Security benefits. He lost his original Social Security card in the 1930s and applied for a second one. On the first application he gave his parents' names and on the second he listed his foster parents, so the cards were filed as belonging to separate persons.

When he applied for benefits the second card did not show enough work hours for benefits but he found the first one and reapplied, presenting both cards. Then the error came to light and he was given the pay-off in a lump sum for the back period.

Excessive Stockpiling Of Sugar Is Stopped

WASHINGTON (UPI)—"Excessive" stockpiling of sugar has stopped and a decline in supply has set in, the Agriculture Department said here.

The agency said that during the week ended June 8, the primary distributors—refiners, processors, and importers of refined sugar—sold only 134,571 tons. This was the lowest sale in a single week since February, and compared to 176,526 tons in the previous week and 211,869 tons in the corresponding week last year.

The sharp rise in the price of sugar during April and May was attributed primarily to the excessive buying which took place in anticipation of higher prices, the department said. The price of raw sugar has dropped substantially since reaching its peak on May 23. On June 13, it was 8.5 cents a pound, compared with 13.2 cents a pound on May 23.

No Definite Values Seen in Modern World

NEW YORK (AP) — In bygone years, many people lived by a set of definite, concrete values. But it is not that way now, Dr. Robert W. Jenson, of Luther College, writes in a new book, "Alpha and Omega," published by Thomas Nelson & Sons. He says:

"In our world we say of truth that it all depends on the point of view, of beauty that we don't know much about art . . . of goodness that we must each find his own values."

Soviet Intellectuals Will Be Regimented Again

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Rebellious Soviet intellectuals have the bad news: they are going to be regimented all over again. It will be something like a union of thinkers, with the state telling them exactly what to think.

Through his chief ideological spoksman, Premier Khrushchev has told the intellectuals that only the party has "the right and duty to direct the processes of social life" for all the people.

A state-controlled union of all creative people—writers, artists, radio and television workers, scenarists and the like—seems in prospect.

Khrushchev's spokesman, stern-faced and uncompromising Leonid Ilyichev, told the party's important Central Committee session on ideology Tuesday that he supports the idea of an organization to "pool all artistic forces into a single union of creative workers."

Such a union would make the creative people far easier to control than they are now. The party obviously means business.

The party, Ilyichev warned, "has never shared nor will it share with anyone its guidance of ideology." It has "directed and will go on directing he entire ideological life of the country."

This was a clear warning that the work of writers and artists who do not knuckle under will be consigned to oblivion.

Artists who balk at total submission have been sullenly unproductive ever since Khrushchev lowered the boom on them for straying from party norms of "socialist realis." That, in a nutshell, means producing only what is designed to further the aims of the state.

Ilyichev thundered: "We say to those who expect the struggle against ideological waverings and distortions to be a temporary campaign which will soon be over and forgotten while they sit it out and say nothing: it won't work!"

For creative people, this will be Stalinism all over again.

Khrushchev's destruction of the Stalin myth had appeared to open the door to free expression. Taking the cue from Khrushchev, intellectuals denounced the cruel sins of Stalin's day. But by indirection, this condemned the system under which the Communist party carried out Stalin's will. The party is unwilling to share the blame in any way.

Worried about influences from the West affecting a rising and restless generation, the party applied the brakes. Ilyichev, with Khrushchev listening, brusquely told the intellectuals the party will battle on two fronts—against Western tendencies and against "monotony and hack work."

There lies the big dilemma. Creative people in a political strait jacket, permitted to travel only a narrow, well-marked road, can produce little but the same old hack work—love on a collective farm or the joy of socialist competition in the factory. Already this had brought about boredom, then rebellion. The only way to escape monotony would be to break out of the straitjacket.

The party, of course, can deny writers and artists access to the Soviet or world public. Novels of rebel writers, paintings of rebel artists, will not see the light of day.

But the party fights an uphill battle against tides of change. The rebellion will continue to smolder beneath the surface. The new attempt at regimentation is likely to make the revolt, in the long run, even more dangerous.

'War' in Laos Has Feeling Of Unreality

By ANTOINE YARED

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — At night they drive their jeeps and trucks with the lights on. They leave the lights on in their tents.

They are the neutralist and pro-Communist Pathet Lao armies facing each other and fighting a "war" in the Plaine des Jarres area of Laos, 110 miles north of here.

Everybody knows where everybody else is.

Western military observers, who visited the barren, little plateau, said the reason for this nonchalance in a battle zone probably is that neither side wants to do much damage to the other.

Observers say hostilities do not constitute war as viewed by Western military strategists. Its only resemblance to war is that the soldiers are digging trenches and throwing shells at each other from time to time.

Since fighting erupted March 31, unofficial figures put casualties on the neutralist side at more than 200 killed and several hundred wounded. The Pathet Lao never divulge their losses and they are difficult to estimate.

Communiques issued by both sides frequently use the military terms artillery barrage, violent combat and hand-to-hand fighting.

But Western military observers say the worst artillery barrage lasted three consecutive hours. When a maximum of 300 shells are fired, this is considered heavy bombardment.

The observers say the salvos seldom hit anything because neither side has artillery control. Most shells usually fall on surrounding barren hills. The observers, however, say that the Pathet Lao have better gunners because they have the Communist North Vietnamese on their side. The impression is that the Pathet Lao do not want to press too hrad on the neutralist forces of Gen. Kong Le—at least for the moment.

The observers say the neutralist troops, who number about 3,000, are not always in position to silence the Pathet Lao guns because they either are not accurate enough or do not have long-range artillery to reach the Pathet Lao guns.

The Pathet Lao, with a force of about 5,000 have a variety of Russian-made guns which are superior to Kong Le's, which include 85mm and 76mm and 82 recoilless weapons.

Kong Le has some 85mm Russian-made guns but lacks enough ammunition. He also has 105mm American-made howitzers.

So far, the territory lost by Kong Le is no more than 30 square miles. But this is considered to be a great gain for the Communists. The diplomats say the Communist policy is to nibble until they eventually control all of Laos.

However, the diplomats say the Pathet Lao seems to be frightened of the consequences if they abruptly take all of the Plaine. Three strategic roads cross the Plaine. Two lead to North Viet Nam. The third runs southwest to Vientiane and the rest of Laos. Control of this would give the Communists easy access to pro-Western Thailand.

Poverty, Wealth, Mark Differences Thruout India

By MICHAEL T. MALLOY

NEW DELHI (UPI)—An Indian pilot with a name like Mukherjee put his skilled hands on the controls of a giant jetliner one day this week and brought a planeload of tourists into Calcutta airport with deft precision.

At the same moment, another Indian with a name like Mukherjee, threw his numbed weight against the wood and leather harness of a crude rickshaw. He dragged his tourist into the streets of Calcutta with the blank eyes and sweating flanks of an overworked cart horse.

The neaty turned-out pilot and half-naked, barefoot coolie are worlds away from each other in education, politics and the amount of food they put into their stomachs. But by the standards of the paradoxical "nation" of India, they have many things in common.

They are both dark and slim and obviously different from their burly, fair-skinned, fellow citizens in northwestern India.

They both speak a sophisticated language called Bengali. They look down on India's 13 other "official" languages as crude and barbarous dialects.

They are both Hindus, yet they live in a country which contains more Catholics than Ireland and more Moslems than Egypt.

The two Mukherjees are worlds away from each other. But they are also worlds away from most of the 440 million other Indians who make this the most complicated, confusing nation on earth.

India can only be described in extremes and paradoxes like the Mukherjees.

Compare it for instance with another sub-continent — Western Europe. India is bigger and more populous. It includes more races, religions, languages, peoples and social classes.

Yet India, somehow, is a single nation.

The nation sprawls over 1,221,880 square miles, enclosed in a great irregular triangle. The triangle's southernmost point reaches as far south as Venezuela. Its northwestern corner is 2,000 miles away, in the latitude of the U.S. state of Oklahoma.

The second highest mountain in the world—K-2—is located on this northwestern shoulder. An imaginary superman with a 2,000-mile vision could see all of India if he climbed to the top of this five-mile high peak.

Looking toward the Indian plains, he would see range on range of snowcapped mountains directly below him. Slant-eyed, Tibetan-speaking, Buddhist monks turn prayer wheels and sip yak butter tea on the mountain-sides. Grey-green tents of the Indian army are pitched around the monks' monasteries to guard against further Red Chinese incursions.

Similar tents are pitched further south in the beautiful Kashmir valley, which is disputed between India and Pakistan.

The fair-skinned Kashmiris, many of whom have blond hair and blue eyes, live in a world of their own, where clear trout streams rush down from pine clad mountains and palatial houseboats drift lazily on the gleaming Dal Lake.

Further south, and over another range of mountains, lies the stories Punjab. This is a country of sturdy, independent farmers who own their own land and have the highest standard of living among the Indian peasantry.

The Punjabis are fighters as well as farmers. They call their land "the sword of India," and send more of their sons to the army than the people of any other state.

Below the Puniab lies the Indian capital of New Delhi.

The capital is the most strategic location in India. It lies near the headquarters of the great Indus and Ganges river valleys, which make up the rich and ancient plains of Hindustan.

South of the great river valleys of Hindustan, India begins to change. The people become darker as the traveler crossses the Deccan plateau of central India. Their language changes from the ancient Sanskrit based tongues of the north to the soft accents of the Dravidian languages. The differences are as great, or greater, as the transition from Norway to Sicily.

The southerners are divided into four states, including the narrow, coastal strip of Kerala which was once ruled by the only freely elected Communist regime in the world. At the same time, Kerala is the most Christian state in India, and the only one where more than half the people can read and write.

The brief survey from the top of K-2 leaves out many interesting dots on the map of India. It ignores the west coast metropolis of Bombay, where 5 million people live in a bustling, booming city as sophisticated as any in Europe.

It scarcely touches on the ghastly slums of Calcutta, where uncounted thousands are born, live and die in the streets, on even terms with the homeless cows which wander aimlessly through city traffic.

But hardest to see is the social growth which floats up pilots, engineers, doctors and scientists to the surface of the vast pool of Indian humanity.

They pour steel, build jet airplanes and grind out more movies than Hollywood. They skipper a merchant navy twice as big as Australia's. The engineers turn out more kilowatt hours of electricity than Denmark, Portugal, Cuba, Ireland and Hungary combined.

More than 100,000 Indian youth are enrolled in universities in Calcutta alone. The literate population of the country, all by itself, would form the fourth largest nation in the world.

But for 110 million Indians who can read and write, there are 330 million who cannot even sign their names.

For every booming steel mill, there are thousands of villages which have no roads, telephones or schools.

For every white coated scientist at the Trombay atomic reactor station, there are thousands of peasants too superstitious to let themselves be vaccinated for smallpox.

The political leadership of Jawaharlal Nehru is giving the peasants a "do it yourself" education in democracy. The leadership trusts itself to the votes of the poor and ignorant, and so far the peasants and coolies have returned this trust at the voting booth.

Some Pupils Still Ride on Horseback

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York has a reputation as being one of the nation's most progressive states in the field of public education, but 44 pupils still ride to school on horseback, the State Education Department says.

The students live in remote rural areas, on narrow, crudely fashioned roads where it is impossible to drive a school bus, the department says.

But the percentage of pupils transported by horses is small. The department says 905,862 children, exclusive of New York City, were transported to New York State schools last year.

"Polemics" is the art of disputation and controversy, that is, "waging war with words."

INTEGRATION ADVANCES

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state department of education hopes that by the end of 1963, all of Kentucky's 206 school districts will have some integrated schools or plans to admit children of all races. The department says only 20 districts began 1963 without apparent integration plans.

Poverty, Wealth, Mark Differences Thruout India

By MICHAEL T. MALLOY

NEW DELHI (UPI)—An Indian pilot with a name like Mukherjee put his skilled hands on the controls of a giant jetliner one day this week and brought a planeload of tourists into Calcutta airport with deft precision.

At the same moment, another Indian with a name like Mukherjee, threw his numbed weight against the wood and leather harness of a crude rickshaw. He dragged his tourist into the streets of Calcutta with the blank eyes and sweating flanks of an overworked cart horse.

The neaty turned-out pilot and half-naked, barefoot coolie are worlds away from each other in education, politics and the amount of food they put into their stomachs. But by the standards of the paradoxical "nation" of India, they have many things in common.

They are both dark and slim and obviously different from their burly, fair-skinned, fellow citizens in northwestern India.

They both speak a sophisticated language called Bengali. They look down on India's 13 other "official" languages as crude and barbarous dialects.

They are both Hindus, yet they live in a country which contains more Catholics than Ireland and more Moslems than Egypt.

The two Mukherjees are worlds away from each other. But they are also worlds away from most of the 440 million other Indians who make this the most complicated, confusing nation on earth.

India can only be described in extremes and paradoxes like the Mukherjees.

Compare it for instance with another sub-continent — Western Europe. India is bigger and more populous. It includes more races, religions, languages, peoples and social classes.

Yet India, somehow, is a single nation.

The nation sprawls over 1,221,880 square miles, enclosed in a great irregular triangle. The triangle's southernmost point reaches as far south as Venezuela. Its northwestern corner is 2,000 miles away, in the latitude of the U.S. state of Oklahoma.

The second highest mountain in the world—K-2—is located on this northwestern shoulder. An imaginary superman with a 2,000-mile vision could see all of India if he climbed to the top of this five-mile high peak.

Looking toward the Indian plains, he would see range on range of snowcapped mountains directly below him. Slant-eyed, Tibetan-speaking, Buddhist monks turn prayer wheels and sip yak butter tea on the mountain-sides. Grey-green tents of the Indian army are pitched around the monks' monasteries to guard against further Red Chinese incursions.

Similar tents are pitched further south in the beautiful Kashmir valley, which is disputed between India and Pakistan.

The fair-skinned Kashmiris, many of whom have blond hair and blue eyes, live in a world of their own, where clear trout streams rush down from pine clad mountains and palatial houseboats drift lazily on the gleaming Dal Lake.

Further south, and over another range of mountains, lies the stories Punjab. This is a country of sturdy, independent farmers who own their own land and have the highest standard of living among the Indian peasantry.

The Punjabis are fighters as well as farmers. They call their land "the sword of India," and send more of their sons to the army than the people of any other state.

Below the Punjab lies the Indian capital of New Delhi.

The capital is the most strategic location in India. It lies near the headquarters of the great Indus and Ganges river valleys, which make up the rich and ancient plains of Hindustan.

South of the great river valleys of Hindustan, India begins to change. The people become darker as the traveler crossses the Deccan plateau of central India. Their language changes from the ancient Sanskrit based tongues of the north to the soft accents of the Dravidian languages. The differences are as great, or greater, as the transition from Norway to Sicily.

The southerners are divided into four states, including the narrow, coastal strip of Kerala which was once ruled by the only freely elected Communist regime in the world. At the same time, Kerala is the most Christian state in India, and the only one where more than half the people can read and write.

The brief survey from the top of K-2 leaves out many interesting dots on the map of India. It ignores the west coast metropolis of Bombay, where 5 million people live in a bustling, booming city as sophisticated as any in Europe.

It scarcely touches on the ghastly slums of Calcutta, where uncounted thousands are born, live and die in the streets, on even terms with the homeless cows which wander aimlessly through city traffic.

But hardest to see is the social growth which floats up pilots, engineers, doctors and scientists to the surface of the vast pool of Indian humanity.

They pour steel, build jet airplanes and grind out more movies than Hollywood. They skipper a merchant navy twice as big as Australia's. The engineers turn out more kilowatt hours of electricity than Denmark, Portugal, Cuba, Ireland and Hungary combined.

More than 100,000 Indian youth are enrolled in universities in Calcutta alone. The literate population of the country, all by itself, would form the fourth largest nation in the world.

But for 110 million Indians who can read and write, there are 330 million who cannot even sign their names.

For every booming steel mill, there are thousands of villages which have no roads, telephones or schools.

For every white coated scientist at the Trombay atomic reactor station, there are thousands of peasants too superstitious to let themselves be vaccinated for smallpox.

The political leadership of Jawaharlal Nehru is giving the peasants a "do it yourself" education in democracy. The leadership trusts itself to the votes of the poor and ignorant, and so far the peasants and coolies have returned this trust at the voting booth.

Some Pupils Still Ride on Horseback

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — New York has a reputation as being one of the nation's most progressive states in the field of public education, but 44 pupils still ride to school on horseback, the State Education Department says.

The students live in remote rural areas, on narrow, crudely fashioned roads where it is impossible to drive a school bus, the department says.

But the percentage of pupils transported by horses is small. The department says 905,862 children, exclusive of New York City, were transported to New York State schools last year.

INTEGRATION ADVANCES

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state department of education hopes that by the end of 1963, all of Kentucky's 206 school districts will have some integrated schools or plans to admit children of all races. The department says only 20 districts began 1963 without apparent integration plans.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

COMPLIMENTS AND COMPLAINTS

Some of our readers are nice to us. An example is a Chicago woman who writes: "If your Easter column would be read carefully and applied, it would relieve more human suffering than any other thing I can think of. Its message is needed more than medical prescriptions. Thank you for your wonderful words and thoughts."

Other readers may be nice but they are not always complimentary. Another Chicagoan was critical of my answer to a question on when medical science will be able to bring the dead back to life. I replied that this is being done thru heart massage and electrical stimulation in some victims of coronary thrombosis.

He writes, "Don't you think your answer is indecisive, inconclusive, and rather arrogant. Were these persons really dead. Granted that there were no signs of life, had life really fled? Perhaps we should let God decide whether these people were dead or only in a deep coma."

I did not say physicians can save everyone from death but limited my reply to certain victims of heart attacks. Death is inevitable and saving a person's life today is only postponing death from another disease at a later date.

A retired colonel writes from Tampa that he is amazed at me for not understanding the expression, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." The explanation, he writes, is that apples are mildly laxative. "I'm nearing my 80th birthday and have a tendency toward constipation, which is relieved by eating an apple at 9 p.m. every night."

Fruit is a good laxative and eating apples also helps cleanse the teeth. Enough said but I question whether this is how the colonel kept "the doctor away." He must have been born with a wonderful constitution and practiced moderation during his long life.

Weight from Beer

J. P. writes: How much would a person gain in a year by drinking a bottle of beer a day?

Repy

One bottle of beer contains 173 calories. It takes 3,500 unused calories to gain a pound. If the individual eats just enough to maintain the same weight, the daily bottle of beer would add approximately 17 pounds a year. A pound is gained about every 20 days.

Family or Orthopedic

A. L. writes: What kind of a doctor do you go to with sciatica?

Reply

Consult your family doctor. If the condition is caused by a protruding disk in the spine, he may suggest a consultation with an orthopedic or a neuro-surgeon. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on sciatica.

Chills Without Fever

T. S. writes: What would cause frequent chills when the temperature remains normal?

Reply

Chills may occur when the temperature is normal or sub-normal. Fever follows the chill. On the other hand, a person may develop a chilly sensation or the shakes without a rise in temperature. This is not a true chill.

Nose Grows

J. K. writes: Does the nose grow larger with age? My Dad is 75 and I'm sure his nose is getting larger.

Reply

Yes. Cartilage continues to grow in old age and the nose and ears may become more prominent.

Today's Health Hint

Fruits and vegetables give you minerals, vitamins, and necessary bulk.

New Engineering Students to Get Aid

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Florida engineers are developing a plan to bring college within the reach of deserving youngsters at no cost to taxpayers.

The Florida Engineering Society will raise its professional registration fees enough to make $500,000 a year available for direct loans to engineering students, if the state legislature okays the plan. The money will be repaid by the students after college.

As an incentive to keep the graduate engineer in Florida, interest on the loan will be cancelled if the student remains to practice engineering in the state.

Two-Room Stone Hut Ancestral Kennedy Home

By TOM A. CULLEN

NEW ROSS, Eire (NEA)—The automobiles with their loads of American tourists cram the narrow Irish lane leading from New Ross to President Kennedy's ancestral home at nearby Dunganstown.

The cars whip the ends off the tender green ferns which line the lane, kick up dust, frighten the cows. But the intrepid Americans push on, cameras in hand.

Mecca for these pilgrims is a two-room stone hut once occupied by President Kennedy's great-grandfather, Patrick Kennedy, and soon to be visited by the President himself.

For one thing, its original thatched roof has been replaced by one of corrugated iron, which is painted bright green. For another, the hut is bare of furnishings.

Yet this modest hovel may become an American national shrine, a sort of "political Lourdes," as one Irishman wittily described it to me.

The steady stream of visitors, however, is playing havoc with the lives of President Kennedy's cousins who live in Dunganstown.

Oldest of them is Maggie Whitty, age 85, and recently widowed. Maggie lives in a small white cottage which is every American's dream of what an Irish homestead should be. It not only has a thatched roof, but rambling roses and an apple tree.

On the walls of the cottage among the holy pictures are framed photos of her dead brothers James and John, both of whom have the unmistakable square jaw of the Kennedys.

Because of her advanced age, Maggie is more or less shielded from the tourists. But Mrs. Mary Kennedy Ryan, 57, who owns the farm on which the Kennedy ancestral home is located, is not so fortunate. She is constantly being routed out by visitors who want to photograph her or to shake her hand.

Mrs. Ryan is more of a thoroughbred Kennedy than the President himself. She married her second cousin, thus uniting two branches of the Kennedy family.

"I can't get any work done," Mrs. Ryan, who is a short, stout woman with a weatherbeaten face, told me. "Every time I start to do something I am interrupted by visitors. I hate to turn them away, but then there is only me and Josie to run the farm."

Josie is Mrs. Ryan's daughter, an attractive, dark-haired colleen of 25. She helps her mother with farm chores, which include looking after a few chickens and cows. Another daughter, Mary Anne, is a nurse in Dublin.

Josie is looking forward to the visit of cousin John Fitzgerald Kennedy. "I was only a girl when he came list time, so I don't remember much about him." (President Kennedy visited Dunganstown once before in 1947.)

At a nearby farm I found Mrs. Ryan's brother, Jim Kennedy, hastily putting up a new gate in order to keep intruders out of his farmyard. Jim Kennedy and his son Patrick, 23, look strikingly like the President, particularly around the eyes.

These are President Kennedy's "nearest and dearest" kin as far as the Kennedy side of the family is concerned.

In the beginning it seemed as though everyone in New Ross (pop. 4,600) was claiming kinship to the President. These claims were put forward from no desire to deceive, but simply because local lineage, if traced far enough back, is bound to encounter a Kennedy.

Then there are he Murphys. Great-grandfather Patrick Kennedy married one Bridgit Murphy of Wexford, and this has opened the floodgates for dozens of Murphys to lay claim to President Kennedy as a relative.

In th end good sense has prevailed. And by tacit agreement among the Kennedys and Murphys the legitimate claimants are now limited to the families at Dunganstown.

After President Kennedy's election Mrs. Ryan thought his great - grandfather's homestead should be preserved as a historic monument, and she applied to the Irish government for help in restoration. It had fallen into a bad state of decay.

Unsuccessful in her plea, she went ahead and replaced at her own expense the mangy thatched roof with the present corrugated iron one, which was all that she could afford. Meanwhile, the government thought the matter over and offered to pay for a new thatched roof, but its offer came too late.

With typical Kennedy pride, Mrs. Ryan turned the government people down. She would continue to look after the family manse, as she had done before, thank you.

COMPLIMENTS AND COMPLAINTS

Some of our readers are nice to us. An example is a Chicago woman who writes: "If your Easter column would be read carefully and applied, it would relieve more human suffering than any other thing I can think of. Its message is needed more than medical prescriptions. Thank you for your wonderful words and thoughts."

Other readers may be nice but they are not always complimentary. Another Chicagoan was critical of my answer to a question on when medical science will be able to bring the dead back to life. I replied that this is being done thru heart massage and electrical stimulation in some victims of coronary thrombosis.

He writes, "Don't you think your answer is indecisive, inconclusive, and rather arrogant. Were these persons really dead. Granted that there were no signs of life, had life really fled? Perhaps we should let God decide whether these people were dead or only in a deep coma."

I did not say physicians can save everyone from death but limited my reply to certain victims of heart attacks. Death is inevitable and saving a person's life today is only postponing death from another disease at a later date.

A retired colonel writes from Tampa that he is amazed at me for not understanding the expression, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." The explanation, he writes, is that apples are mildly laxative. "I'm nearing my 80th birthday and have a tendency toward constipation, which is relieved by eating an apple at 9 p.m. every night."

Fruit is a good laxative and eating apples also helps cleanse the teeth. Enough said but I question whether this is how the colonel kept "the doctor away." He must have been born with a wonderful constitution and practiced moderation during his long life.

Weight from Beer

J. P. writes: How much would a person gain in a year by drinking a bottle of beer a day?

Repy

One bottle of beer contains 173 calories. It takes 3,500 unused calories to gain a pound. If the individual eats just enough to maintain the same weight, the daily bottle of beer would add approximately 17 pounds a year. A pound is gained about every 20 days.

Family or Orthopedic

A. L. writes: What kind of a doctor do you go to with sciatica?

Reply

Consult your family doctor. If the condition is caused by a protruding disk in the spine, he may suggest a consultation with an orthopedic or a neuro-surgeon. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on sciatica.

Chills Without Fever

T. S. writes: What would cause frequent chills when the temperature remains normal?

Reply

Chills may occur when the temperature is normal or sub-normal. Fever follows the chill. On the other hand, a person may develop a chilly sensation or the shakes without a rise in temperature. This is not a true chill.

Nose Grows

J. K. writes: Does the nose grow larger with age? My Dad is 75 and I'm sure his nose is getting larger.

Reply

Yes. Cartilage continues to grow in old age and the nose and ears may become more prominent.

Today's Health Hint

Fruits and vegetables give you minerals, vitamins, and necessary bulk.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Success as a Key To Tax Exemption

Professor Oscar Cooley, whose writings appear occasionally on this page, has reminded us that back in 1872 Samuel Butler wrote something called "Erewhon, or Over the Range," which provides a challenging concept in the field of taxation. A direct quote from this publication is as follows:

"This is the true philanthropy. He who makes a colossal fortune in the hosiery trade, and by his energy has succeeded in reducing the price of woolen goods by the thousandth part of a penny in the pound — this man is worth ten professional philanthropists. So strongly are the Erewhonians impressed with this that if a man has made a fortune of over 20,000 pounds a year they exempt him from all taxation, considering him as a work of art and too precious to be meddled with; they say, 'How very much he must have done for society before society could have been prevailed upon to give him so much money; so magnificent an organization overawes them; they regard it as a thing dropped from heaven."

This challenging idea is so far removed from present practices that it may come as a distinct shock to the reader. But we suggest that each reader consider the implications seriously. What kind of a society would we have if successful men were exempted from all taxation? Would not this process serve as a major impetus in causing men to strive for unusual success?

Since no man ever attains to financial competence to a large degree without the willing cooperation of many others, imagine the degree of progress which could be accomplished in a society where this procedure was the general rule.

We would be quite willing to suggest that this man, paying no taxes, should also be exempted from receiving any services from government. He would have to protest his own property, manage his own affairs and otherwise be fully responsible for all that he did.

But what a delightful situation this would create. Those who were unwilling or unable to exert themselves to this degree would be the only ones having to pay for government. Also, they would be the only ones to receive any service from the government.

At the present time, the situation is distorted. Those who are most successful are paying the largest share of taxes in support of those who are least successful. And what a curtailment of the will to succeed is this vicious practice!

Indeed, if the present emphasis upon reward for the unworthy is extended to its logical limits, we will discover that in time it will become desirable for most of us to not work at all. For if we produce nothing we will be in line for the largest rewards, based wholly on our needs, which by then will be enormous.

Our difficulty in grasping the merit of Samuel Butler's position is our already firm reliance upon the state as a sort of automatic paternalistic mechanism to assuage our many woes.

Yet if true philanthropy were viewed as that which derives from the entrepreneur who creates goods or provides services; who hires thousands of men and pays their wages; who produces at a price others are willing to pay; who minds his own business and is positively not a burden on anyone....what a difference this could make in our taxing situation.

If the Butler idea were followed consistently, we surmise that with the passing of time the tax-exemption privilege could be extended to persons producing less and less until we might finally come to the time when a general exemption from all taxes would result.

Real Function

The real function of government has always been to charge all of the people for "services" which some of the people may want.

A Matter of Conspiracy

We are told, for instance, that the Catholic Church is trying to take over the world. In the next breath (or the next mail delivery) we learn that it isn't really the Catholics, it is the Jews. A minute later we are informed (from another source) that it isn't really the Jews, but rather the Zionists. Next we hear that it is Russia and Mr. Khrushchev, in person. But before we can settle on any of these, we are told that it really is the Red Chinese under Mao.

Before we are thru with the subject we also learn that it is the socialists, the anarchists, the capitalists, the National Education Association, the State Department, the CIA, the United Nations, the National or even the World Council of Churches, the Republican and Democratic parties, and even the Peace Corps, and the John Birch Society.

Some we know contend that behind all the conspiratorial plots stand the Illuminati. And a few months ago, Esquire magazine announced in a copyrighted story that it really is "The Establishment."

Either there has been a bit too much emphasis on TV spy thrillers, too many paperback books with lurid covers suggesting incipient Mata Haris in every roadhouse, or so much emphasis on communist cells and the theft of "top secret" information by lurking cloak and dagger men, that quite a few Americans are in danger of losing their grip on reality.

What are the facts about all this alleged conspiratorial effort?

The convenience of most of the "information" offered in support of each and everyone of the above (and many not named) is that by its nature a conspiracy is a secret thing. So the weaver of scare reports and whispers about any and all of these plots to "take over" the nation or the human race, is in an excellent position. The reports are hard to disprove.

Each report marshals "facts" in support of a pet thesis. Some of the "facts" are false on their face. Others rely upon a particular type of interpretation before the inference of conspiracy can be drawn.

But one thing can be said about any and all of them. They COULD be true. One cannot prove a negative. Also, it can be stated, broadly, they probably are not true.

But we can hardly afford to shrug off the whole lot in toto. So, let's look at the possibility (which could be real) and surmise that somewhere on this whirling sphere there is a group of conspirators numbering from ten to two hundred. You can vary the number to suit yourself.

Let us suppose that these conspirators, whoever your particular prejudices tell you they are, are well-heeled, financially, and have as a purpose in life the reordering of the nation or the world.

Is there a common denominator by means of which these plotters can be identified and isolated? There would have to be one, regardless of the names, or the group which allegedly make up these schemers. All of these persons would have to be preoccupied with obtaining power.

Now, where in this wide world does power reside of the kind that would be useful to conspirators, supposing they existed? That power resides in government and nowhere else. Government, indeed, holds the monopoly of the kind of power that can create war; can command the flow of funds as it sees fit; can raise up or cast down; can honor or can debase.

We would say to those who fear a conspiracy. . .look to your government. We would also say to those who do not fear a conspiracy. . .look anyway.

Conspiracy or no, government is naked compulsion. It can ruin and it can enrich. A conspiracy is not needed to make it dangerous. By its nature it stands as an ever-ready peril for those who trust it blindly.

To The Point

In Defense Of Discrimination

By RUSSELL KIRK

Nowadays this word "discrimination" has become a devil-term. Yet, unblushing, I confess that I discriminate. Because I like flowers, I pull up burdock and quack-grass: I discriminate against the weeds. Because I like robins, I shoot starlings. Because I like quiet, I discriminate against juke-joints by not patronizing them. Because I like clean forks, I am hard upon restauranteurs who feel everybody has to eat his peck of dirt through life. Because I like good talk, I don't invite drunkards and bores to my house.

"Discriminating" means making distinctions. A man unable to make distinctions is undiscriminating—and a shabby excuse for a human being. I discriminate in favor of some people and things, and I discriminate against other people and things. In fact, I try to distinguish between good and evil, the beautiful and the ugly, the tasteful and the abhorrent, the honest man and the charlatan, the lady and the trollop, the deserving and the undeserving. Everybody isn't just as nice as everybody else: there are vessels for honor, and vessels for dishonor. I discriminate in favor of the former.

If people cease to discriminate, then the world falls into the clutches of the brutal, the insatiable, and the anarchic. This point is well made by Miss Freya Stark in her essay, "Choice and Toleration," included in her collection called "Perseus in the Wind." "Tolerance cannot afford to have anything to do with the fallacy that evil may convert itself to good," Miss Stark observes. "In the dark central crisis of his life, Shakespeare came to realize that goodness cannot convert. This is the secret, I believe, of his greatest plays. In King Lear, the Duke of Albany declares to Goneril that 'wisdom and goodness to the vile seem vile.' The New Testament does likewise. The seed that falls on stony ground must die, and there is never a hope for the goats (tho it seems a pity that sheep are chosen as emblems of the virtuous)."

So if we do not discriminate against the foul and false, and discriminate in favor of the kindly and heroic, we betray religion, the civil social order, and ourselves. The man who never discriminates must believe in nothing: he is literally tasteless. And he is spineless.

Therefore I discriminate against cannibals.

I discriminate against traitors.

I discriminate against false prophets.

I discriminate against robbers.

I discriminate against fools, whether of the born or the educated variety — I never could suffer them gladly.

Therefore, conversely, I discriminate in favor of venerable old age.

I discriminate in favor of good music.

I discriminate in favor of the works of the moral imagination. And I discriminate in favor of the discriminating people who read this humble column. If we show no discrimination, we deserve incrimination.

Civil Rights Strategy

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The Kennedy administration has picked the House of Representatives as the opening battleground on the highly controversial legislation to bar discrimination in public accommodations.

This strategy, mapped at an unannounced White House meeting between Democratic congressional leaders and the President, calls for the civil rights measure to be brought to the House for a showdown vote late in July.

It was decided to delay Senate action until after House consideration to avoid a filibuster that could logjam the major features of the President's legislative program, including his much-publicized tax cut.

By following the House-first strategy, administration leaders believe they can maneuver consideration in that chamber of the tax bill, Youth Conservation Corps, mass transportation proposal and federal aid to colleges ahead of the party-splitting civil rights clash.

The unannounced decision to tackle the explosive civil rights issue in the House first came after Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., and House Democratic leader Carl Albert, Okla., voiced belief it will be easier to pass the legislation there than in the Senate.

They stressed that Southern opposition, which can stall civil rights legislation for weeks in the Senate by filibustering, cannot resort to this powerful device in the House. The two leaders also claimed the opposition lacks the votes in the House to defeat the measure.

Speaker McCormack suggested that "since it will take several weeks to hold hearings and obtain favorable action by the Judiciary and Rules Committees, we should delay a showdown until after the tax bill is disposed of in July. This delay will also give us the time needed to act on your other major legislative proposals."

"That plan sounds realistic to me," replied the President. "But what about the Rules Committee? That is always a problem."

"Not under present circumstances," replied McCormack. "There will be some delay in that committee, but we will have the votes to force action. The bill can be stopped only if the Republican members opposed it, and they can't afford to do that with a presidential election facing them next year."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., fully concurred with McCormack. Also they agreed that it will take many weeks to bring the legislation to a vote in the Senate.

THE BIG MESS

Congressional investigators are making a powerful case for establishing a national research data processing and information retrieval center.

A special House Labor Subcommittee, probing the need for such an agency, has uncovered striking evidence that scientific research in the U.S. is increasingly bogging down in its own wasteful duplication.

The legislators' preliminary findings, submitted by Representative Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., chairman, contend that the failure of scientists to know what others have discovered or are working on has resulted in "wasteful duplication of research estimated at 50 per cent of our current $15 billion effort in research and development."

The survey, slated to be the basis for a sweeping investigation of the handling of research data, cites the following startling examples of duplication:

"The General Accounting Office reports two government agencies were working on the same type of missile for over a year before the duplication was discovered. The cost of duplication involving NASA's Atlas Agena B and the Air Force's Atlas Vega missile was $18 million.

"One major U.S. company spent over $250,000 and five years of research in an attempt to solve an electronic switching problem important to military communications. The team of topnotch mathematicians doing the research found the solution. However, they also discovered the solution was available in a manuscript six months before the research program started.

"A cloud-seeding experiment has recently been made by a government agency at a cost of $3 million. Shortly after the completion of the experiment, it was discovered that the same experiment was performed at an earlier date, costing only $256,000.

"In one of our ballistic missile programs, a special valve was needed to solve a tricky fluid-handling problem. After several months of research, the solution was realized. In addition, it was discovered the information on this valve existed before the research was started. In the meantime, missile firings were held up for several months.

"A leading manufacturing firm paid over $8 million for the invention of one of its products before it realized someone else had developed the same product.

"One Air Force project for storing and retrieving research reports rediscovered 3,000 reports worth $36 million."

"Much of this costly duplication could be avoided," declares the study, "if a national center is established to compile and disseminate all scientific and technical information. The root of this evil is that facts are accumulating at a far higher rate than they are being disseminated or compiled. Science is becoming bogged down in its own products."

"During the last 33 years, there has been a 10-fold increase in the number of scientists and engineers; from 50,000 in 1930 to over a half million today. Indeed, one authority estimates that the number of scientists now living is greater than the number of all scientists who ever lived before.

"The prodigious output flowing from this ocean of creative activity is overwhelming. Over 130,000 research and development projects per year are of government origin, representing two-thirds of the $15 billion our country now spends on research.

"We have over 120,000 technical journals in the world. Our patent office has over 7 million patents in its files. There are over 500 specialized science information services. Indeed, we have reached a stage in the accumulation of knowledge where manual searching for information is becoming an impossible and extremely costly task."

The subcommittee, which will hold public hearings this summer to publicize this problem, is flying to Moscow next month to study Russia's data processing and information center.

Called VINITI, it is the largest technical and research library in the world. An intelligence report claims more U.S. research information, gathered from U.S. technical publications, is stored in this Soviet center than in any institution in the U.S.

Question Box

QUESTION No. 252: "What is the balance of payments deficit? How does this affect the United States money situation?"

Answer: The difference between the total payments flowing out of and into the United States from all sources is known as the balance of payments. When more payments and credit flow to foreign lands than come into the United States, there is a deficit balance of payments.

The Citizens Foreign Aid Committee in its June 3 report says the U.S. balance of payments has been a deficit every year except one since the fiscal year 1948-49.

As of June 30, 1948, foreigners held $7 billion in short-term dollar credits, redeemable in gold. Since that time, says the committee, principally due to foreign aid and the spending of $3 billion annually by and for our overseas forces, foreigners have amassed $18 billion in short term credits which may be redeemed in gold.

Our gold reserve now stands at $15,827 million. The U.S. Treasury is obligated to hold $15,396 million to pay certain debts and to provide the 25 per cent gold backing for the currency. This leaves only $431 million in free gold to meet the $18 billion in short-term foreign demands and other foreign claims for gold.

Foreign banks hesitate to demand the gold because much of the free world economy is tied to the dollar. However, they have warned the United States to put its economy in order. If the foreigners lose faith in the willingness of the government to do so, they could start demanding the gold, and the United States would have to repudiate its obligations, and the world economy would be shaken.

In the first quarter of 1963 the U.S. balance of payments deficit ran at an annual rate of $3.3 billion, which is 50 per cent higher than in 1962.

Unless the United States drastically cuts its foreign aid payments of money it does not have except on paper, and starts living within its tax income, we fear the nation soon will be in real trouble.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Bids for a Smile

A sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their guns and stand at "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command:

Sergeant: "Fire at will!"

One recruit lowered his gun: "Which one is Will?"

PARK CONCERT

To the Editor:

No doubt, there are thousands of Li'l Londoners still around who remember the delightful band concert nights up in Acacia Park back in the 20's.

In those days we were all music-hungry. Why? Because there were no television sets with their various musical programs. Radio was in its infancy and not too satisfactory. Records were not highly developed and poor substitutes for live music.

Furthermore, in that era, there were few autos so one could thoroly enjoy the concerts without the squeaking and sputtering of cars going around the block, like bees buzzing around one's head, thereby distracting one and distorting the music, as happens today.

On concert nights, by 7:30 p.m. one could see the people converging on that pleasant, popular square, many with seat-cushions under their arms. Everyone was in a gala mood — talking, laughing. And over the crowd and excitement one was sure to hear the nasal-voiced chant of "Baby cries: papa buys — baby cries: papa buys," as Asa Forbes, with a huge cluster of multi-colored balloons held high, wove thru the throng and paced the diagonal walks, dispensing his wares.

Soon, the benches were filled, and people, "park deep," were standing — as far back as Platte Avenue — all anticipating the wonderful treat to come. And then, if there were a south wind, one might hear the courthouse clock strike eight, then a click on the music rack, as Lou Fink, director, gracefully raised his baton and signaled the band into one of those great Sousa marches that always puts a thrill into the heart of every American.

For an encore, perhaps they played "Carolina Moon." And, if you happened to look upward thru the park trees, as like as not, you'd see the big, silvery moon smiling down and playing peek-a-boo, as tho to say, "That song's about me." We must remember that, back in those days, the moon was still a happy, dashing young fellow, and not the wrinkled, worried old vet that he is today, ever wondering how he will dodge the next moonshot sent up by those ungrateful people, down there, in return for all the happiness and romance he has given them over the years.

Then followed an overture. Maybe "Atlantis," "Poet and Peasant," or "Norma." Or, a charming Strauss waltz that wafted us away across the Atlantic and back into the Gay 90's to some brilliantly-uniformed embassy ball. Next, rhythmic fox-trots, tangos, descriptive numbers.

One descriptive number that I always loved was called "Custer's Last Battle." (Perhaps this was because "yours truly" used to play the piano mood-music for the silent movies 'way back when a nickelodeon was really a NICKEL-odeon.) This number took us out to a little fort on the far-frontier in 1876 where we saw the gallant Seventh Cavalry go galloping away, with flags and guidons flying, as the band played their very own lilting, sparkling tune, "Garry Owen."

Later, we heard Indian music and the ominous beat of distant war drums. The tempo quickened, the band played louder and louder, crescendoing into a mixture of fight-music, Indian and bugle-call themes, depicting the hell and the chaos of battle. The battle raged on and on, then suddenly, the music softened, the fighting ceased. Not a single "boy in blue" was left alive on the field. As a requiem, the band ended by playing "Nearer My God, to Thee." Well could one ponder the terrific sacrifices made by those brave soldiers in order to open up this beautiful western country where we, that very evening, sat enjoying the "concert in the park."

To shake us out of the sad mood, Lou Fink then called for a real, swingy tune like "Ain't We Got Fun," and soon again everyone was humming, swaying, beating time. Next, perhaps, the ever-popular singer, Bernard Vessey, would sing "Colorado, Colorado, I Love You," voicing, as it were, his gratitude for the privilege of living in the West — in this great state, made possible by the sacrifices of such soldiers as those mentioned above in the Custer episode. (Mr. Vessey had just recently moved here from Minnesota, I believe.) Another song that he sang beautifully was "Marcheta."

Finally, the band swung into the closing number, after which the happy crowd dispersed in every direction, with many a one stopping in at a fountain-on-the-corner in the vicinity, to enjoy a tall, delicious ice cream soda, bubbling over at the top, symbolizing the musical gems that capped our day, with good things, to overflowing.

What happy memories those concerts in Acacia Park bring back!

WATER PROTEST

To the Editor:

Mr. Winfield S. Stratton must be turning over in his grave! Not just turning, but whirling!

By establishing the Myron Stratton Home, for the welfare of children and the aged, he showed that he wished to be a benefactor to the Pikes Peak Region. He certainly did not wish his trustees (i.e., men who should be trustworthy) to ruin callously the beautiful suburbs of Ivywild and Broadmoor, by failing to secure water to keep trees and shrubs alive.

This is a semi-arid territory, but greed of real estate "developers" has encouraged a much larger number of people to settle here than can be supplied with water in recurring droughts. Years ago, a retired Army engineer told me that it was a crime to permit the installation here of garbage disposals, then a convenient novelty which required the use of a great deal of water.

Ten years ago, a prominent citizen wished to buy a certain lot, owned by the Stratton Estate, and was told by the late Mr. David Strickler, speaking for the Myron Stratton Home: "Sorry, we could not possibly supply water to that location. We just don't have enough water."

Now, in dry, dry, dry, 1963 that lot is for sale; part of a new residential development called Broadmoor Terrace.

The protest meeting at the crowded auditorium in the new county building, before the PUC, would have been ridiculous had it not been tragic. The excuses for the sudden total water restriction of May 1, were puerile, and incredible, coming from a lawyer, Mr. Karl Ross, who admitted that his salary was $15,000 a year! The truth is that up to May 1, the South Suburban Water Co. owned 100 per cent by the Myron Stratton Home, a tax-free benevolent institution, was willing to accept payment for all the water that 2400 customers could afford to buy, by the gallon. Then, bingo! Without warning, we were all cut off from water, practically, for everything except brushing our teeth!

At an earlier meeting of South Suburban Water customers, we were admonished piously by the speaker, to pray for rain as he saw no other means of assuring water to fill the reservoirs until next winter's snows.

It is not Providence which has made our lawns turn into hayfields. It is the negligence of the young man who runs the South Suburban Water Co. He does not happen to live in Broadmoor, and his immature point of view seems to be, "To hell with you, Jack. I'm all right!"

At the meeting Friday, before PUC representatives, the speakers were under oath, as in a court room, so probably they told the truth. The astute lawyer for the injured water customers, wormed out of Stratton Home trustees, including Mr. Ross, admissions of stupid management of the water company, admissions which would have mortified anyone who had not the shell of an armadillo.

The phrase "economically feasible" seems to be the slogan of the South Suburban Water Co. Their representatives admitted that they could have bought water from three separate sources at any time from two to eight years ago. They could still buy it today, but the problem is, how to get it to the reservoir?

Laying pipe from the wells south of town, to the South Suburban reservoir would not be "economically feasible." No consideration of the moral obligation to water users, some of whom have paid for water in Broadmoor for 40 years.

As one long-time resident said, "It would take at least 50 years to replace my spruce trees." I personally have 13 large trees, whose loss would reduce the sale value of my house to practically nil. I have received large trees as gifts from friends, over the past 38 years, trees which I have tended with tender, loving care, after having them transplanted at great expense.

By the time pipe was laid from the wells to the reservoir, it would be too late to save our trees, shrubs and hedges. It should have been done, bit by bit, years ago. But a supposedly eleemosynary (dictionary definition: "devoted to charity") institution, the Myron Stratton Home, preferred to make money from the South Suburban Water Co., even if it involved betraying customers who had settled in Broadmoor, in good faith, assured that water would be available.

I should like to see the Myron Stratton Home buy the proffered well water, and transfer it in tank trucks, trunk to tail like a parade of elephants, 24 hours a day, from which it might flow to thirsty trees, planted on a bare prairie many years ago. At the very least, the South Suburban Water Co. could redeem its reputation by selling tank loads of water, at cost, to people who have not been able to afford wells.

I came to the Pikes Peak Region 43 years ago to die of tuberculosis, and I am grateful to Colorado for having helped me to outwit fate. Nothing would induce me to return to New England, my native heath. But I miss the integrity of those granite-faced Yankee pioneers (among them, my ancestors) who worked to build a new country. Western affability and commercialized hospitality are a poor substitute for business integrity, and I would rather have my own self-respect, than Mr. Karl Ross's $15,000 a year.

STANDARDS

To the Editor:

As a faithful reader of your editorial page, it is very apparent the time, effort and expense you are taking to encourage independence. You are to be encouraged and sincerely complimented, but I firmly believe that personal debate will not be swift enough to deter socialism.

One of my favorite quotations defines very adequately the substance of controversy in all printed material. "A man lives by believing something; not by debating and arguing about many things" — (Thomas Carlyle).

Man has ceased to believe and is content in debates and arguments. Why? The answer has been printed by your editorial writers many times, but in words of a debate or argument. The primary reason for the lack of belief can be traced directly to the change of definitions in our authoritative standards.

When reading or hearing a word or phrase that is not understandable, our authority or standard is the dictionary. Standards must be set and maintained in all phases of activity, weights and measures, gravity, electronics, liquids, etc. Laws written by man are standards to maintain an orderly society.

Debates and arguments cease when standards are maintained, and it is common knowledge that our dictionary standards have been changed over the past several years by our "socialist intellectuals." These "men" have attained power and influence by duping the majority into acceptance by confusing minds with the change of standard definitions.

This change of standards has caused the confusion in our modern youth, and will continue to do so, until we, the American citizen, reevaluate what our children use as standards.

When I speak of change, this applies, not necessarily to word

Two-Room Stone Hut Ancestral Kennedy Home

By TOM A. CULLEN

NEW ROSS, Eire (NEA)—The automobiles with their loads of American tourists cram the narrow Irish lane leading from New Ross to President Kennedy's ancestral home at nearby Dunganstown.

The cars whip the ends off the tender green ferns which line the lane, kick up dust, frighten the cows. But the intrepid Americans push on, cameras in hand.

Mecca for these pilgrims is a two-room stone hut once occupiec by President Kennedy's great-grandfather, Patrick Kennedy, and soon to be visited by the President himself.

For one thing, its original thatched roof has been replaced by one of corrugated iron, which is painted bright green. For another, the hut is bare of furnishings

Yet this modest hovel may become an American national shrine, a sort of "political Lourdes," as one Irishman wittily described it to me.

The steady stream of visitors, however, is playing havoc with the lives of President Kennedy's cousins who live in Dunganstown.

Oldest of them is Maggie Whitty, age 85, and recently widowed. Maggie lives in a small white cottage which is every American's dream of what an Irish homestead should be. It not only has a thatched roof, but rambling roses and an apple tree.

On the walls of the cottage among the holy pictures are framed photos of her dead brothers James and John, both of whom have the unmistakable square jaw of the Kennedys.

Because of her advanced age, Maggie is more or less shielded from the tourists. But Mrs. Mary Kennedy Ryan, 57, who owns the farm on which the Kennedy ancestral home is located, is not so fortunate. She is constantly being routed out by visitors who want to photograph her or to shake her hand.

Mrs. Ryan is more of a thoroughbred Kennedy than the President himself. She married her second cousin, thus uniting two branches of the Kennedy family.

"I can't get any work done," Mrs. Ryan, who is a short, stout woman with a weatherbeaten face, told me. "Every time I start to do something I am interrupted by visitors. I hate to turn them away, but then there is only me and Josie to run the farm."

Josie is Mrs. Ryan's daughter, an attractive, dark-haired colleen of 25. She helps her mother with farm chores, which include looking after a few chickens and cows. Another daughter, Mary Anne, is a nurse in Dublin.

Josie is looking forward to the visit of cousin John Fitzgerald Kennedy. "I was only a girl when he came last time, so I don't remember much about him." (President Kennedy visited Dunganstown once before in 1947.)

At a nearby farm I found Mrs Ryan's brother, Jim Kennedy, hastily putting up a new gate in order to keep intruders out of his farmyard. Jim Kennedy and his son Patrick, 23, look strikingly like the President, particularly around the eyes.

These are President Kennedy's "nearest and dearest" kin as far as the Kennedy side of the family is concerned.

In the beginning it seemed as though everyone in New Ross (pop. 4,600) was claiming kinship to the President. These claims were put forward from no desire to deceive, but simply because local lineage, if traced far enough back, is bound to encounter a Kennedy.

Then there are he Murphys. Great-grandfather Patrick Kennedy married one Bridgit Murphy of Wexford, and this has opened the floodgates for dozens of Murphys to lay claim to President Kennedy as a relative.

In th end good sense has prevailed. And by tacit agreement among the Kennedys and Murphys the legitimate claimants are now limited to the families at Dunganstown.

After President Kennedy's election Mrs. Ryan thought his great - grandfather's homestead should be preserved as a historic monument, and she applied to the Irish government for help in restoration. It had fallen into a bad state of decay.

Unsuccessful in her plea, she went ahead and replaced at her own expense the mangy thatched roof with the present corrugated iron one, which was all that she could afford. Meanwhile, the government thought the matter over and offered to pay for a new thatched roof, but its offer came too late.

With typical Kennedy pride, Mrs Ryan turned the government people down. She would continue to look after the family manse, as she had done before, thank you.

12-Year-Old Starts Successful Business

Building owners are only too glad for the boy to trap the birds that collect around cooling towers atop high buildings. Once caught the birds are moved to a barn outside the city where they are fed, watered and prepared for market.

Honorary Confederate General Commissioned

EUSTIS, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Leonia Sibly Haire, 115 years old, has been commissioned an honorary general in the intelligence branch of the Confederate Army by General-in-Chief Donald A. Ramsay of the Confederate High Command. The general came here from Nashville, Tenn. to interview Mrs. Haire on behalf of the confederate historical organization.

She may turn out to be the last surviving Confederate veteran as she claims she was a Confederate espionage agent for Gen. Robert E. Lee during the Civil War and crossed enemy lines numerous times under hazardous conditions.

changes, but emphasis which is placed incorrectly or additions used to explain (which add confusion in understanding the basic meaning of a word).

An example, and there are many, that is creating havoc, is the word "love." Love, as defined in Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, Third Edition of the Merriam Series, published in 1921 by G. & C. Merriam Co., states — "1. A feeling of strong personal attachment; ardent affection. 2. Desire for, and earnest effort to promote, the welfare of another, esp. as seen in God's solicitude for man and in man's due gratitude and reverence to God. 3. Strong liking; fondness. 4. Tender and passionate affection for one of the opposite sex; also, an instance of love; a love affair."

Most English words have several applications, as indicated in the number sequence above, and this particular edition contains 1 thru 7, which, for all practical purposes, is sufficient to give the word "love" its true and useful definition. In defining, Webster emphasized the true meaning of love in 1, 2, and 3. Nos. 4 thru 7 are acceptable applications, but the entire definition and the definition most likely to be read by any reference to this standard, is simple and can easily be understood.

The "intellectual," he who believes in socialism, is a man of extreme knowledge in the reactions of man. He knew that socialism would not and could not be associated with a belief in God. Therefore, to change swiftly would defeat his purpose. He also knows, when a dictionary is used as a standard, that the first few sentences were generally the only reference read.

Compare the definition in the modern dictionary published in 1953 by Spencer Press, Inc., entitled: "The American College Encyclopedic Dictionary," edited by Clarence L. Barnhart: it states: "1. A strong or passionate affection for a person of the opposite sex. 2. Sexual passion or desire, or its gratification. 3. An object of love or affection; a sweetheart. 4. A personification of sexual affection, as Eros or Cupid."

The sequence in numbering is 1 thru 14, which increased the number of applications and you will find similar words in those numbered 5 thru 14, but words arranged less understandably than those in the former.

The significance of the change is overwhelming — to place sex above God in a subtle, but effective method by re-arranging sequence of importance and sentence structure.

The objective study of the changes in our standard dictionaries leaves no doubt that the change, developed by the prominent "socialist intellectuals," gave them the foundation to debate and argue convincingly that the old standards are obsolete. The fact is, the standards were changed without our knowledge or consent.

The word "socialism," in our standards, has changed from an enemy of the republic to an object of confusion, and yes, acceptance by many, because of the drastic change in definition.

The factual change in the definition of "socialism" from 1914, thru 1953, from generally accepted standard dictionaries, available in the home or library, is:

1914 — Standard Home and School Dictionary: "Any theory of social organization aiming at the abolition of individual action and the setting up of co-operative action."

1921 — Webster's Collegiate Dictionary: "1. A political and economic theory of social organization, the essential feature of which is governmental control of economic activities, to the end that competition shall give way to co-operation and the opportunities of life and the rewards of labor shall be equitably apportioned. 2. Policy and practice accordant with socialistic theory; as, municipal socialism. 3. Disposition to seek social reform thru political agencies; the character shown in this disposition; — opp. to individualism."

1929 — The Winston Simplified Dictionary: "1. The economic doctrine that there should be public ownership and operation of the principal means of production and distribution of wealth and equitable apportionment of opportunity and of the rewards of labor; the orthodox writings of Karl Marx. Opposite of individualism."

1947 — Large Webster's Dictionary: (This edition has been generally accepted by libraries, and is the standard used by students and the public when additional research is necessary. A copy is available in the Florence Public Library). "1. A political and economic theory of social organization based on collective or governmental ownership and democratic management of the essential means for the production and distribution of goods; also, a policy or practice based on the theory. Socialism aims to replace competition by cooperation and profit seeking by social service, and to distribute income and social opportunity more equitably than they are now believed to be distributed. These aims have given rise to many distinct schools: Christian socialism promulgated in England by Thomas Hughes, Charles Kingsley, F. D. Maurice and others, 'Owenism' and 'Fabianism' in the same country; 'Collectivism,' 'Saint-Simonianism,' and 'Fourierism' in France; the 'communism' of Brook Farm and the 'nationalism' of the followers of Edward Bellamy in America, the socialism of the chair, state socialism, and the social democracy of Germany; the syndicalism of France; the Bolshevism of Russia. Usually socialism denotes the doctrine developed by Ferdinand Lassalle and Karl Marx, particularly the scientific socialism of the latter and his followers. From the point of view of economic determinism the scientific socialists predict developing antagonism between capitalists and workers as capitalistic control becomes more concentrated and the misery of the working classes increases the consequent decline of the middle classes, and the final triumph of the proletariat. An anti-utilitarian and aesthetic type of socialism was developed by Ruskin and William Morris and found a few followers in America. On questions of policy, opportunist or conservative socialists believe in a slow evolutionary transformation of capitalist into socialist society, while radical or revolutionary socialists believe in class war and the overthrow of capitalism by political uprising or a general strike. The doctrine of the latter are often popularly confused with those of anarchists. Socialism, however, favors great extension of governmental action, whereas anarchism opposes all government as evil. 2. A state or system in which there is no private property."

1953 — The American College Encyclopedic Dictionary: "1. A theory or system of social organization which advocates the vesting of the ownership and control of the means of production, capital, land, etc. in the community as a whole. 2. Procedure or practice in accordance with this theory."

The true standard definition is given in one simple sentence in the 1914 edition which is easily understood and firmly presented. This definition is contained in the others, if you study thoroly, but is confusing because of the positional phrases of the authors' presentation of opinions, and has absolutely no reason for existence in a dictionary, except for propaganda purposes.

The socialists' primary weapon is the "so-called trend of the United States citizen toward socialism." This has not been a trend, but a planned method of controlling the minds of our children to vote socialism, if we do not.

The re-writing of our standards is obvious to those taking the time to examine.

U.S. Still in Quandary Over Reds in Guiana

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Georgetown, capital and port of British Guiana, the Soviet freighter Kirovsic finished the loading of 30,000 bags of rice and pulled out for a destination unannounced but believed to be Cuba.

Almost unnoticed in the press of other world events, Georgetown has been in the grip of a general strike for nearly two months.

It was called by the Guiana Trades Union Council in protest against legislation which the council charges would give the government Communist-style control over labor unions.

It was not a new situation for Prime Minister Cheddi B. Jagan, the American-educated dentist of East Indian extraction who used to call himself a Marcist but now declares that he is a Socialist.

It was almost a duplication of another general strike which erupted against the jagan government in February, 1962.

In that strike, 40,000 workers quit their jobs. Before it was over, six persons were killed, scores injured and nearly $30 million damage suffered by property in mob looting and burning.

The immediate cause was a new government budget including new taxes which the unions charged would be borne costly by the workers. But behind it also was resentment among the unions against government attacks on the unions and against union leaders and racial differences which color all Guiana affairs.

These differences are between the East Indians who work on the plantations in the countryside and Negroes who labor in the city.

Jagan draws his support from the plantation workers. In the city, the unions are anti-Jagan, anti-Communist and fearful of the results if Jagan ever heads up a Guiana totally independent of Britain.

The unions are demanding Jagan's resignation.

Jagan made several visits to Cuba and has expressed admiration for both Castro and Nikita Khrushchev.

It is perhaps accidental that in his present extremity he also has received aid from Cuba. The government's import-export corporation announced last week that a Cuban ship, the Maria Theresa, had arrived with essential food and fuel supplies. The import-Export Corporation is the agent for all Cuban and Russian ships.

As for the United States attitude toward Jagan, it is in a position of being damned if it does and damned if it doesn't. It fears that Jagan might give the Reds their first solid foothold on the continent of South America. It has been wary of too much aid to Jagan but on the other hand would like to believe him when he says he believes in democracy.

As the present strike follows its course of violence, one conclusion seems certain. It is not likely to convince Britain or the United States that Guiana is ready for the total independence Jagan

GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Success as a Key To Tax Exemption

Professor Oscar Cooley, whose writings appear occasionally on this page, has reminded us that back in 1872 Samuel Butler wrote something called "Erewhon, or Over the Range," which provides a challenging concept in the field of taxation. A direct quote from this publication is as follows:

"This is the true philanthropy. He who makes a colossal fortune in the hosiery trade, and by his energy has succeeded in reducing the price of woolen goods by the thousandth part of a penny in the pound — this man is worth ten professional philanthropists. So strongly are the Erewhonians impressed with this that if a man has made a fortune of over 20,000 pounds a year they exempt him from all taxation, considering him as a work of art and too precious to be meddled with; they say, 'How very much he must have done for society before society could have been prevailed upon to give him so much money; so magnificent an organization overawes them; they regard it as a thing dropped from heaven."

This challenging idea is so far removed from present practices that it may come as a distinct shock to the reader. But we suggest that each reader consider the implications seriously. What kind of a society would we have if successful men were exempted from all taxation? Would not this process serve as a major impetus in causing men to strive for unusual success?

Since no man ever attains to financial competence to a large degree without the willing cooperation of many others, imagine the degree of progress which could be accomplished in a society where this procedure was the general rule.

We would be quite willing to suggest that this man, paying no taxes, should also be exempted from receiving any services from government. He would have to protest his own property, manage his own affairs and otherwise be fully responsible for all that he did.

But what a delightful situation this would create. Those who were unwilling or unable to exert themselves to this degree would be the only ones having to pay for government. Also, they would be the only ones to receive any service from the government.

At the present time, the situation is distorted. Those who are most successful are paying the largest share of taxes in support of those who are least successful. And what a curtailment of the will to succeed is this vicious practice!

Indeed, if the present emphasis upon reward for the unworthy is extended to its logical limits, we will discover that in time it will become desirable for most of us to not work at all. For if we produce nothing we will be in line for the largest rewards, based wholly on our needs, which by then will be enormous.

Our difficulty in grasping the merit of Samuel Butler's position is our already firm reliance upon the state as a sort of automatic paternalistic mechanism to assuage our many woes.

Yet if true philanthropy were viewed as that which derives from the entrepreneur who creates goods or provides services; who hires thousands of men and pays their wages; who produces at a price others are willing to pay; who minds his own business and is positively not a burden on anyone...what a difference this could make in our taxing situation.

If the Butler idea were followed consistently, we surmise that with the passing of time the tax-exemption privilege could be extended to persons producing less and less until we might finally come to the time when a general exemption from all taxes would result.

Real Function

The real function of government has always been to charge all of the people for "services" which some of the people may want.

A Matter of Conspiracy

We are told, for instance, that the Catholic Church is trying to take over the world. In the next breath (or the next mail delivery) we learn that it isn't really the Catholics, it is the Jews. A minute later we are informed (from another source) that it isn't really the Jews, but rather the Zionists. Next we hear that it is Russia and Mr. Khrushchev, in person. But before we can settle on any of these, we are told that it really is the Red Chinese under Mao.

Before we are thru with the subject we also learn that it is the socialists, the anarchists, the capitalists, the National Education Association, the State Department, the CIA, the United Nations, the National or even the World Council of Churches, the Republican and Democratic parties, and even the Peace Corps, and the John Birch Society.

Some we know contend that behind all the conspiratorial plots stand the Illuminati. And a few months ago, Esquire magazine announced in a copyrighted story that it really is "The Establishment."

Either there has been a bit too much emphasis on TV spy thrillers, too many paperback books with lurid covers suggesting incipient Mata Haris in every roadhouse, or so much emphasis on communist cells and the theft of "top secret" information by lurking cloak and dagger men, that quite a few Americans are in danger of losing their grip on reality.

What are the facts about all this alleged conspiratorial effort? The [illegible] of most of the "[illegible]" offered in support [illegible] and all of these plots to "take over" the nation or the human race, is in an excellent position. The reports are hard to disprove.

Each report marshals "facts" in support of a pet thesis. Some of the "facts" are false on their face. Others rely upon a particular type of interpretation before the inference of conspiracy can be drawn.

But one thing can be said about any and all of them. They COULD be true. One cannot prove a negative. Also, it can be stated, broadly, they probably are not true.

But we can hardly afford to shrug off the whole lot in toto. So, let's look at the possibility (which could be real) and surmise that somewhere on this whirling sphere there is a group of conspirators numbering from ten to two hundred. You can vary the number to suit yourself.

Let us suppose that these conspirators, whoever your particular prejudices tell you they are, are well-heeled, financially, and have as a purpose in life the reordering of the nation or the world.

Is there a common denominator by means of which these plotters can be identified and isolated? There would have to be one, regardless of the names, or the group which allegedly make up these schemers. All of these persons would have to be preoccupied with obtaining power.

Now, where in this wide world does power reside of the kind that would be useful to conspirators, supposing they existed? That power resides in government and nowhere else. Government, indeed, holds the monopoly of the kind of power that can create war; can command the flow of funds as it sees fit; can raise up or cast down; can honor or can debase.

We would say to those who fear a conspiracy. . look to your government. We would also say to those who do not fear a conspiracy. . look anyway.

Conspiracy or no, government is naked compulsion. It can ruin and it can enrich. A conspiracy is not needed to make it dangerous. By its nature it stands as an ever-ready peril for those who trust it [illegible]

To The Point

In Defense Of Discrimination

By RUSSELL KIRK

Nowadays this word "discrimination" has become a devil-term. Yet, unblushing, I confess that I discriminate. Because I like flowers, I pull up burdock and quack-grass: I discriminate against the weeds. Because I like robins, I shoot starlings. Because I like quiet, I discriminate against juke-joints by not patronizing them. Because I like clean forks, I am hard upon restauranteurs who feel everybody has to eat his peck of dirt through life. Because I like good talk, I don't invite drunkards and bores to my house.

"Discriminating" means making distinctions. A man unable to make distinctions is undiscriminating—and a shabby excuse for a human being. I discriminate in favor of some people and things, and I discriminate against other people and things. In fact, I try to distinguish between good and evil, the beautiful and the ugly, the tasteful and the abhorrent, the honest man and the charlatan, the lady and the trollop, the deserving and the undeserving. Everybody isn't just as nice as everybody else: there are vessels for honor, and vessels for dishonor. I discriminate in favor of the former.

If people cease to discriminate, then the world falls into the clutches of the brutal, the insatiable, and the anarchic. This point is well made by Miss Freya Stark in her essay, "Choice and Toleration," included in her collection called "Perseus in the Wind." "Tolerance cannot afford to have anything to do with the fallacy that evil may convert itself to good," Miss Stark observes. "In the dark central crisis of his life, Shakespeare came to realize that goodness cannot convert. This is the secret, I believe, of his greatest plays. In King Lear, the Duke of Albany declares to Goneril that 'wisdom and goodness to the vile seem vile.' The New Testament does likewise. The seed that falls on stony ground must die, and there is never a hope for the goats (tho it seems a pity that sheep are chosen as emblems of the virtuous)."

So if we do not discriminate against the foul and false, and discriminate in favor of the kindly and heroic, we betray religion, the civil social order, and ourselves. The man who never discriminates must believe in nothing: he is literally tasteless. And he is spineless.

Therefore I discriminate against cannibals.

I discriminate against traitors.

I discriminate against false prophets.

I discriminate against robbers.

I discriminate against fools, whether of the born or the educated variety — I never could suffer them gladly.

Therefore, conversely, I discriminate in favor of venerable old age.

I discriminate in favor of good music.

I discriminate in favor of the works of the moral imagination. And I discriminate in favor of the discriminating people who read this humble column. If we show no discrimination, we deserve incrimination.

Civil Rights Strategy

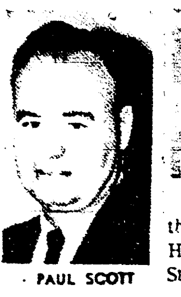
ROBERT ALLEN



PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — The Kennedy administration has picked the House of Representatives as the opening battleground on the highly controversial legislation to bar discrimination in public accommodations.

This strategy, mapped at an unannounced White House meeting between Democratic congressional leaders and the President, calls for the civil rights measure to be brought to the House for a showdown vote late in July.

It was decided to delay Senate action until after House consideration to avoid a filibuster that could logjam the major features of the President's legislative program, including his much-publicized tax cut.

By following the House-first strategy, administration leaders believe they can maneuver consideration in that chamber of the tax bill, Youth Conservation Corps, mass transportation proposal and federal aid to colleges ahead of the party-splitting civil rights clash.

The unannounced decision to tackle the explosive civil rights issue in the House first came after Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., and House Democratic leader Carl Albert, Okla., voiced belief it will be easier to pass the legislation there than in the Senate.

They stressed that Southern opposition, which can stall civil rights legislation for weeks in the Senate by filibustering, cannot resort to this powerful device in the House. The two leaders also claimed the opposition lacks the votes in the House to defeat the measure.

Speaker McCormack suggested that "since it will take several weeks to hold hearings and obtain favorable action by the Judiciary and Rules Committees, we should delay a showdown until after the tax bill is disposed of in July. This delay will also give us the time needed to act on your other major legislative proposals."

"That plan sounds realistic to me," replied the President. "But what about the Rules Committee? That is always a problem."

"Not under present circumstances," replied McCormack. "There will be some delay in that committee, but we will have the votes to force action. The bill can be stopped only if the Republican members opposed it, and they can't afford to do that with a presidential election facing them next year."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., fully concurred with McCormack. Also they agreed that it will take many weeks to bring the legislation to a vote in the Senate.

THE BIG MESS

A special House Labor Subcommittee, probing the need for such an agency, has uncovered striking evidence that scientific research in the U.S. is increasingly bogging down in its own wasteful duplication.

The legislators' preliminary findings, submitted by Representative Roman Pucinski, D-Ill., chairman, contend that the failure of scientists to know what others have discovered or are working on has resulted in "wasteful duplication of research estimated at 50 per cent of our current $15 billion effort in research and development."

The survey, slated to be the basis for a sweeping investigation of the handling of research data, cites the following startling examples of duplication:

"The General Accounting Office reports two government agencies were working on the same type of missile for over a year before the duplication was discovered. The cost of duplication involving NASA's Atlas Agena B and the Air Force's Atlas Vega missile was $18 million.

"One major U.S. company spent over $250,000 and five years of research in an attempt to solve an electronic switching problem important to military communications. The team of topnotch mathematicians doing the research found the solution. However, they also discovered the solution was available in a manuscript six months before the research program started.

"A cloud-seeding experiment has recently been made by a government agency at a cost of $3 million. Shortly after the completion of the experiment, it was discovered that the same experiment was performed at an earlier date, costing only $256,000.

"In one of our ballistic missile programs, a special valve was needed to solve a tricky fluid-handling problem. After several months of research, the solution was realized. In addition, it was discovered the information on this valve existed before the research was started. In the meantime, missile firings were held up for several months.

"A leading manufacturing firm paid over $8 million for the invention of one of its products before it realized someone else had developed the same product.

"One Air Force project for storing and retrieving research reports rediscovered 3,000 reports worth $36 million."

"Much of this costly duplication could be avoided," declares the study, "if a national center is established to compile and disseminate all scientific and technical information. The root of this evil is that facts are accumulating at a far higher rate than they are being disseminated or compiled. Science is becoming bogged down in its own products."

"During the last 33 years, there has been a 10-fold increase in the number of scientists and engineers; from 50,000 in 1930 to over a half million today. Indeed, one authority estimates that the number of scientists now living is greater than the number of all scientists who ever lived before.

"The prodigious output flowing from this ocean of creative activity is overwhelming. Over 130,000 research and development projects per year are of government origin, representing two-thirds of the $15 billion our country now spends on research.

"We have over 120,000 technical journals in the world. Our patent office has over 7 million patents in its files. There are over 500 specialized science information services. Indeed, we have reached a stage in the accumulation of knowledge where manual searching for information is becoming an impossible and extremely costly task."

The subcommittee, which will hold public hearings this summer to publicize this problem, is flying to Moscow next month to study Russia's data processing and information center.

Called VINITI, it is the largest technical and research library in the world. An intelligence report claims more U.S. research information, gathered from U.S. technical publications, is stored in this Soviet center than in any institution in the U.S.

Question Box

QUESTION No. 252: "What is the balance of payments deficit? How does this affect the United States money situation?"

Answer: The difference between the total payments flowing out of and into the United States from all sources is known as the balance of payments. When more payments and credit flow to foreign lands than come into the United States, there is a deficit balance of payments.

The Citizens Foreign Aid Committee in its June 3 report says the U.S. balance of payments has been a deficit every year except one since the fiscal year 1948-49.

As of June 30, 1948, foreigners held $7 billion in short-term dollar credits, redeemable in gold. Since that time, says the committee, principally due to foreign aid and the spending of $3 billion annually by and for our overseas forces, foreigners have amassed $18 billion in short term credits which may be redeemed in gold.

Our gold reserve now stands at $15,827 million. The U.S. Treasury is obligated to hold $15,396 million to pay certain debts and to provide the 25 per cent gold backing for the currency. This leaves only $431 million in free gold to meet the $18 billion in short-term foreign demands and other foreign claims for gold.

Foreign banks hesitate to demand the gold because much of the free world economy is tied to the dollar. However, they have warned the United States to put its economy in order. If the foreigners lose faith in the willingness of the government to do so, they could start demanding the gold, and the United States would have to repudiate its obligations, and the world economy would be shaken.

In the first quarter of 1963 the U.S. balance of payments deficit ran at an annual rate of $3.3 billion, which is 50 per cent higher than in 1962.

Unless the United States drastically cuts its foreign aid payments of money it does not have except on paper, and starts living within its tax income, we fear the nation soon will be in real trouble.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Bids for a Smile

A sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their guns and stand at "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command:

Sergeant: "Fire at will!"

One recruit lowered his gun: "Which one is Will?"

PARK CONCERT

To the Editor:

No doubt, there are thousands of Li'l Londoners still around who remember the delightful band concert nights up in Acacia Park back in the 20's.

In those days we were all music-hungry. Why? Because there were no television sets with their various musical programs. Radio was in its infancy and not too satisfactory. Records were not highly developed and poor substitutes for live music.

Furthermore, in that era, there were few autos so one could thoroly enjoy the concerts without the squeaking and sputtering of cars going around the block, like bees buzzing around one's head, thereby distracting one and distorting the music, as happens today.

On concert nights, by 7:30 p.m. one could see the people converging on that pleasant, popular square, many with seat-cushions under their arms. Everyone was in a gala mood — talking, laughing. And over the crowd and excitement one was sure to hear the nasal-voiced chant of "Baby cries: papa buys — baby cries: papa buys," as Asa Forbes, with a huge cluster of multi-colored balloons held high, wove thru the throng and paced the diagonal walks, dispensing his wares.

Soon, the benches were filled, and people, "park deep," were standing — as far back as Platte Avenue — all anticipating the wonderful treat to come. And then, if there were a south wind, one might hear the courthouse clock strike eight, then a click on the music rack, as Lou Fink, director, gracefully raised his baton and signaled the band into one of those great Sousa marches that always puts a thrill into the heart of every American.

For an encore, perhaps they played "Carolina Moon." And, if you happened to look upward thru the park trees, as like as not, you'd see the big, silvery moon smiling down and playing peek-a-boo, as much as to say, "That song's about me." We must remember that, back in those days, the moon was still a happy, dashing young fellow, and not the wrinkled, worried old vet that he is today, ever wondering how he will dodge the next moonshot sent up by those ungrateful people, down there, in return for all the happiness and romance he has given them over the years.

Then followed an overture. Maybe "Atlantis," "Poet and Peasant," or "Norma." Or, a charming Strauss waltz that wafted us away across the Atlantic and back into the Gay 90's to some brilliantly-uniformed embassy ball. Next, rhythmic fox-trots, tangos, descriptive numbers.

One descriptive number that I always loved was called "Custer's Last Battle." (Perhaps this was because "yours truly" used to play the piano mood-music for the silent movies 'way back when a nickelodeon was really a NICKEL-odeon.) This number took us out to a little fort on the far frontier in 1876 where we saw the gallant Seventh Cavalry go galloping away, with flags and guidons flying, as the band played their very own lilting, sparkling tune, "Garry Owen."

Later, we heard Indian music and the ominous beat of distant war drums. The tempo quickened, the band played louder and louder, crescendoing into a mixture of fight-music, Indian and bugle-call themes, depicting the hell and the chaos of battle. The battle raged on and on, then suddenly, the music ceased. The fighting ceased. Not a single "boy in blue" was left alive on the field. As a requiem, the band ended by playing "Nearer My God, to Thee." Well could one ponder the terrific sacrifices made by those brave soldiers in order to open up this beautiful western country where we, that very evening, sat enjoying the "concert in the park."

To shake us out of the sad mood, Lou Fink then called for a real, swingy tune like "Ain't We Got Fun," and soon again everyone was humming, swaying, beating time. Next, perhaps, the ever-popular singer, Bernard Vessey, would sing "Colorado, Colorado, I Love You," voicing, as it were, his gratitude for the privilege of living in the West — in this great state, made possible by the sacrifices of such soldiers as those mentioned above in the Custer episode. (Mr. Vessey had just recently moved here from Minnesota, I believe.) Another song that he sang beautifully was "Marcheta."

Finally, the band swung into the closing number, after which the happy crowd dispersed in every direction, with many a one stopping in at a fountain-on-the-corner in the vicinity, to enjoy a tall, delicious ice cream soda, bubbling over at the top, symbolizing the musical gems that capped our day, with good things, to overflowing.

What happy memories those concerts in Acacia Park bring back!

WATER PROTEST

To the Editor:

Mr. Winfield S. Stratton must be turning over in his grave! Not just turning, but whirling!

By establishing the Myron Stratton Home, for the welfare of children and the aged, he showed that he wished to be a benefactor to the Pikes Peak Region. He certainly did not wish his trustees (i.e., men who should be trustworthy) to ruin callously the beautiful suburbs of Ivywild and Broadmoor, by failing to secure water to keep trees and shrubs alive.

This is a semi-arid territory, but greed of real estate "developers" has encouraged a much larger number of people to settle here than can be supplied with water in recurring droughts. Years ago, a retired Army engineer told me that it was a crime to permit the installation here of garbage disposals, then a convenient novelty which required the use of a great deal of water.

Ten years ago, a prominent citizen wished to buy a certain lot, owned by the Stratton Estate, and was told by the late Mr. David Strickler, speaking for the Myron Stratton Home: "Sorry, we could not possibly supply water to that location. We just don't have enough water."

Now, in dry, dry, dry, 1963 that lot is for sale; part of a new residential development called Broadmoor Terrace.

The protest meeting at the crowded auditorium in the new county building, before the PUC, would have been ridiculous had it not been tragic. The excuses for the sudden total water restriction of May 1, were puerile, and incredible, coming from a lawyer, Mr. Karl Ross, who admitted that his salary was $15,000 a year! The truth is that up to May 1, the South Suburban Water Co. owned 100 per cent by the Myron Stratton Home, a tax-free benevolent institution, was willing to accept payment for all the water that 2400 customers could afford to buy, by the gallon. Then, bingo! Without warning, we were all cut off from water, practically, for everything except brushing our teeth!

At an earlier meeting of South Suburban Water customers, we were admonished piously by the speaker, to pray for rain as he saw no other means of assuring water to fill the reservoirs until next winter's snows.

It is not Providence which has made our lawns turn into hayfields. It is the negligence of the young man who runs the South Suburban Water Co. He does not happen to live in Broadmoor, and his immature point of view seems to be, "To hell with you, Jack. I'm all right!"

At the meeting Friday, before PUC representatives, the speakers were under oath, as in a court room, so probably they told the truth. The astute lawyer for the injured water customers, wormed out of Stratton Home trustees, including Mr. Ross, admissions of stupid management of the water company, admissions which would have mortified anyone who had not the shell of an armadillo.

The phrase "economically feasible" seems to be the slogan of the South Suburban Water Co. Their representatives admitted that they could have bought water from three separate sources at any time from two to eight years ago. They could still buy it today, but the problem is, how to get it to the reservoir?

Laying pipe from the wells south of town, to the South Suburban reservoir would not be "economically feasible." No consideration of the moral obligation to water users, some of whom have paid for water in Broadmoor for 40 years.

As one long-time resident said, "It would take at least 50 years to replace my spruce trees." I personally have 13 large trees, whose loss would reduce the sale value of my house to practically nil. I have received large trees as gifts from friends, over the past 38 years, trees which I have tended with tender, loving care, after having them transplanted at great expense.

By the time pipe was laid from the wells to the reservoir, it would be too late to save our trees, shrubs and hedges. It should have been done, bit by bit, years ago. But a supposedly eleemosynary (dictionary definition: "devoted to charity") institution, the Myron Stratton Home, preferred to make money from the South Suburban Water Co., even if it involved betraying customers who had settled in Broadmoor, in good faith, assured that water would be available.

I should like to see the Myron Stratton Home buy the proffered well water, and transfer it in tank trucks, trunk to tail like a parade of elephants, 24 hours a day, from which it might flow to thirsty trees, planted on a bare prairie many years ago. At the very least, the South Suburban Water Co could redeem its reputation by selling tank loads of water, at cost, to people who have not been able to afford wells.

I came to the Pikes Peak Region 43 years ago to die of tuberculosis, and I am grateful to Colorado for having helped me to outwit fate. Nothing would induce me to return to New England, my native heath. But I miss the integrity of those granite-faced Yankee pioneers (among them, my ancestors) who worked to build a new country. Western affability and commercialized hospitality are a poor substitute for business integrity, and I would rather have my own self-respect, than Mr. Karl Ross's $15,000 a year.

STANDARDS

To the Editor:

As a faithful reader of your editorial page, it is very apparent the time, effort and expense you are taking to encourage independence. You are to be encouraged and sincerely complimented, but I firmly believe that personal debate will not be swift enough to deter socialism.

One of my favorite quotations defines very adequately the substance of controversy in all printed material. "A man lives by believing something; not by debating and arguing about many things" — (Thomas Carlyle).

Man has ceased to believe and is content in debates and arguments. Why? The answer has been printed by your editorial writers many times, but in words of a debate or argument. The primary reason for the lack of belief can be traced directly to the change of definitions in our authoritative standards.

When reading or hearing a word or phrase that is not understandable, our authority or standard is the dictionary. Standards must be set and maintained in all phases of activity, weights and measures, gravity, electronics, liquids, etc. Laws written by man are standards to maintain an orderly society.

Debates and arguments cease when standards are maintained, and it is common knowledge that our dictionary standards have been changed over the past several years by our "socialist intellectuals." These "men" have attained power and influence by duping the majority into acceptance by confusing minds with the change of standard definitions.

This change of standards has caused the confusion in our modern youth, and will continue to do so, until we, the American citizen, reevaluate what our children use as standards.

When I speak of change, this applies, not necessarily to word

LUNTS GIVE GREAT PERFORMANCE ON TV

HOLLYWOOD—Instead of enrolling at the Actors Studio, our would-be stars should watch again and again the Lunts in "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," which got its TV airing last week. Lynn Fontanne was better than Eleonora Duse; gave her greatest performance; and put the method to shame. Clifton Webb, who knew the Lunts before they knew each other, admitted, "I sat and cried, it was so touching." A publicity man, who never raved except for his clients, called to say, "That woman is unbelievable! She changed her whole face in one close-up. Like seeing a miracle." Donald Madden, as her son, was excellent also. Laurette Taylor brought Lynn to New York from England; co-starred her in a play. Lynn, playing a Cockney, stole the show.

Perry Como's farewell to a weekly show was also touching. If TV could have things like this weekly, they wouldn't have to buy pictures. I hear that Como will make his TV shows next season in Hollywood at Revue Studio, where they already have sets.

Ginger Rogers has the state of Texas in the palm of her hand. Before opening in "Molly Brown," she had a $70,000 advance in the State fair auditorium box office. She's in for two weeks—could spend the summer. The opening night audience gave her a 5 minute standing ovation.

Fred Astaire sounded restless when he said he was leaving for Ireland to visit sister Adele: "I have no plans beyond that except to look after my record company which is going strong." When I suggested he must be making a packet off the reruns of those TV Specials, he said, "I haven't looked. I pay someone to handle my business, and every so often they tell me what I should know.

The Ray Walstons are happy that their 10-year-old daughter Kate is following in father's footsteps. She'll play his daughter in "Anniversary Waltz" during summer vacation when Ray's not working on his TV series. She's their only babe and studies acting at Theater East, a workshop he helped organize.

Cy Howard wrote a play (Henry Fonda's reading it) and suddenly became hot in piactures again. Frank Sinatra's asked him to script "Robin and the Hoods," which will have Frank, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., and Joey Bishop playing comic gangsters. Cy wrote the first Martin and Lewis picture "That's My Boy." Also he does "Honeymoon, American Style" for Tony Curtis, plus Joe Sent Me, a TV series for Desilu.

Jerry Lewis is beating the bushes, doing 45 cities in 30 days, selling "The Nutty Professor'.' He did the same for his last three pictures and sales doubled. Jock Mahoney's doing likewise for "Tarzan," and Charlton Heston for "55 Days at Peking."

Buddy Rogers, while filming a series in Formosa, spent an afternoon with Madame Chiang Kai-shek and visited the orphanage. He promised her a benefit if he ever returned. Last week Buddy received an invitation from the Republic of China to do a special telecast, and on it was a reminder in the form of a P.S.: "Madame Chiang Kai-shek suggests you bring your musical instruments."

Both Jean Negulesco and David Lean shot sequences for George Stevens' "Greatest Story Ever Told." Negulesco did the Nativity. He swears he's seen nothing like this on the screen. After the Crucifixion when the sun comes up, instead of the camera's lens making circles as it usually does, a perfect cross forms on the cinerama screen.

I missed the new hotel openings in Tokyo and Hong Kong with Conrad Hilton, but I may make the new Hilton in New York which opens with a gala ball on the 26th. My pal Joe Binns will be host.

12-Year-Old Starts Successful Business

Building owners are only too glad for the boy to trap the birds that collect around cooling towers atop high buildings. Once caught the birds are moved to a barn outside the city where they are fed, watered and prepared for market.

Honorary Confederate General Commissioned

EUSTIS, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Leonia Sibly Haire, 115 years old, has been commissioned an honorary general in the intelligence branch of the Confederate Army by General-in-Chief Donald A. Ramsay of the Confederate High Command. The general came here from Nashville, Tenn. to interview Mrs. Haire on behalf of the confederate historical organization.

She may turn out to be the last surviving Confederate veteran as she claims she was a Confederate espionage agent for Gen. Robert E. Lee during the Civil War and crossed enemy lines numerous times under hazardous conditions.

changes, but emphasis which is placed incorrectly or additions used to explain (which add confusion in understanding the basic meaning of a word).

An example, and there are many, that is creating havoc, is the word "love." Love, as defined in Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, Third Edition of the Merriam Series, published in 1921 by G. & C. Merriam Co., states — "1. A feeling of strong personal attachment; ardent affection. 2. Desire for, and earnest effort to promote, the welfare of another, esp. as seen in God's solicitude for man and in man's due gratitude and reverence to God. 3. Strong liking, fondness. 4. Tender and passionate affection for one of the opposite sex; also, an instance of love; a love affair."

Most English words have several applications, as indicated in the number sequence above, and this particular edition contains 1 thru 7, which, for all practical purposes, is sufficient to give the word "love" its true and useful definition. In defining, Webster emphasized the true meaning of love in 1, 2, and 3. Nos. 4 thru 7 are acceptable applications, but the entire definition and the definition most likely to be read by any reference to this standard, is simple and can easily be understood.

The "intellectual," he who believes in socialism, is a man of extreme knowledge in the reactions of man. He knew that socialism would not and could not be associated with a belief in God. Therefore, to change swiftly would defeat his purpose. He also knows, when a dictionary is used as a standard, that the first few sentences were generally the only reference read.

Compare the definition in the modern dictionary published in 1953 by Spencer Press, Inc., entitled "The American College Encyclopedic Dictionary," edited by Clarence L. Barnhart, it states "1. A strong or passionate affection for a person of the opposite sex. 2. Sexual passion or desire, or its gratification. 3. An object of love or affection, a sweetheart. 4. A personification of sexual affection, as Eros or Cupid."

The sequence in numbering is 1 thru 14, which increased the number of applications and you will find similar words in those numbered 5 thru 14, but words arranged less understandably than those in the former.

The significance of the change is overwhelming — to place sex above God in a subtle, but effective method by re-arranging sequence of importance and sentence structure.

The objective study of the changes in our standard dictionaries leaves no doubt that the change, developed by the prominent "socialist intellectuals," gave them the foundation to debate and argue convincingly that the old standards are obsolete. The fact is, the standards were changed without our knowledge or consent.

The word "socialism," in our standards, has changed from an enemy of the republic to an object of confusion, and yes, acceptance by many, because of the drastic change in definition.

The factual change in the definition of "socialism" from 1914, thru 1953, from generally accepted standard dictionaries, available in the home or library, is:

1914 — Standard Home and School Dictionary: "Any theory of social organization aiming at the abolition of individual action and the setting up of co-operative action."

1921 — Webster's Collegiate Dictionary: "1. A political and economic theory of social organization, the essential feature of which is governmental control of economic activities, to the end that competition shall give way to co-operation and the opportunities of life and the rewards of labor shall be equitably apportioned. 2. Policy and practice accordant with socialistic theory; as, municipal socialism. 3. Disposition to seek social reform thru political agencies, the character shown in this disposition; — opp. to individualism."

1929 — The Winston Simplified Dictionary: "1. The economic doctrine that there should be public ownership and operation of the principal means of production and distribution of wealth and equitable apportionment of opportunity and of the rewards of labor; the orthodox writings of Karl Marx. Opposite of individualism."

1947 — Large Webster's Dictionary (This edition has been generally accepted by libraries, and is the standard used by students and the public when additional research is necessary. A copy is available in the Florence Public Library). "1. A political and economic theory of social organization based on collective or governmental ownership and democratic management of the essential means for the production and distribution of goods; also, a policy or practice based on the theory. Socialism aims to replace competition by cooperation and profit seeking by social service, and to distribute income and social opportunity more equitably than they are now believed to be distributed. These aims have given rise to many distinct schools: Christian socialism promulgated in England by Thomas Hughes, Charles Kingsley, F. D. Maurice and others, 'Owenism' and 'Fabianism' in the same country, 'Collectivism,' 'Saint-Simonianism,' and 'Fourierism' in France, the 'communism' of Brook Farm and the 'nationalism' of the followers of Edward Bellamy in America, the socialism of the chair, state socialism, and the social democracy of Germany; the syndicalism of France; the Bolshevism of Russia. Usually socialism denotes the doctrine developed by Ferdinand Lassalle and Karl Marx, particularly the scientific socialism of the latter and his followers. From the point of view of economic determinism the scientific socialists predict developing antagonism between capitalists and workers as capitalistic control becomes more concentrated and the misery of the working classes increases the consequent decline of the middle classes, and the final triumph of the proletariat. An anti-utilitarian and aesthetic type of socialism was developed by Ruskin and William Morris and found a few followers in America. On questions of policy, opportunist or conservative socialists believe in a slow evolutionary transformation of capitalist into socialist society, while radical or revolutionary socialists believe in class war and the overthrow of capitalism by political uprising or a general strike. The doctrine of the latter are often popularly confused with those of anarchists. Socialism, however, favors great extension of governmental action, whereas anarchism opposes all government as evil. 2. A state or system in which there is no private property."

1953 — The American College Encyclopedic Dictionary: "1. A theory or system of social organization which advocates the vesting of the ownership and control of the means of production, capital, land, etc. in the community as a whole. 2. Procedure or practice in accordance with this theory."

The true standard definition is given in one simple sentence in the 1914 edition which is easily understood and firmly presented. This definition is contained in the others, if you study thoroly, but is confusing because of the positional phrases of the authors' presentation of opinions, and has absolutely no reason for existence in a dictionary, except for propaganda purposes.

The socialists' primary weapon is the "so-called trend of the United States citizen toward socialism." This has not been a trend, but a planned method of controlling the minds of our children to vote socialism, if we do not.

The re-writing of our standards is obvious to those taking the time to examine.

Retired Railman Will Be Using Caboose

ZALESKI, Ohio (AP) — John Potter has retired from a 43-year career with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, but he'll still be spending a lot of time in a caboose.

The 72-year-old man has acquired Caboose 193, which he rode in countless times from Chillicothe to Cincinnati, Ohio. He will convert it into living quarters at his retreat in the hills near here and heat it with the same old coal stove which supplied warmth while it was riding the rails.

There are 880.8 million Christians (Roman Catholics, Protestants and Orthodox) in the world.

U.S. Still in Quandary Over Reds in Guiana

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Georgetown, capital and port of British Guiana, the Soviet freighter Kirovsic finished the loading of 30,000 bags of rice and pulled out for a destination unannounced but believed to be Cuba.

Almost unnoticed in the press of other world events, Georgetown has been in the grip of a general strike for nearly two months.

It was called by the Guiana Trades Union Council in protest against legislation which the council charges would give the government Communist-style control over labor unions.

It was not a new situation for Prime Minister Cheddi B. Jagan, the American-educated dentist of East Indian extraction who used to call himself a Marcist but now declares that he is a Socialist.

It was almost a duplication of another general strike which erupted against the Jagan government in February, 1962.

In that strike, 40,000 workers quit their jobs. Before it was over, six persons were killed, scores injured and nearly $30 million damage suffered by property in mob looting and burning.

The immediate cause was a new government budget including new taxes which the unions charged would be borne costly by the workers. But behind it also was resentment among the unions against government attacks on the unions and against union leaders and racial differences which color all Guiana affairs.

These differences are between the East Indians who work on the plantations in the countryside and Negroes who labor in the city.

Jagan draws his support from the plantation workers. In the city, the unions are anti-Jagan, anti-Communist and fearful of the results if Jagan ever heads up a Guiana totally independent of Britain.

The unions are demanding Jagan's resignation.

Jagan made several visits to Cuba and has expressed admiration for both Castro and Nikita Khrushchev.

It is perhaps accidental that in his present extremity he also has received aid from Cuba. The government's import-export corporation announced last week that a Cuban ship, the Maria Theresa, had arrived with essential food and fuel supplies. The Import-Export Corporation is the agent for all Cuban and Russian ships.

As for the United States attitude toward Jagan, it is in a position of being damned if it does and damned if it doesn't. It fears that Jagan might give the Reds their first solid foothold on the continent of South America. It has been wary of too much aid to Jagan but on the other hand would like to believe him when he says he believes in democracy.

As the present strike follows its course of violence, one conclusion seems certain. It is not likely to convince Britain or the United States that Guiana is ready for the total independence Jagan

LUNTS GIVE GREAT PERFORMANCE ON TV

HOLLYWOOD—Instead of enrolling at the Actors Studio, our would-be stars should watch again and again the Lunts in "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," which got its TV airing last week. Lynn Fontanne was better than Eleonora Duse; gave her greatest performance; and put the method to shame. Clifton Webb, who knew the Lunts before they knew each other, admitted, "I sat and cried, it was so touching." A publicity man, who never raved except for his clients, called to say, "That woman is unbelievable! She changed her whole face in one close-up. Like seeing a miracle." Donald Madden, as her son, was excellent also. Laurette Taylor brought Lynn to New York from England; co-starred her in a play. Lynn, playing a Cockney, stole the show.

Perry Como's farewell to a weekly show was also touching. If TV could have things like this weekly, they wouldn't have to buy pictures. I hear that Como will make his TV shows next season in Hollywood at Revue Studio, where they already have sets.

Ginger Rogers has the state of Texas in the palm of her hand. Before opening in "Molly Brown," she had a $70,000 advance in the State fair auditorium box office. She's in for two weeks—could spend the summer. The opening night audience gave her a 5 minute standing ovation.

Fred Astaire sounded restless when he said he was leaving for Ireland to visit sister Adele. "I have no plans beyond that except to look after my record company which is going strong." When I suggested he must be making a packet off the reruns of those TV Specials, he said, "I haven't looked. I pay someone to handle my business, and every so often they tell me what I should know."

The Ray Walstons are happy that their 10-year-old daughter Kate is following in father's footsteps. She'll play his daughter in "Anniversary Waltz" during summer vacation when Ray's not working on his TV series. She's their only babe and studies acting at Theater East, a workshop he helped organize.

Cy Howard wrote a play (Henry Fonda's reading it) and suddenly became hot in piactures again. Frank Sinatra's asked him to script "Robin and the Hoods," which will have Frank, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., and Joey Bishop playing comic gangsters. Cy wrote the first Martin and Lewis picture "That's My Boy." Also he does "Honeymoon, American Style" for Tony Curtis, plus Joe Sent Me, a TV series for Desilu.

Jerry Lewis is beating the bushes, doing 45 cities in 30 days, selling "The Nutty Professor'." He did the same for his last three pictures and sales doubled. Jock Mahoney's doing likewise for "Tarzan," and Charlton Heston for "55 Days at Peking."

Buddy Rogers, while filming a series in Formosa, spent an afternoon with Madame Chiang Kai-shek and visited the orphanage. He promised her a benefit if he ever returned. Last week Buddy received an invitation from the Republic of China to do a special telecast, and on it was a reminder in the form of a P.S.: "Madame Chiang Kai-shek suggests you bring your musical instruments."

* * *

Both Jean Negulesco and David Lean shot sequences for George Stevens' "Greatest Story Ever Told." Negulesco did the Nativity. He swears he's seen nothing like this on the screen. After the Crucifixion when the sun comes up, instead of the camera's lens making circles as it usually does, a perfect cross forms on the cinerama screen.

I missed the new hotel openings in Tokyo and Hong Kong with Conrad Hilton, but I may make the new Hilton in New York which opens with a gala ball on the 26th. My pal Joe Binns will be host.

A FISHY TALE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The evidence was fishy, but Elmer E. Cravens was fined $25 Monday for peace disturbance.

Cravens of Paoli, Kan., had argued with a tenant at an apartment he owns about her eviction. Mrs. Helen Wilson charged that he hit her over the head with a fish bowl. Carvens denied it.

Vatican Officials Complete Vote Arrangements

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican officials completed today the final arrangements for the conclave that will elect the Roman Catholic Church's 262nd Pope.

The conclave marshal, Italian Prince Sigismondo Chigi, 68, is married to the former Marianne Berry, a member of a pioneer family of another Rome—Rome, Georgia.

As marshal, Prince Chigi makes sure the one door into the sealed conclave area is locked behind the cardinals and their aides. He stands outside it, keeping all the keys.

Vatican officials decline to say how much the conclave may cost. Italian papers estimated the 1958 conclave cost more than $300,000, with 52 cardinals attending. This time there are 80 cardinals.

In one of the final items of pre-conclave business today, the clergy and laymen who will assist the cardinals during the conclave gathered in the Pauline Chapel. They swore they would maintain secrecy about what happens in the conclave and that they would not try to influence the vote of the cardinals.

They also promised not to bring radio transmitting equipment or cameras into the conclave area, which includes the Sistine Chapel and apartments in adjoining apostolic palaces.

A small brass bell has been wired for the first time to summon the cardinals from their rooms to the Sistine Chapel each time a voting session is held.

Racial Troubles Batter Economy of Some Cities

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the far-reaching effects of racial troubles is economic loss, often overshadowed by the more dramatic developments. This important factor is analyzed by Don McKee, Associated Press writer who has covered major racial stories in Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala., and Albany, Ga.

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Winds of racial strife, sweeping the United States with social revolution, have battered or badly damaged the economy of some cities.

Boycotts by Negroes, aimed at racial barriers, have forced white businessmen into biracial talks for desegregation when nothing else had an effect on social patterns and customs.

Unrest, tension and violence which usually accompany racial conflict within a community slow down the economic pace even in the absence of direct boycott campaigns.

For four years, little Rock, Ark., suffered industrial stagnation in the wake of violence and unrest over school desegregation —enforced by federal troops for the first time in the United States.

No new plants moved to Little Rock from the onset of the 1957 racial crisis until 1961, said Everett Tucker, president of the school board and also head of the local industrial district.

Little Rock now is booming industrially, Tucker said. He attributed the city's economic plunge to the racial troubles and particularly the closing of high schools for a time in 1958.

"The Negro, because of his low economic status, has only marginal power but it can be effective," said a Southern Negro leader, the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker of Atlanta.

What he calls marginal power often spells the difference between profit and loss for some businessmen. This factor figured prominently in a desegregation agreement in Birmingham, Ala.

Caught in a racial struggle that erupted into the streets in early April, Birmingham's economy was chopped by a two-edged sword—an effective boycott by Negroes and marching, picketing and other demonstrations which helped keep other shoppers from downtown stores.

Alabama's top businessmen permitted their names to be linked with a biracial pact that ended the demonstrations. White spokesmen readily admitted they went to the conference table to try to save the city's economy.

Department store sales in Birmingham fell from plus 15 per cent in March to minus 19 per cent in May—the peak of Negro demonstrations—in comparison to 1962 figures.

Since the biracial agreement of May 10, the store sales have moved up to six points—to minus 13. The agreement, not yet put into effect, calls for desegregation of store facilities and upgrading of Negro workers.

Birmingham is at the bottom of the national economic pole for the first five months of the year; department store sales are 5 per cent below last year in comparison to the national average of plus 3 per cent.

"We have a problem, greater than other cities in the South, althrough our rate of decline is not greater," said Robert S. Crowder, manager of the Chamber of Commerce's research department.

"Ours is an aggravated problem. Actually we are not too far off the national pace. The biracial agreement had a very good effect.

"Being 19 per cent off is no reason for panic although some of our merchants were about at that stage," Crowder said.

Threats of a white boycott were reported after the biracial agreement, but businessmen have refused to confirm or deny the reports.

Earlier, directors of the Birmingham Chamebr of Commerce had reported severe economic damage from racial trouble which landed more than 2,000 Negroes in jail during five weeks of demonstrations.

Reaction from prospective industries was adverse in many instances. However, the reaction has subsided and inquiries for new development are now "coming along okay," Crowder said.

Demonstrations hurt business in Danville, Va. But George Carter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said he believes the slump is past. Calls for a Negro boycott of white merchants apparently never materialized.

"The demonstrations are particularly unfortunate at this time because we are on the treshold of adding 350 jobs, both for Negroes and white persons, in the form of new industry," said Mayor Julian R. Stinson.

In street demonstrations at Cambridge, Md., a martial-law curfew and general unrest have taken their toll on the business life. a super-market manager, Wallace F. Stephenson, said his trade slumped drastically under a 6 p.m. curfew.

In another trouble spot, Jackson, Miss., the Chamber of Commerce reported negligible effects from racial turmoil. Some businessmen said sales decreased by 2 to 3 per cent.

Negroes have employed the boycott with effectiveness in many other cities, including Atlanta and Nashville, Tenn. By refusing to buy at big department stores, Negroes forced desegregation of lunch counters and other facilities.

City buses were boycotted in Macon, Ga., last year, resulting in desegregation of the buses and hiring of Negro drivers. An earlier boycott put buses out of business in Albany, Ga.—one prominent exception to the general rule of white businessmen yielding to an economic squeeze.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who first used the bus boycott eight years ago in Montgomery, Ala., explains the technique as very simple: "The economic power structure controls the political power structure—hit the pocketbook and things will change."

FOUL FOWL

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Thieves thought they had found a feast of fowl when they broke into a building here Tuesday night.

They stole 40 chickens. But the chickens are highly infectious, police warned—they were taken from a laboratory of the Portuguese Cancer Institute.

A FISHY TALE

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The evidence was fishy, but Elmer E. Cravens was fined $25 Monday for peace disturbance.

Cravens of Paoli, Kan., had argued with a tenant at an apartment he owns about her eviction. Mrs. Helen Wilson charged that he hit her over the head with a fish bowl. Carvens denied it.

Vatican Officials Complete Vote Arrangements

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican officials completed today the final arrangements for the conclave that will elect the Roman Catholic Church's 262nd Pope.

The conclave marshal, Italian Prince Sigismondo Chigi, 68, is married to the former Marianne Berry, a member of a pioneer family of another Rome—Rome, Georgia.

As marshal, Prince Chigi makes sure the one door into the sealed conclave area is locked behind the cardinals and their aides. He stands outside it, keeping all the keys.

Vatican officials decline to say how much the conclave may cost. Italian papers estimated the 1958 conclave cost more than $300,000, with 52 cardinals attending. This time there are 80 cardinals.

In one of the final items of preconclave business today, the clergy and laymen who will assist the cardinals during the conclave gathered in the Pauline Chapel. They swore they would maintain secrecy about what happens in the conclave and that they would not try to influence the vote of the cardinals.

They also promised not to bring radio transmitting equipment or cameras into the conclave area, which includes the Sistine Chapel and apartments in adjoining apostolic palaces.

A small brass bell has been wired for the first time to summon the cardinals from their rooms to the Sistine Chapel each time a voting session is held.

Racial Troubles Batter Economy of Some Cities

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the far-reaching effects of racial troubles is economic loss, often overshadowed by the more dramatic developments. This important factor is analyzed by Don McKee, Associated Press writer who has covered major racial stories in Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala., and Albany, Ga.

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Winds of racial strife, sweeping the United States with social revolution, have battered or badly damaged the economy of some cities.

Boycotts by Negroes, aimed at racial barriers, have forced white businessmen into biracial talks for desegregation when nothing else had an effect on social patterns and customs.

Unrest, tension and violence which usually accompany racial conflict within a community slow down the economic pace even in the absence of direct boycott campaigns.

For four years, little Rock, Ark., suffered industrial stagnation in the wake of violence and unrest over school desegregation—enforced by federal troops for the first time in the United States.

No new plants moved to Little Rock from the onset of the 1957 racial crisis until 1961, said Everett Tucker, president of the school board and also head of the local industrial district.

Little Rock now is booming industrially, Tucker said. He attributed the city's economic plunge to the racial troubles and particularly the closing of high schools for a time in 1958.

"The Negro, because of his low economic status, has only marginal power but it can be effective," said a Southern Negro leader, the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker of Atlanta.

What he calls marginal power often spells the difference between profit and loss for some businessmen. This factor figured prominently in a desegregation agreement in Birmingham, Ala.

Caught in a racial struggle that erupted into the streets in early April, Birmingham's economy was chopped by a two-edged sword—an effective boycott by Negroes and marching, picketing and other demonstrations which helped keep other shoppers from downtown stores.

Alabama's top businessmen permitted their names to be linked with a biracial pact that ended the demonstrations. White spokesmen readily admitted they went to the conference table to try to save the city's economy.

Department store sales in Birmingham fell from plus 15 per cent in March to minus 19 per cent in May—the peak of Negro demonstrations—in comparison to 1962 figures.

Since the biracial agreement of May 10, the store sales have moved up to six points—to minus 13. The agreement, not yet put into effect, calls for desegregation of store facilities and upgrading of Negro workers.

Birmingham is at the bottom of the national economic pole for the first five months of the year; department store sales are 5 per cent below last year in comparison to the national average of plus 3 per cent.

"We have a problem, greater than other cities in the South, although our rate of decline is not greater," said Robert S. Crowder, manager of the Chamber of Commerce's research department.

"Ours is an aggravated problem. Actually we are not too far off the national pace. The biracial agreement had a very good effect.

"Being 19 per cent off is no reason for panic although some of our merchants were about at that stage," Crowder said.

Threats of a white boycott were reported after the biracial agreement, but businessmen have refused to confirm or deny the reports.

Earlier, directors of the Birmingham Chamebr of Commerce had reported severe economic damage from racial trouble which landed more than 2,000 Negroes in jail during five weeks of demonstrations.

Reaction from prospective industries was adverse in many instances. However, the reaction has subsided and inquiries for new development are now "coming along okay," Crowder said.

Demonstrations hurt business in Danville, Va. But George Carter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said he believes the slump is past. Calls for a Negro boycott of white merchants apparently never materialized.

"The demonstrations are particularly unfortunate at this time because we are on the treshold of adding 350 jobs, both for Negroes and white persons, in the form of new industry," said Mayor Julian R. Stinson.

In street demonstrations at Cambridge, Md., a martial-law curfew and general unrest have taken their toll on the business life. a super-market manager, Wallace F. Stephenson, said his trade slumped drastically under a 6 p.m. curfew.

In another trouble spot, Jackson, Miss., the Chamber of Commerce reported negligible effects from racial turmoil. Some businessmen said sales decreased by 2 to 3 per cent.

Negroes have employed the boycott with effectiveness in many other cities, including Atlanta and Nashville, Tenn. By refusing to buy at big department stores, Negroes forced desegregation of lunch counters and other facilities.

City buses were boycotted in Macon, Ga., last year, resulting in desegregation of the buses and hiring of Negro drivers. An earlier boycott put buses out of business in Albany, Ga.—one prominent exception to the general rule of white businessmen yielding to an economic squeeze.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who first used the bus boycott eight years ago in Montgomery, Ala., explains the technique as very simple: "The economic power structure controls the political power structure—hit the pocketbook and things will change."

Firing Starts for Open Golf Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — It was the eve of the 63rd U.S. Open golf championship, which began today with attention centered on the duel between defender Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, a drawling, dapper country boy of 51 had finished his last practice round.

"Lemme tell you about that rough," said Sam Snead. "Why, sir, it must be as high as—well, four inches anyway.

"You know I hit one in these on that last hole and it's so nice and soft and fluffy and nice to walk in but it don't hold up that ball and it sits way down there.

"I took out a 5-iron and I swung from her to long gone and you know I took away so much ground I turned up a Chinaman and three gophers.

"Why, you know, you could easy bury a cat in there. All you gotta do is throw it in there and replace the divot and put a marker over it. I only missed that fairway by maybe two, three feet. A man should have a better shot at it when you're only off a few feet than when he's 100 feet off, now shouldn't he?

"You sure don't here or for any of these open courses. And this one here is tougher than usual because those greens are so small and those fairways aren't very wide.

"One thing about it, everybody's gotta play it and so everybody's gonna be miserable. But it's a funny thing, everybody cusses the Open but everybody can't wait to qualify for next year."

Snead, of course, is celebrated as one of the great pro golfers of all time; for the thousands of dollars he's earned from the game he helped make so popular; for the more than 110 tournaments he's won. But he's most famous for something else. He's never won the open.

When the field of 150 teed off by the dawn's early light today, Sam Snead was beginning his 23rd consecutive attempt. In 22 previous tries, he finished in the top 10 no fewer than 11 times. In four years, he finished second.

You still get the impression, despite his good humor, that Snead is dead serious about winning this tournament and licking his Open jinx, if there is such a thing.

He also seems to think that this year's site, the 6,850-yard, par 71 course of The Country Club—where Francis Ouimet ended British domination of golf 50 years ago—is playing so tough that it's going to be rough on everyone.

Most of the golfers here aren't speculating about burying cats in the rough but they agree with Snead in one respect—280 would be a good score for the old, old layout that has so many blind holes that Sam calls it a "hit and listen" course.

"You can't see where you're hitting, so you hit and listen to whether the gallery up around the green applauds or groans," he says. "Only way you can tell whether you hit a good one or not."

Palmer and Nicklaus started their dueling well apart in the big field—in contrast to last year when they played the first two rounds together.

Eighteen hole-rounds today and Friday and the awesome 36 on Saturday make up the 72-hole medal play championship, won last year by Nicklaus at Oakmont, Pa., in a playoff with Palmer.

Notes From The Open

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Colorful Sammy Snead, if not the favorite, at least is a sentimental choice in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament that opens at The Country Club Thursday.

Slammin' Sammy, a runner-up four times and 11 times in the top 10, is still looking for his first Open crown, the only major title to escape him.

Only Walter Hagen (16) and Ben Hogan (15) have been in the top 10 finishers more often than Snead.

The Snead hard-luck story includes a triple bogey on the final hole when a par would have won for him in Philadelphia in 1939 and a missed 30-inch putt in his '47 playoff against Lew Worsham.

Francis Ouimet, who won the Open 50 years ago on the same course, and defending champion Jack Nicklaus are among those who predict a 280 score will win.

If Nicklaus can repeat he will be only the sixth to succeed himself. The select circle now lists Willie Anderson (1904-06), John McDermott (1911-12), Ralph Guldahl (1937-38), Bobby Jones (1929-30) and Hogan (1950-51).

Nicklaus likes The Country Club course, explaining: "I played well here in 1957 in the national amateur. In my last match I went out in 32 and was one down. I think I was four under for four rounds."

Former champion Ed Furgol says "This course is much more difficult than the Masters. The greens are smaller, there's more rough and there's more difficult par fours. If there is weather this could be monstrous."

The Country Club got its name from originality rather than snobbery. When it was founded in 1882 there were no other country clubs in the nation.

There have been just five holes-in-one in the previous 62 Opens. They were by Eddie Towns in 1922, Leo Diegel in 1931, Zell Eaton in 1936, John Weitzel in 1954 and Bill Kuntz in 1956.

Unhappiest hole in history belonged to Ray Ainsley at Cherry Hills Country Club in 1938 when he took a 19. He hit a ball into a creek and found himself up it.

TROUBLES BORDERING THE 18TH—Many golfers warming up at the The Country Club in Brookline for today's start of the USGA 63rd Open Golf Championship found trouble in traps on either side of the 18th green. The finishing hole is a 385-yard par 4 hole. Among those who hit the traps were Billy Maxwell, at left, Las Vegas, Nev.; Tommy Bolt, next, of Venice, Fla., the 1958 winner of the Open; Ed Kroll, Cooperstown, N.Y.; and Ernie Ball, at right, of Oak Park, Ill. ## Southpaw Given a Chance To Win U.S. Open Crown

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI)— Southpaws have always been known as screwballs but if slender Bob Charles, a tall, black-haired New Zealander, happens to win the U.S. Open Golf championship this week evaluations may change more than somewhat.

Left-handers in baseball, who somehow mostly seem to think the same way, have created the legend that southpaws are not *only erratic but something to be avoided unless they have a blazing fast ball and a jug handle curve.

In such cases they are put up with, yet there always was a feeling that sooner or later the seams would start to pop.

Golf had it even worse. Maybe it was because there was too much thinking involved in standing on the right, or wrong side, when a lefthander teed it up. But Arnie's army, as the dedicated followers of Arnold Palmer are grouped, has a rival in "Charles' cavalcade."

Southpaw Winner

That's because 27-year-old Bob Charles is a southpaw—and a big winner. And all the frowned upon left-handers in the country have rallied behind him as the shining hour of an otherwise dull day.

Mothers across the land have frowned upon their offspring from time immemorial when junior grabbed a pencil, a fork or a hammer to smash the family chinaware in his grubby little left paw. The right hand could be excused, even if the little monster missed grandma's gravy bowl and swatted pop smack in the dentures.

Some of the greatest followers of cow pasture pool started out as left-handers and were dissuaded from such ghastly performances by saner and cooler heads. The list includes the mighty Ben Hogan, Dutch Harrison and Sammy Byrd.

Nobody was able to change Charles. There was, in defense, family background. Both his mom and pop were left-handed, too, showing how insidious something such as this can be.

Anyhow, he joined the tour this year at the Phoenix Open and has missed the money only three times in 17 starts. Then, to the horror of every mother in the land, he hauled off and won the rich Houston Classic in mid-April. This was the first time in history a southpaw ever had cracked through on top in a major golf tournament.

There was a precedent, however. Late last fall he won the National Left-Handers Tournament at De Soto Lakes, Fla. And he showed even the southpaws something by finishing 21 strokes on top and breaking by eight strokes a course record established by no less than Sammy Snead.

"One reason there were so few good left-haneed golfers up until now," shuddered Joe Black, tournament manager of the PGA, "is that until recent times it was difficult for a left-hander to get good equipment. But now the manufacturers have realized, and Charles has a lot to do with it, that there are a great many southpaw golfers and are making equipment for them."

S. Charles and his private southpaw clan will go forth today with hope burgeoning high in their hearts. They can wipe out forever the stigma against left-handers. And, who knows, maybe they'll have Palmer and all the other big shots giving it a try.

One thing sure. Most of us probably couldn't do much worse at this silly game from the other side of the plate.

Mets Mess up Triple Play Against NL Leading Cards

By JIM BECER
Associated Press Sports Writer

How does a team that has tried everything find a new way to lose? By messing up a triple play, that's how.

The New York Mets uncovered that new route in the fifth inning against the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

The Mets were leading 3-2. The Cards had runners at first and second. Leo Burke smashed a grounder to Charley Ieal who stepped on third and fired to second to start a triple play. Rod Kanehl dropped the ball at second.

Curt Flood walked and Bill White promptly hit a grand slam homer, the sixth of his career.

The eventual 9-4 victory kept the Cards a half game in front of the San Francisco Giants, who trounced the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 at Candlestick Park. The Dodgers fell 2½ games behind the Cards.

The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, both four games back, kept pace. The Cubs won 9-1 over Houston and the Reds beat the Philadelphia Phils 6-5 in 10 innings.

Pittsburgh pushed into a sixth place tie with Milwaukee in the other game on the card by beating the Braves 6-2.

White's big homer came off Tracy Stallard and was his 12th of the year. It also extended his hitting streak to 12 games. George Altman ran his to 17 for the Cards with two singles. Ed Bauta got the victory in relief of Ron Taylor, who had to leave in the fifth when a Stallard pitch hit his thumb.

On the Mets side of the ledger, Al Moran hit a two-run single and catcher Norm Sherrydroveina run with a single that raised his batting average to .099. He was hitting .088.

Juan Marichal pitched the San Francisco victory in his first start since he no-hit Houston last Saturday. He needed help from Billy Pierce in the eighth.

Willie McCovey got the Giants off fast with a two-run homer on the first pitch throw to him by Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

Tommy Davis tied the score with a two-run homes in the third that ended Marichal's scoreless streak at 22 2-3 innings. The Giants chased Drysdale with three runs in the fifth.

Ernie Bans passed two landmarks for the Cubs. He smashed the 350th homer of his career, and drove in four runs to run his total to 1,003. Carl Warwick runed Glen Hobbie's shutout with a solo homer in the sixth.

Leo Cardneas stroked a two-out single in the 10th to score Frank Robinson who walked, stole second and went to third on two more walks, in the Cincinnati victory. Don Demeter hit two homers for the Phils.

Pitcher Earl Francis hit a double and two singles, good for three RBI, and got his third victory for the Pirates, with stout relief help from Joe Gibbon. Hank Aaron hit his 20th homer, tops in the majors, for the Braves. Mack Jones also homered for the Braves. Bob Sadowski, acquired in the Lew Burdette trade, made his major league debut for Milwaukee, but failed to last the fifth.

Chicago Whacks Twins; Fox Bags Four Hits

By MIE RATHET

The hate-the-Yankees club, which hasn't sipped champagne since 1959, has an omen.

Nellie Fox is hitting over .300.

The last time Fox hit that high, the Chicago White Sox stole into the American League throne room and toppled the New Yorkers while the club members raided the nearest wine cellar and popped enough corks to fill Yankee Stadium.

Nellie hasn't been able to approach his .306 batting mark of 1959 since, but at 35 he's in full swing again. He stroked five hits in six at-bats Wednesday night as the White Sox clobbered Minnesota 12-4 with a 19-hit attack.

Fox collected four singles and a double, raising his average from .298 to .311 while rookie Tom McCraw and veteran Floyd Robinson each hit two homers and accounted for nine runs batted in.

The triumph kept the Chicagoans one-game back of the Yankees in their bid to give Manager Al Lopez another pennant. Lopez is the only manager to break the Yankees pennant-monopoly in the last 14 years. He did it with the '59 Sox.

The Yankees remained out in front as Roger Maris' three-run homer provided a 3-2 decision over Washington and New York's sixth straight victory.

Third-place Boston made it nine losses in a row for Detroit 9-2. Baltimore ended Cleveland's winning streak at seven games, 6-2, after the Indians had taken the opener of a twi-night doubleheader 5-4. And the Los Angeles Angels beat Kansas City 4-2 in the opener of a twinbill before the A's won 4-3.

McCraw, hitting only .196 going into the game, drove in five runs with his two homers and a single, while Robinson knocked in four with the same production and lifted his batting average to .332. Ray Herbert, 6-4, got the benefit of the White Sox' explosion. Harmon Killebrew hit his 12th homer for the Twins.

Maris' three-run shot—his 12th—came after singles by Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh in the sixth inning off Claude Osteen, a shut out winner over the Yankees the last time he faced them. Jim Bouton, 9-2, needed ninth inning relief help to subdue the Senators, who pushed across two runs and had the bases loaded before they went down to their seventh straight setback.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a pair of homers for the Red Sox, driving in four runs, while rookie right-hander Bob Heffner checked the Tigers on seven hits in his first major league start and kept new Detroit manager, Chuck Dressen, winless. Frank Malzone also had a homer for Boston. Rookie Gates Brown connected for a pinch-hit homer for Detroit in his first at-bat in the majors.

The Indians won the opener when Joe Azcue homered in the ninth. Milt Pappas, 5-1, spaced five hits for the Orioles' nightcap victory. Willie Kirkland homered for Cleveland.

Dan Osinski, 6-3, held the A's to two hits in the opener but Bobby DelGreco's homer left him on the short end of a 2-1 score until Jim Fregosi hit a three-run homer in the ninth off Ed Rakow, 6-5.

FENCE CLIMBING NO GOOD THIS TIME—Cleveland Indians' right fielder Willie Kirkland jumps up on the fence, but he was unable to reach Baltimore's pinch hitter Bob Saverine two-run homer in the eighth. The ball sailed over Kirklands head, but the Indians beat the Orioles, 5-4, with Joe Azcues' homer in the ninth. (AP Wirephoto)

Denver Ice Team Conducts Contest To Pick Name

The fans will pick the name of Denver's new entry in the professional Western Hockey League, according to team officials. A contest has been started with two season tickets offered to the party submitting the winning nam.

Suggested names for the team should be limited to eight letters or less and should have some significance to the region. Fans may submit as many entries as they wish, but the contest will close on Sunday, June 30, with the winner to be announced shortly thereafter.

All entries in the contest should be mailed to: Hi-Plains Hockey, P.O. Box 65, Denver, Colo. Names which have already been suggested are Denver Dollars, Aspen Leafs, and Mountaineers.

Former Colorado College goalie Bob Scarlett is acting as first general manager for the new Denver team in the WHL, which will begin play next fall against teams from the west coast. Other teams in the league include the San Francisco Seals, Los Angeles Blades, Portland Buckaroos, Seattle Totems and Vancouver Canadians.

Twins Sign Mizzou Hurler

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Larry Bohannon, right-handed pitcher from the University of Missouri, has been signed to a baseball contract by the Minnesota Twins.

He is being assigned to the Twins' Class A farm team at Wilson in the Carolina League.

Bohannon, of Sikestown, Mo., had a 17-5 record in three years with Missouri. He also posted an 11-2 record last summer in helping pitch Pierre, S.D., to the Basin League championship.

Men's Golf League Slated At Patty Jewett

The City Men's Golf League will start play Saturday morning at Patty Jewett Municipal Golf Course. Six teams representing various industries in the Colorado Springs area will compete in league play during the summer months at the city course.

Competition will be based on matched play with regulation handicaps. Scoring will be under the Nassau system.

Teams in the league this year are: defending champion School District No. 11 Teachers, Shepards Citations, City Lawyers, Mountain States Telephone, Prudential Life Insurance Co., and Farmers Insurance Co.

The schedule for opening matches Saturday is as follows: School Teachers vs City Lawyers; Farmers Insurance vs Prudential Life Insurance; Mountain States Telephone vs Shepards Citations.

Oerter Sidelined From Track Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Oerter, world record holder for the discus throw, will not compete for the United States against Russia in their dual track meet in Moscow this summer.

Oerter, who never has lost to the Russians, was told by doctors Wednesday not to compete again in 1963 because of a slipped disc.

Archie Moore Thinks Clay Can Top Liston

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ol' Archie Moore, who was knocked out by young Cassius Clay, thinks the human gas bag has a chance against Sonny Liston, and with his fists.

"I happen to think Cassius is a very good fighter," Moore told a interviewer Wednesday. "He is an amazing fighter who is playing down his true ability by his way of boasting. He created a falso opinion that he is nothing but a blowhard.

"Actually, Clay has the potential to rival Joe Louis as a fighter. He could be a formidable opponent, and if he doesn't get clipped early he can provide a lively fight."

Moore said that some persons are deceived by Clay's boyist and immature face and think he isn't tough enough yet to fight someone like Liston. But Arch, now in retirement, isn't buying that.

"A pretty face is the true mark of a fighter," he says. "It wouldn't be pretty very long unless the fighter had class. I have only one mark on my face to show for 28 years in the ring and that happened in my fight with Floyd Patterson when our heads came together."

David Strikes Again

Just wanting to win isn't quite enough.

That goes for about any game from an evening around the poker table to a run for a gold medal in the Olympics. But it is especially true for the U.S. Open in golf which was to start today over the rolling bunkers of Brookline, Mass.

* * *

You may be able to figure the odds in drawing to an inside straight with a pair of jacks staring you in the face. Or comparable records will give you the favorite in a race of champions. But it calls for some sort of a super computer to come up with the odds facing the eventual winner of a golf tournament on the scale of the Open.

The pressure alone is enough to make most men buckle under. There is no greater prize in golfdom -- tho some may have a higher purse for the winner -- for this is where prestige and endorsements can earn a fortune. The field, of course, is wide open as the tournament's name implies and you could even say the winner is an 8-million-to-1 shot since this is about the number of active golfers he's competing against.

GARY PLAYER
In Underdog Role

* * *

Still just for the sake of looking into the future, we'd like to do a little crystal-balling on the guy who will be wearing the crown of golf for the coming year.

Last June we went way out on a limb, with a lot of sentiment involved because it was here in the Springs where his name first went into coast-to-coast headlines, and the pick was Jack Nicklaus. It was his first big tournament win of his freshman season on the circuit, but the Open victory turned into the starting gun for a race to riches for the Ohio belter.

Perhaps the obvious choice this year, as it was last summer, would be for the name of Arnold Palmer to be first on the list. There is maybe more reason this time since Arnie has just returned from a "vacation" from the gruelling a grind of tournaments and just last weekend proved he's still tough in the clutch with a playoff victory in the lucrative Thunderbird Classic.

And then there's Gene Littler, who has all the shots to navigate a tricky course like The Country Club in Brookline when he's at his peak. And Bill Casper, who should have his Golden Putter shined up for this one, wouldn't be a bad bet for the Big One.

But sentiment is again guiding our judgment.

The choice here is Gary Player.

This certainly is not without justification. In the last five Open tournaments, little Gary has been in the top 20 every time, finished second in 1958, sixth last year, and ninth the summer before. He is a contender in any type of tournament he enters, and the Open is no exception.

It's the 50th anniversary of Francis Ouimet's tremendous upset of the giants of that time -- England's Harry Vardon and Edward Ray — and in a way a victory by Player would be a repeat of a David and Goliath act. Player, of course, is hardly an unknown like Ouimet, but against the power hitters of today he's still the hero of little men who would like to topple giants.

Gary, a mighty mite of a mere 150 pounds on a five-seven frame, seems to turn into a human gyroscope every time on the tee. He is hardly the picture of form a pro would use as an example in teaching, but his exaggerated backswing, twisting body and finally a follow-thru that leaves him grasping for balance seems to get the job done.

Usually paired with such bombers as Nicklaus and Palmer, Player seems to always be pressing for distance. But his accurate irons and bullseye shots around the green are the strokes that pay when the green of Uncle Sammy is counted.

While Palmer and Nicklaus (who has the first leg this year in the Masters) are shooting for the Grand Slam of the four top tournaments in one year, Player has his sights on another type of Slam.

Nicklaus and Palmer are the chief threats for winning the Masters, U.S. Open, PGA and British Open in a single season. Gary's ambition is to be the first golfer from the British Commonwealth to capture all four . . . at any time.

Player won the British Open in 1959, the Masters in 1961 and came home first in the PGA last year. That means a victory this weekend at Brookline would complete his dreamed of cycle.

The Country Club course fits Player's game like an over-lapping grip. On only a couple of holes will the block busters like Nicklaus and Palmer have a big advantage off the tee. The 470-yard 12th and the two par fives on each side could cut strokes from the rest of the field if the drive is long and straight.

That makes the approach shots and putting the big keys to victory. And little Gary has an abundance of these shots that could open the gates to his ambition. Placement of all shots will be vitally important, here.

Player, always dressed in black because he thinks it gives him strength, has long been a favorite of the crowds wherever he goes. So much so that should he take all the cookies in this year's Open, there will be a lot of fans that won't consider it a victory by a foreigner.

Arkansas' Sikes Favorite In NCAA Golf Tourney

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Medalist Dick Sikes of Arkansas remained a strong favorite for top honors as the third round of match play began today in the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf championship.

Sikes easily eliminated Jim Rheim of Stanford 4 and 2 in Wednesday's first round. Then he was forced to go 21 holes before posting a 1-up victory over James Colbert of Kansas State.

Zarley downed James Seeley of Navy 2-up and Dave Philo of Florida State 4 and 3.

George Hixon of Oklahoma State, whose 3-under-par 67 in the first round of qualifying still stands as the low score in the tournament, ousted Joe Bush of Washington 6 and 5 and Tom Flory of Navy 1-up.

Sikes, who took medalist honors with a 1-under-par 139 in the 36-hole qualifying, was one under par for 16 holes in his victory over Rheim. And he finished one over par in his 21 hole match with Colbert on the Wichita Country Club's 6,640-yard par 35-35—70 course.

The course was slow and heavy again as a result of an early morning downpour. More rain was likely today.

Pairings for the third round:

Sikes vs. Harry Hoskins of Texas A&M; Jim Ferriell of Louisville vs. Bobby Greenwood of North Texas State; Zarley vs. George Creagh of Vanderbilt; Pat Thompson of Texas vs. Dick Ferry of Los Angeles State; Hixon vs. John Lotz of San Jose State; Dick Poe of Missouri vs. Wright Garrett of Houston; Terry Winter of Purdue vs. Jerry Potter of Miami, and Randy Geiselman of Texas vs. Len Fiocca of Western Illinois.

The 36-hole finals will be played Saturday.

Utilities, Mechanics Win Games

Two games in the Industrial League of the City Softball program were played Wednesday night at Memorial Park with City Utilities defeating Burrough's, 10-3, and Aircraft Mechanics humiliating hapless I.T.U., 9-1.

City Utilities scored six runs in the first inning and then coasted to the victory over Burrough's behind the 10-hit attack and the five-hit pitching of Harry Huggins. Utilities used three walks, two errors, a double by Harold Atwell, and singles by Monty Graham, Elmer Combs, and Red Majors to take a commanding lead in the first frame.

Bob Campbell, Atwell, Graham and Combs each had a pair of hits for the winnings. Utilities is now 4-1 for the season and is tied with Aircraft Mechanics for second-place in the Industrial League.

The Mechanics banged out a dozen hits and Bill Presley tossed a five hitter in burying I.T.U.

The winners scored three runs in the first to give Presley all the runs he needed, using four walks and singles by Dick Suttle and Mel Hoptinstall. Walt Girard, Presley, Hoptinstall and Eli Puzick each had two hits for the Mechanics. I.T.U. now is winless in five games this season.

Tonight's schedule will send Denver Equipment against Burrough's in the opener and Jolly Plumbing will clash with Budweiser in the City League nightcap.

A BIG BIRTHDAY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Irene Monterosso of Flushing, N. Y., really had a time on her 35th birthday. She won the Woman's International Bowling Congress tournament by outscoring Georgette DeRosa of Hillside, Ill., 852-803.

Her victory meant $2,300, a diamond wrist watch and a trophy. Miss DeRosa took home $1,800.

Ex-Major Leaguer at Boys' Camp

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo.—The Rocky Mountain Baseball Camp's head pitching coach, ex-major league pitcher Vern Kennedy, is working full-time as a teacher now after a baseball "interruption" of nearly 30 years.

Kennedy, a 21-game winner and hurler of a no-hitter in 1936 for the Chicago White Sox during a 12-year major league career, graduate from Warrensburg (Mo.) Teachers college in 1930.

But he's been teaching only for the past two years — a 24-year baseball hitch occupying most of the time in between.

Kennedy teaches and assists in football and track at Brookfield, Mo. high school near his farm home at Minden. He starred in both those sports at Warrensburg, winning the decathalon at the 1927 Penn Relays and setting a javelin record of 200 feet at the school which wasn't broken until this year.

Kennedy has been active as a summer boys baseball camp instructor for several years and was one of the first men added to the staff of the new $400,000 Rocky Mountain Baseball Camp, located just north of Breckenridge on Highway 9.

Baseball wasn't even on the sports program at Warrensburg when he was a student.

But he was spotted by a scout while pitching semi-pro baseball in the St. Louis area in 1930 and launched a pro career with Burlington, Ia. later that summer. Four years later he was with the White Sox in a career which was to see him pitch for six other teams – Detroit, St. Louis, Washington, and Cleveland in the American League, and Philadelphia and from 1934 through 1945.

He won 104 games during that stretch and, in 1940 with the Browns, led the American League pitchers in fielding with a perfect mark. A good hitter, Kennedy was also used as a pinch-hitter occasionally. His last year in organized baseball was 1953 with Oklahoma City of the Texas League.

At the Rocky Mountain Camp, Kennedy rejoins an old summer camp associate, Bob Bracher of Boulder, a Philadelphia scout who doubles as field supervisor of the new camp. Brasher and Kennedy have worked together in similar camps in Missouri, West Virginia, and Florida for several summers.

Located 85 miles west of Denver in high mountain valley, the Rocky Mountain Camp is more elaborate than the usual baseball school because it's a year-around operation which serves as a ski lodge during the winter months.

VERN KENNEDY

"It's the best I've ever seen," says Kennedy, who should know. "It's major league all the way, with first class housing and practice facilities."

The practice area includes three complete playing fields, each a different size to handle boys from 8-21, Little League thru high school age. In addition, each field has two extra practice infield areas and there are sliding pits, batting cages, and practice pitching areas.

"I like the philosophy of this camp very much," says Kennedy. "The people here want to teach baseball. Many camps simply provide an opportunity for boys to play without actually giving them much instruction. We're going to give plenty of both at this one and I think it's by far the best approach."

Every instructor on the Rocky Mountain staff is a college graduate with most having had professional playing experience.

The camp will hold five two-week sessions, beginning Sunday, June 23.

A special open house, to which all parents and children are invited to attend, will be held Sunday, June 30, from 2-5 p.m. At this time, the entire camp will be open for inspection and a free picnic lunch will be served.

"We'd like parents who might be interested in sending boys to our camp to take a look at it in person," says Brasher. "We'll be halfway thru our first session and they'll see us actually in operation."

In addition to Kennedy and Brasher, other prominent members of the Rocky Mountain baseball staff include Colorado University coach Frank Prentup and Arvada high coach Irv Brown.

Complete details on the camp can be had by writing Box 1408-P, Boulder, Colo.

PRODUCES IN TIGHT SPOTS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP—Bob Allison of the Minnesota Twins has turned out to be a player who comes through in the pinch.

In 1962 the big outfielder drove in the deciding run in 15 games as the Twins finished second in the American League race.

Popular Mile Run Takes Back Seat During Opening Events at AAU Track Tourney

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The gamorous mile run will have to take a back seat, at least temporarily, when three other events share the spotlight Friday in the opening of the 75th National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships.

On the opening day agenda are the 100-yard dash, the 120-yard high hurdles and the pole vault, which will be completed in the first day of the two-day affair, along with three other field events and the six-mile run.

Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, who won the century last year in 9.3 seconds and has equalled that time this year, stands as the man to beat. Hayes will head one of four elimination heats along with Henry Carr of Arizona State, Larry Questad and Nate Adams of Purdue.

Carr and Adams each have been timed in 9.3 and Questad in 9.4.

Carr, who has a pending world mark of :20.3 in the 220-yard dash announced earlier he might bypass the 100 and 220 because of aching knees and concentrate on the 440.

In the 120-yard high hurdles, Hayes Jones of Detroit, co-holder of the meet record of :13.4, will be trying to regain the title he lost last year to Jerry Tarr, who is not entered. Jones has won the event three times in the last five years.

The crowd also will have an eye on Brian Sternberg in the pole vault. The University of Washington sophomore has a pending world mark of 16 feet, 8 inches and is "likely to break that anytime he vaults," according to J. G. (Cap) Haralson, chairman of the AAU Track and Field Committee.

The other finals on the first day will be in the javelin, broad jump and shot put.

Elimination heats will be held in the 440, 880 and the mile where much of the attention will be focused.

Even with world record holder Peter Snell missing, it's "going to be a terrific battle," said Haralson. The field includes Jim Beatty, Dyrol Burleson, Lt. Gary Weisiger and Jim Grelle, all sub-4-minute milers.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The glamorous mile run will have to take a back seat, at least temporarily, when three other events share the spotlight Friday in the opening of the 75th National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships.

Austin Bangs Out 43 Hits

By United Press International

Wednesday night will probably be recorded as the most cockeyed in the history of the Texas League.

Austin had the ridiculous total of 43 hits in shooting up the second place San Antonio Bullets 12-1. The only higher number of one-game hits by a team, according to records, came in 1902 when Corsicana had 53 against Texarkana.

San Antonio had five errors in the contest Wednesday night to compound its misery.

Firing Starts for Open Golf Title

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — It was the eve of the 63rd U.S. Open golf championship, which began today with attention centered on the duel between defender Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer a drawling, dapper country boy of 51 had finished his last practice round.

"Lemme tell you about that rough," said Sam Snead. "Why, sir, it must be as high as—well, four inches anyway.

"You know I hit one in these on that last hole and it's so nice and soft and fluffy and nice to walk in but it don't hold up that ball and it sits way down there.

"I took out a 5-iron and I swung from her to long gone and you know I took away so much ground I turned up a Chinaman and three gophers.

"Why, you know, you could easy bury a cat in there. All you gotta do is throw it in there and replace the divot and put a marker over it. I only missed that fairway by maybe two, three feet. A man should have a better shot at it when you're only off a few feet than when he's 100 feet off, now shouldn't he?

"You sure don't here or for any of these open courses. And this one here is tougher than usual because those greens are so small and those fairways aren't very wide.

"One thing about it, everybody's gotta play it and so everybody's gonna be miserable. But it's a funny thing, everybody cusses the Open but everybody can't wait to qualify for next year."

Snead, of course, is celebrated as one of the great pro golfers of all time; for the thousands of dollars he's earned from the game he helped make so popular; for the more than 110 tournaments he's won. But he's most famous for something else. He's never won the open.

When the field of 150 teed off by the dawn's early light today, Sam Snead was beginning his 23rd consecutive attempt. In 22 previous tries, he finished in the top 10 no fewer than 11 times. In four years, he finished second.

You still get the impression, despite his good humor, that Snead is dead serious about winning this tournament and licking his Open jinx, if there is such a thing.

He also seems to think that this year's site, the 6,850-yard, par 71 course of The Country Club—where Francis Ouimet ended British domination of golf 50 years ago—is playing so tough that it's going to be rough on everyone.

Most of the golfers here aren't speculating about burying cats in the rough but they agree with Snead in one respect—280 would be a good score for the old, old layout that has so many blind holes that Sam calls it a "hit and listen" course.

"You can't see where you're hitting, so you hit and listen to whether the gallery up around the green applauds or groans," he says. "Only way you can tell whether you hit a good one or not."

Palmer and Nicklaus started their dueling well apart in the big field—in contrast to last year when they played the first two rounds together.

Eighteen hole-rounds today and Friday and the awesome 36 on Saturday make up the 72-hole medal play championship, won last year by Nicklaus at Oakmont, Pa., in a playoff with Palmer.

TROUBLES BORDERING THE 18TH—Many golfers warming up at the The Country Club in Brookline for today's start of the USGA 63rd Open Golf Championship found trouble in traps on either side of the 18th green. The finishing hole is a 385-yard par 4 hole. Among those who hit the traps were Billy Maxwell, at left, Las Vegas, Nev.; Tommy Bolt, next, of Venice, Fla., the 1958 winner of the Open; Ed Kroll, Cooperstown, N.Y.; and Ernie Ball, at right, of Oak Park, Ill. # Notes From The Open

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Colorful Sammy Snead, if not the favorite, at least is a sentimental choice in the U.S. Open Golf Tournament that opens at The Country Club Thursday.

Slammin' Sammy, a runner-up four times and 11 times in the top 10, is still looking for his first Open crown, the only major title to escape him.

Only Walter Hagen (16) and Ben Hogan (15) have been in the top 10 finishers more often than Snead.

The Snead hard-luck story includes a triple bogey on the final hole when a par would have won for him in Philadelphia in 1939 and a missed 30-inch putt in his '47 playoff against Lew Worsham.

Francis Ouimet, who won the Open 50 years ago on the same course, and defending champion Jack Nicklaus are among those who predict a 280 score will win.

If Nicklaus can repeat he will be only the sixth to succeed himself. The select circle now lists Willie Anderson (1904-06), John McDermott (1911-12), Ralph Guldahl (1937-38), Bobby Jones (1929-30) and Hogan(1950-51).

Nicklaus likes The Country Club course, explaining: "I played well here in 1957 in the national amateur. In my last match I went out in 32 and was one down. I think I was four under for four rounds."

Former champion Ed Furgol says "This course is much more difficult than the Masters. The greens are smaller, there's more rough and there's more difficult par fours. If there is weather this could be monstrous."

The Country Club got its name from originality rather than snobbery. When it was founded in 1882 there were no other country clubs in the nation.

There have been just five holes-in-one in the previous 62 Opens. They were by Eddie Towns in 1922, Leo Diegel in 1931, Zell Eaton in 1936, John Weitzel in 1954 and Bill Kuntz in 1956.

Unhappiest hole in history belonged to Ray Ainsley at Cherry Hills Country Club in 1938 when he took a 19. He hit a ball into a creek and found himself up it.

Southpaw Given a Chance To Win U.S. Open Crown

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Southpaws have always been known as screwballs but if slender Bob Charles, a tall, black-haired New Zealander, happens to win the U.S. Open Golf championship this week evaluations may change more than somewhat.

Left-handers in baseball, who somehow mostly seem to think the same way, have created the legend that southpaws are not only erratic but something to be avoided unless they have a blazing fast ball and a jug handle curve.

In such cases they are put up with, yet there always was a feeling that sooner or later the seams would start to pop.

Golf had it even worse. Maybe it was because there was too much thinking involved in standing on the right, or wrong side, when a lefthander teed it up. But Arnie's army, as the dedicated followers of Arnold Palmer are grouped, has a rival in "Charles' cavalcade."

Southpaw Winner

That's because 27-year-old Bob Charles is a southpaw—and a big winner. And all the frowned upon left-handers in the country have rallied behind him as the shining hour of an otherwise dull day.

Mothers across the land have frowned upon their offspring from time immemorial when junior grabbed a pencil, a fork or a hammer to smash the family chinaware in his grubby little left paw. The right hand could be excused, even if the little monster missed grandma's gravy bowl and swatted pop smack in the dentures.

Some of the greatest followers of cow pasture pool started out as left-handers and were dissuaded from such ghastly performances by saner and cooler heads. The list includes the mighty Ben Hogan, Dutch Harrison and Sammy Byrd.

Nobody was able to change Charles. There was, in defense, family background. Both his mom and pop were left-handed, too, showing how insidious something such as this can be.

Anyhow, he joined the tour this year at the Phoenix Open and has missed the money only three times in 17 starts. Then, to the horror of every mother in the land, he hauled off and won the rich Houston Classic in mid-April. This was the first time in history a southpaw ever had cracked through on top in a major golf tournament.

There was a precedent, however. Late last fall he won the National Left-Handers Tournament at De Soto Lakes, Fla. And he showed even the southpaws something by finishing 21 strokes on top and breaking by eight strokes a course record established by no less than Sammy Snead.

"One reason there were so few good left-haneed golfers up until now," shuddered Joe Black, tournament manager of the PGA, "is that until recent times it was difficult for a left-hander to get good equipment. But now the manufacturers have realized, and Charles has a lot to do with it, that there are a great many southpaw golfers and are making equipment for them."

S. Charles and his private southpaw clan will go forth today with hope burgeoning high in their hearts. They can wipe out forever the stigma against left-handers. And, who knows, maybe they'll have Palmer and all the other big shots giving it a try.

One thing sure. Most of us probably couldn't do much worse at this silly game from the other side of the plate.

Twins Sign Mizzou Hurler

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Larry Bohannon, right-handed pitcher from the University of Missouri, has been signed to a baseball contract by the Minnesota Twins.

He is being assigned to the Twins' Class A farm team at Wilson in the Carolina League.

Bohannon, of Sikestown, Mo., had a [illegible] record in three years with Missouri. He also posted an 11-3 record last summer in helping [illegible] Pierre, S.D., to the [illegible] Basin League championship.

Mets Mess up Triple Play Against NL Leading Cards

By JIM BECER
Associated Press Sports Writer

How does a team that has tried everything find a new way to lose? By messing up a triple play, that's how.

The New York Mets uncovered that new route in the fifth inning against the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

The Mets were leading 3-2. The Cards had runners at first and second. Leo Burke smashed a grounder to Charley leal who stepped on third and fired to second to start a triple play. Rod Kanehl dropped the ball at second.

Curt Flood walked and Bill White promptly hit a grand slam homer, the sixth of his career.

The eventual 9-4 victory kept the Cards a half game in front of the San Francisco Giants, who trounced the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 at Candlestick Park. The Dodgers fell 2½ games behind the Cards.

The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, both four games back, kept pace. The Cubs won 9-1 over Houston and the Reds beat the Philadelphia Phils 6-5 in 10 innings.

Pittsburgh pushed into a sixth place tie with Milwaukee in the other game on the card by beating the Braves 6-2.

White's big homer came off Tracy Stallard and was his 12th of the year. It also extended his hitting streak to 12 games. George Altman ran his to 17 for the Cards with two singles. Ed Bauta got the victory in relief of Ron Taylor, who had to leave in the fifth when a Stallard pitch hit his thumb.

On the Mets side of the ledger, Al Moran hit a two-run single and catcher Norm Sherrydrovema run with a single that raised his batting average to .099. He was hitting .088.

Juan Marichal pitched the San Francisco victory in his first start since he no-hit Houston last Saturday. He needed help from Billy Pierce in the eighth.

Willie McCovey got the Giants off fast with a two-run homer on the first pitch throw to him by Don Drysdale of the Dodgers.

Tommy Davis tied the score with a two-run homes in the third that ended Marichal's scoreless streak at 22 2-3 innings. The Giants chased Drysdale with three runs in the fifth.

Ernie Bans passed two landmarks for the Cubs. He smashed the 350th homer of his career, and drove in four runs to run his total to 1,003. Carl Warwick ruined Glen Hobbie's shutout with a solo homer in the sixth.

Leo Cardneas stroked a two-out single in the 10th to score Frank Robinson who walked, stole second and went to third on two more walks, in the Cincinnati victory. Don Demeter hit two homers for the Phils.

Pitcher Earl Francis hit a double and two singles, good for three RBI, and got his third victory for the Pirates, with stout relief help from Joe Gibbon. Hank Aaron hit his 20th homer, tops in the majors, for the Braves. Mack Jones also homered for the Braves. Bob Sadowski, acquired in the Lew Burdette trade, made his major league debut for Milwaukee, but failed to last the fifth.

Chicago Whacks Twins; Fox Bags Four Hits

By MIE RATHET

The hate-the-Yankees club, which hasn't sipped champagne since 1959, has an omen.

Nellie Fox is hitting over .300.

The last time Fox hit that high, the Chicago White Sox stole into the American League throne room and toppled the New Yorkers while the club members raided the nearest wine cellar and popped enough corks to fill Yankee Stadium.

Nellie hasn't been able to approach his .306 batting mark of 1959 since, but at 35 he's in full swing again. He stroked five hits in six at-bats Wednesday night as the White Sox clobbered Minnesota 12-4 with a 19-hit attack.

Fox collected four singles and a double, raising his average from .298 to .311 while rookie Tom McCraw and veteran Floyd Robinson each hit two homers and accounted for nine runs batted in.

The triumph kept the Chicagoans one-game back of the Yankees in their bid to give Manager Al Lopez another pennant. Lopez is the only manager to break the Yankees pennant-monopoly in the last 14 years. He did it with the '59 Sox.

The Yankees remained out in front as Roger Maris' three-run homer provided a 3-2 decision over Washington and New York's sixth straight victory.

Third-place Boston made it nine losses in a row for Detroit 9-2. Baltimore ended Cleveland's winning streak at seven games, 6-2, after the Indians had taken the opener of a twi-night doubleheader 5-4. And the Los Angeles Angels beat Kansas City 4-2 in the opener of a twinbill before the A's won 4-3.

McCraw, hitting only .196 going into the game, drove in five runs with his two homers and a single, while Robinson knocked in four with the same production and lifted his batting average to .332. Ray Herbert, 6-4, got the benefit of the White Sox' explosion. Harmon Killebrew hit his 12th homer for the Twins.

Maris' three-run shot—his 12th—came after singles by Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh in the sixth inning off Claude Osteen, a shut out winner over the Yankees the last time he faced them. Jim Bouton, 9-2, needed ninth inning relief help to subdue the Senators, who pushed across two runs and had the bases loaded before they went down to their seventh straight setback.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a pair of homers for the Red Sox, driving in four runs, while rookie right-hander Bob Heffner checked the Tigers on seven hits in his first major league start and kept new Detroit manager, Chuck Dressen, winless. Frank Malzone also had a homer for Boston. Rookie Gates Brown connected for a pinch-hit homer for Detroit in his first at bat in the majors.

The Indians won the opener when Joe Azcue homered in the [illegible]. Milt Pappas, 5-4, spaced five hits for the Orioles nightcap victory. Willie Kirkland homered for Cleveland.

Dan Osinski, 8-1, held the A's to two hits in the opener but Bobby DelGreco's homer left him on the short end of a 2-1 score 6-5. until Jim Fregosi hit a three-run homer in the ninth off Ed Rakow.

Denver Ice Team Conducts Contest To Pick Name

The fans will pick the name of Denver's new entry in the professional Western Hockey League, according to team officials. A contest has been started with two season tickets offered to the party submitting the winning nam.

Suggested names for the team should be limited to eight letters or less and should have some significance to the region. Fans may submit as many entries as they wish, but the contest will close on Sunday, June 30, with the winner to be announced shortly thereafter.

All entries in the contest should be mailed to Hi-Plains Hockey, P O Box 65, Denver, Colo. Names which have already been suggested are Denver Dollars, Aspen Leafs and Mountaineers.

Former Colorado College goalie Bob Scarlett is acting as first general manager for the new Denver team in the WHL, which will begin play next fall against teams from the west coast. Other teams in the league include the San Francisco Seals, Los Angeles Blades, Portland Buckaroos, [illegible] the Totems and Vancouver Canucks.

FENCE CLIMBING NO GOOD THIS TIME—Cleveland Indians right fielder Willie Kirkland jumps up on the fence but he was unable to reach Baltimore's pinch hitter Bob Saverine two-run homer in the eighth. The ball sailed over Kirkland's head, but the Indians beat the Orioles 5-4, with Joe Azcue's homer in the ninth. (AP Wirephoto)

Archie Moore Thinks Clay Can Top Liston

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ol' Archie Moore, who was knocked out by young Cassius Clay, thinks the human gas bag has a chance against Sonny Liston, and with his fists.

"I happen to think Cassius is a very good fighter," Moore told a interviewer Wednesday. "He is an amazing fighter who is playing down his true ability by his way of boasting. He created a falso opinion that he is nothing but a blowhard.

"Actually Clay has the potential to rival Joe Louis as a fighter. He could be a formidable opponent, and if he doesn't get clipped early he can provide a lively fight."

Moore said that some persons are deceived by Clay's boyist and immature face and think he isn't tough enough yet to fight someone like Liston. But Arch, now in retirement, isn't buying that.

"A pretty face is the true mark of a fighter," he says. "It wouldn't be pretty very long unless the fighter had class. I have only one mark on my face to show for [illegible] years in the ring and that happened in my fight with Floyd Patterson when our heads came together."

David Strikes Again

Just wanting to win isn't quite enough.

That goes for about any game from an evening around the poker table to a run for a gold medal in the Olympics. But it is especially true for the U.S. Open in golf which was to start today over the rolling bunkers of Brookline, Mass.

* * *

You may be able to figure the odds in drawing to an inside straight with a pair of jacks staring you in the face. Or comparable records will give you the favorite in a race of champions. But it calls for some sort of a super computer to come up with the odds facing the eventual winner of a golf tournament on the scale of the Open.

The pressure alone is enough to make most men buckle under. There is no greater prize in golfdom — tho some may have a higher purse for the winner — for this is where prestige and endorsements can earn a fortune. The field, of course, is wide open as the tournament's name implies and you could even say the winner is an 8-million-to-1 shot since this is about the number of active golfers he's competing against.

In Underdog Role

* * *

Still just for the sake of looking into the future, we'd like to do a little crystal-balling on the guy who will be wearing the crown of golf for the coming year.

Last June we went way out on a limb, with a lot of sentiment involved because it was here in the Springs where his name first went into coast-to-coast headlines, and the pick was Jack Nicklaus. It was his first big tournament win of his freshman season on the circuit, but the Open victory turned into the starting gun for a race to riches for the Ohio belter.

Perhaps the obvious choice this year, as it was last summer, would be for the name of Arnold Palmer to be first on the list. There is maybe more reason this time since Arnie has just returned from a "vacation" from the grueling a grind of tournaments and just last weekend proved he's still tough in the clutch with a playoff victory in the lucrative Thunderbird Classic.

And then there's Gene Littler, who has all the shots to navigate a tricky course like The Country Club in Brookline when he's at his peak. And Bill Casper, who should have his Golden Putter shined up for this one, wouldn't be a bad bet for the Big One.

But sentiment is again guiding our judgment.

The choice here is Gary Player.

This certainly is not without justification. In the last five Open tournaments, little Gary has been in the top 20 every time, finished second in 1958, sixth last year, and ninth the summer before. He is a contender in any type of tournament he enters, and the Open is no exception.

It's the 50th anniversary of Francis Ouimet's tremendous upset of the giants of that time — England's Harry Vardon and Edward Ray — and in a way a victory by Player would be a repeat of a David and Goliath act.

Player, of course, is hardly an unknown like Ouimet, but against the power hitters of today he's still the hero of little men who would like to topple giants.

Gary, a mighty mite of a mere 150 pounds on a five-seven frame, seems to turn into a human gyroscope every time on the tee. He is hardly the picture of form a pro would use as an example in teaching, but his exaggerated backswing, twisting body and finally a follow-thru that leaves him grasping for balance seems to get the job done.

Usually paired with such bombers as Nicklaus and Palmer, Player seems to always be pressing for distance. But his accurate irons and bullseye shots around the green are the strokes that pay when the green of Uncle Sammy is counted.

While Palmer and Nicklaus (who has the first leg this year in the Masters) are shooting for the Grand Slam of the four top tournaments in one year, Player has his sights on another type of Slam.

Nicklaus and Palmer are the chief threats for winning the Masters, U.S. Open, PGA and British Open in a single season. Gary's ambition is to be the first golfer from the British Commonwealth to capture all four . . . at any time.

Player won the British Open in 1959, the Masters in 1961 and came home first in the PGA last year. That means a victory this weekend at Brookline would complete his dreamed of cycle.

The Country Club course fits Player's game like an over-lapping grip. On only a couple of holes will the block busters like Nicklaus and Palmer have a big advantage off the tee. The 470-yard 12th and the two par fives on each side could cut strokes from the rest of the field if the drive is long and straight.

That makes the approach shots and putting the big keys to victory. And little Gary has an abundance of these shots that could open the gates to his ambition. Placement of all shots will be vitally important, here.

Player, always dressed in black because he thinks it gives him strength, has long been a favorite of the crowds wherever he goes. So much so that should be take all the cookies in this year's Open, there will be a lot of fans that won't consider it a victory by a foreigner.

Arkansas' Sikes Favorite In NCAA Golf Tourney

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Medalist Dick Sikes of Arkansas remained a strong favorite for top honors as the third round of match play began today in the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf championship.

Sikes easily eliminated Jim Rheim of Stanford 4 and 2 in Wednesday's first round. Then he was forced to go 21 holes before posting a 1-up victory over James Colbert of Kansas State.

Zarley downed James Seeley of Navy 2-up and Dave Philo of Florida State 4 and 3.

George Hixon of Oklahoma State whose 3-under-par 67 in the first round of qualifying still stands as the low score in the tournament, ousted Joe Rush of Washington 6 and 5 and Tom Flory of Navy 1-up.

Sikes, who took medalist honors with a 1-under-par 139 in the 36-hole qualifying, was one under par for 18 holes in his [illegible] over Rheim. And he finished one under par in his 21-hole match with Colbert on the Wichita Country Club's 6,640-yard par 35-35—70 course.

The course was slow and heavy again as a result of an early morning downpour. More rain was likely today.

Pairings for the third round:

Sikes vs. Harry Hoskins of Texas A&M, Jim Ferrell of Louisville vs. Bobby Greenwood of North Texas State, Zarley vs. George Creagh of Vanderbilt, Pat Thompson of Texas vs. Dick Ferry of Los Angeles State; Hixon vs. John Lotz of San Jose State, Dick Poe of Missouri vs. Wright Garrett of Houston, Terry Winter of Purdue vs. Jerry Potter of Miami, and Randy Geiselman of Texas vs. Len Fiocca of Western Illinois.

The 36-hole finals will be played Saturday.

Sertoma Easily Wins Junior Men's Opener

The Junior Men's Division of Young America League baseball got off to a one-sided start Wednesday night with only one game on tap at Memorial Park.

Sertoma (composed mostly from Wasson High players) took advantage of an assortment of wild pitches and passed balls and 15 walks to slaughter the Manitou Mustangs, 20-4. Sertoma sent 14 men to the plate in the first inning and 12 came plateward in the third as the winners scored 10 runs in the initial inning and added eight more in the third frame.

Winning pitcher Clay Chambers led the Sertoma crew at the plate with three singles in four appearances, driving in three runs. Chambers and Bill Brandt combined to limit the Mustangs to three hits, striking out eight in the abbreviated four-inning contest.

A double header is scheduled fo tonight at Sky Sox Field with the St. Mary's Colts meeting Kiwanis (from Palmer) at 6:30 p.m. and the Tigers (Wasson) facing Sertoma in the nightcap at 8:30.

Clifton Bombers Down Falcons in YAL Play

If the rest of the games turn out to be such rip-snorters as the opener of the Young America League's Heavyweight Division schedule Wednesday night, it should be quite a season.

The Clifton Bombers came from behind in the last of the seventh and last inning at Memorial Park Wednesday to subdue the Devine Redeemer Falcons, 11-10. The Bombers used a single by Bill Bartley, three walks and a hit-batsman to score three times in their half of the inning.

The Falcons had an 8-2 lead going into the last of the fifth, but the wildness of their pitchers finally cost them the game. Starter Vic Lee and reliever Mike Orwig limited the Bombers to only one hit, but they also walked no less than 21 men between them.

Bartley's hit was the only one for the winners while Tom Rhue had a double and single for the Falcons.

Tonight at Memorial Park (Sky Sox Field), there is a double bill slated in the Junior Men's League with the Colts playing Kiwanis and the Tigers taking on Sertoma.

In play during the day in the YAL, there was a busy slate with action at every park around the city for the first time this season.

The Yanks defeate the Aces, 10-4, and the Tigers whipped the A's, 8-3, to open play at Monument Valley Park. And the other park opener of the day was at Memorial Field No. 3 where the Dodgers trimmed the Reds, 17-13, and the Devine Redeemer Cards blasted the Aces, 20-0, in the Lightweight Division.

The Yanks scored six runs in the third inning for their victory as catcher Gary Knopp led the attack with two hits, including a double to highlight the winning frame. The Tigers erupted for all eight runs in the fourth, using three walks and singles by Rick Johnson Roberta Negron, Bill Barnes Steve Colbert and San Bishop.

In a pair of Middleweight games at Bonney Park, the Elks Club Bruins clubbed the Pirates, 12-2, and the Roper Realty Red Sox came from behind to crush the Bums, 14-6. The Bruins scored in every inning and Carl Lasing hurled two-hit ball as the Elks Club rolled to hteir second straight win. The Red Sox rallied for six runs in the third and fourth to top the Bums with shortstop Kirk Padgett pacing the 11-hit assault with three singles.

Middleweight action at Audubon had the Sertoma Cubs smash the Divine Redeemer Orioles, 12-3, behind a nine-hit attack. Pitcher Phil Freeman collected a pair of hits and scattered six safeties for the Cubs, who broke the game open with nine runs in the fourth. Mike Rothe and Lyn Miller each had doubles as the Reds scored six runs in the third stanza to overcome the Hawks, 11-5.

Lightweight play, in addition to openers at Memorial had the Indians dumping the Twins, 8-1 and the Hayes Construction Colts rocking the Yankees, 20-0, at Vermijo Park.

Bears Roll Over O-City In PCL Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Diego Padres are either patient or just plain stubborn. They don't quit under heavy fire.

The Padres watched their two-run lead melt away Wednesday night when Tacoma Giants scored 10 times in a fourth inning that looked as though it would never end. But the Padres came back to win 11-10.

There were 28 hits in that pitchers' nightmare, but it was outdone by a 30-hit contest in which Denver rolled over Oklahoma City 12-8.

Other Pacific Coast League games were more conservative. Spokane stopped Salt Lake City 6-3, Portland defeated Seattle 6-1 and Dallas-Fort Worth blanked Hawaii 2-0.

Darlene Hard In Federation Cup Finals

LONDON (AP)—Darlene Hard of the United States and Margaret Smith of Australia faced each other today in the final of the new Federation Cup Tennis Tournament—and a test of strength for the coming Wimbledon championships.

The top seeded teams, the Americans and Australians, are the finalists in the new tourney which started Monday with teams from 16 nations.

Darlene Hard, the intrepid volleyer from Long Beach Calif., is No. 1 in the U.S. team.

The final is decided on three matches—two singles and a doubles. The second singles is likely to be between Billie Jean Moffitt, also of Long Beach and Jan Lehane.

For the doubles, American team captain Bill Kellogg can call on either of his two principals or Carole Caldwell, of Santa Monica, Calif. The Australians are expected to use Lesley Turner, famed as a doubles player, as partner for Miss Smith.

The two teams have gone through three rounds to reach the final without losing a match. The American girls downed Britain 3-0 Thursday and the Australians made a 3-0 sweep against South Africa.

Miss Smith has the most impressive record. In the three rounds she has won in straight sets every time, dropping a total of only 10 games.

Miss Hard is seeded No. 4 at Wimbledon, Miss Smith No. 1. The American girl has said she plans to get married at the end of the year and will not come to Wimbledon again.

The Wimbledon crown has always eluded her. She has been in the final twice. Today's clash with Miss Smith could be a pointer to her chances of pulling off the coveted prize at last.

JUST TEMPORARY — Cassius Clay, fresh from his predicted five-round victory over Henry Cooper in London, sounds off to reporters and then, for the benefit of photographers, literally buttons his lip at New York's Idlewild Airport Wednesday. The Mighty Mouth said he will take heavyweight champion Sonny Liston in eight rounds if they meet for the title." (AP Wirephoto)

Clay Tells Reporters Liston Is Scared to Death of Him

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—There was excitement in Cassius Clay's voice and his eyes glowed like burning coals. He spoke almost as if he believed what he said.

"That big, ugly bear, Sonny Liston. He's scared to death of me. He's losing sleep thinking about me and what I'm going to do to him."

So intently did Cassius speak that the reporter's mind played tricks with him. He started to picture the 6-foot-1, 220-pound Liston cringing in a corner, his eyes bleary from lack of sleep, and wondering when Killer Clay was coming for him.

The reporter snapped out of his daydream when he heard again: "Ugly bear, total annihilation, tramp, greatest, bestest, handsomest, predict eight, he'll be in a worser fix if I predicted six . . ."

Cassius' monologue droned on.

Back to reality, the reporter asked Cassius to face the facts. He is only 21, he has lots of time, what is the rush and does he really and truly want to fight the devastating champion?

"Sure, I want that big, ugly bear but I gotta get my cut," said The Greatest Wednesday on his triumphant return from London where he had stopped British champion Henry Cooper in five rounds as he said he would.

"I want a million and a half guarantee plus half of the TV money. My managers are working on the deal."

How about Liston's cut?

"Man, that fight will draw a $15 million dollar gate with everything. It will draw more than Cleopatra and Cleopatra (Liz Taylor) was at the ringside watching me Tuesday night."

Cassius was advised that Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser, wanted to put the Clay-Liston fight in Philadelphia in September, providing Liston beats Floyd Patterson (a cinch, says Liston) in their July 22 return fight.

"That's all right with me," said Cassius quickly. "His home town will witness the annihilation. And then it's only a hop, skip and jump to New York, Pittsburgh and all the other nice cities nearby so people can come to see the fight."

As for the hurry to fight Liston, Mighty Mouth said, "I want to be the youngest heavyweight champion ever. I want to break Patterson's record."

He was told that his deadline then was Dec. 12.

"I'm gonna break the record," he said.

This time he sounded like he believed it.

Broncos Fans Set for Games

DENVER (UPI) — The home folks here will get a chance in August to see the Denver Broncos play two pre-season exhibition games.

The games— against Houston Aug. 3 and San Diego Aug. 17 — are the first Bronco exhibition games scheduled for Denver in the club's pro grid history.

In making the announcement of the pre-season games here, Bronco coach Jack Faulkner said that the games will give Denver fans a chance to see the new draft choices and free agents the club has landed for the new season.

Southern Cal Players Off Seeded List

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Dennis Ralston and Rafael Osuna have a tennis tournament on their hands today but they are already worried about the next one — at Wimbledon beginning Monday.

Shortly after the two top-seeded players from Southern California advanced to the quarter-finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament Wednesday, they got the word that neither is seeded at Wimbledon.

"I don't understand it," said Ralston, the California boy who is seeded first here.

"I expected to be seeded in the top five," said Osuna, second-ranked here and Mexico's top player. He was a quarter-finalist at Wimbledon last year.

But while the two were thinking about the big tournament in England next week, each had a scare in advancing to the NCAA round of eight.

Ralston polished off Yoshi Menegishi of Stanford 6-0, 7-5, but he had to struggle in the second And Ralston really had to turn on his best tennis to beat back George Sokol of North Carolina 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. Sokol's fine backhand and Osuna's volleying errors made it close until Osuna swept the last three games.

Ralston and Osuna were joined by Southern California teammate Tom Edlefsen in the quarter-finals. UCLA, with Arthur Ashe, Jr., and David Reed, was the only other school with more than one player left.

The Bruins are tied with Southern Cal in the team standings at 18-18, but they suffered a blow when their doubles team of Paul Palmer and Reed was upset by Princeton's Herb Fitzgibbon and Arthur Howell, 6-8, 6-2, 6-2.

Martin Riessen of Northwestern beat John Hammill of Miami 6-4, 6-1 and Edlefsen, No. 7 seed, took player, John Karabasz, 6-3, 6-4.

Ashe shaded Clark Graebner of whipped Jim McManus of California, No. 8, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5.

Osuna and Ralston are expected to reach the finals, and then hasten off to London for Wimbledon.

"They say they didn't seed Rafael because he hasn't played in many major tournaments this season," said Ralston of the Wimbledon draw. "But I've beaten three of the seeded players." They are Chuck McKinley, No. 4 and America's leading player, Australia's Martin Mulligan, No. 5, and England's Mike Sangster, No. 8.

NEVER A LOSER

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — John Pont, Yale's new head football coach, never had a losing season in seven years at the helm of Miami (Ohio) University.

Pont is a 35-year-old native of Canton, Ohio. Despite his size, 5-7 and 167 pounds, he was an All Mid-American Conference back at Miami and the university's top ground gainer.

Pueblo to Add More Pari-Mutuel Machines

PUEBLO — Robert E. (Bob) Tryon, general manager of Pueblo Greyhound Park, has placed a rush order with the American Totalisator Co. for nine more pari-mutuel machines to handle capacity-night crowds.

The present installation has proved adequate on average-attendance nights, but bettors frequently have been shut out on big nights, particularly weekends. The additional machines, four for the quiniela row and five for straight betting, are expected momentarily.

With Saturday night's Sprint Championship over the 5-16-mile highlighting this week's card and Rushmore Kennel's Rasgo established as the probable favorite, some of the less famous greyhounds will compete in Thursday night's feature.

The last of the 10 races will be over the 693-yard Wright Course, the others over the 5-16-mile route.

Left-Handed Golf Tourney Up in Air

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—America's left-handed golfers may have an uncrowned king this year.

Lopez, the New Mexico high school champ among both southpaws and right-handers, is only 17 and rules say a golfer must be 18 to win the national championship—even though you're the best of the bunch.

"I wanted to compete in the open class, but I just couldn't," declared the 5-foot-6 inch youngster.

Despite his slight stature, the youngster has been hitting the ball as long on the Monterey Peninsula Country Club courses as older left-handers who outweigh him by 100 pounds.

Young Joe carded a 75-73—148 for the first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament to virtually wrap up the junior title. Terry Woods of Calhoun, Ga., in second place, has an 80-86—166 in his bid to defend his title.

During the first two 18-hole tests, the junior and championship shooters played the same courses from the same tees.

Starting today, Lopez and the other juniors will play from tees that have been moved up so he can't further embarrass his elders.

Harvey Rascoe of Inglewood, Calif., the first-round leader, slipped to a 78 and 152 total at the midway point. San Francisco newspaperman Nelson Cullenward, president of the National Golf Writers' Association, was in third place with 153 after a 75 on Wednesday.

Bill Smith of Scottsdale, Ariz., headed the senior division for southpaw golfers 50 years and older with a 153, carded with a 77-76.

Pinky James of Hickory, N.C., was second at 157 and the first round leader, Douglas Hendry of Tacoma, Wash., slipped from 74 to 84 for a 158 total. Tied with Hendry was Z. I. Dzanker of Portland, Ore., with 83-75—158.

Utilities, Mechanics Win Games

Two games in the Industrial League of the City Softball program were played Wednesday night at Memorial Park with City Utilities defeating Burrough's, 10-3, and Aircraft Mechanics humiliating hapless I.T.U., 9-1.

City Utilities scored six runs in the first inning and then coasted to the victory over Burrough's behind the 10-hit attack and the five-hit pitching of Harry Huggins. Utilities used three walks, two errors, a double by Harold Atwell, and singles by Monty Graham, Elmer Combs, and Red Majors to take a commanding lead in the first frame.

Bob Campbell, Atwell, Graham and Combs each had a pair of hits for the winnings. Utilities is now 4-1 for the season and is tied with Aircraft Mechanics for second-place in the Industrial League.

The Mechanics banged out a dozen hits and Bill Presley tossed a five hitter in burying I.T.U.

The winners scored three runs in the first to give Presley all the runs he needed using four walks and singles by Dick Suttle and Mel Hopinstall. Walt Girard, Presley, Hopinstall and Eli Puzick each had two hits for the Mechanics. I.T.U. now is winless in five games this season.

Tonight's schedule will send Denver Equipment against Burrough's in the opener and Jolly Plumbing will clash with Budweiser in the City League nightcap.

Ex-Major Leaguer at Boys' Camp

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo.—The Rocky Mountain Baseball Camp's head pitching coach, ex-major league pitcher Vern Kennedy, is working full-time as a teacher now after a baseball "interruption" of nearly 30 years.

Kennedy, a 21-game winner and hurler of a no-hitter in 1936 for the Chicago White Sox during a 12-year major league career, graduate from Warrensburg (Mo.) Teachers college in 1930.

But he's been teaching only for the past two years – a 24-year baseball hitch occupying most of the time in between.

Kennedy teaches and assists in football and track at Brookfield, Mo. high school near his farm home at Minden. He starred in both those sports at Warrensburg, winning the decathalon at the 1927 Penn Relays and setting a javelin record of 200 feet at the school which wasn't broken until this year.

Kennedy has been active as a summer boys baseball camp instructor for several years and was one of the first men added to the staff of the new $400,000 Rocky Mountain Baseball Camp, located just north of Breckenridge on Highway 9.

Baseball wasn't even on the sports program at Warrensburg when he was a student.

But he was spotted by a scout while pitching semi-pro baseball in the St. Louis area in 1930 and launched a pro career with Burlington, Ia. later that summer. Four years later he was with the White Sox in a career which was to see him pitch for six other teams – Detroit, St. Louis, Washington, and Cleveland in the American League, and Philadelphia and from 1934 through 1945.

He won 104 games during that stretch and, in 1940 with the Browns, led the American League pitchers in fielding with a perfect mark. A good hitter, Kennedy was also used as a pinch-hitter occasionally. His last year in organized baseball was 1953 with Oklahoma City of the Texas League.

At the Rocky Mountain Camp, Kennedy rejoins an old summer camp associate, Bob Bracher of Boulder, a Philadelphia scout who doubles as field supervisor of the new camp. Brasher and Kennedy have worked together in similar camps in Missouri, West Virginia, and Florida for several summers.

Located 85 miles west of Denver in high mountain valley, the Rocky Mountain Camp is more elaborate than the usual baseball school because it's a year-around operation which serves as a ski lodge during the winter months.

VERN KENNEDY

"It's the best I've ever seen," says Kennedy, who should know. "It's major league all the way, with first class housing and practice facilities."

The practice area includes three complete playing fields, each a different size to handle boys from 8-21, Little League thru high school age. In addition, each field has two extra practice infield areas and there are sliding pits, batting cages, and practice pitching areas.

"I like the philosophy of this camp very much," says Kennedy. "The people here want to teach baseball. Many camps simply provide an opportunity for boys to play without actually giving them much instruction. We're going to give plenty of both at this one and I think it's by far the best approach."

Every instructor on the Rocky Mountain staff is a college graduate with most having had professional playing experience.

The camp will hold five two-week sessions, beginning Sunday, June 23.

A special open house, to which all parents and children are invited to attend, will be held Sunday, June 30, from 2-5 p.m. At this time, the entire camp will be open for inspection and a free picnic lunch will be served.

"We'd like parents who might be interested in sending boys to our camp to take a look at it in person," says Brasher. "We'll be halfway thru our first session and they'll see us actually in operation."

In addition to Kennedy and Brasher, other prominent members of the Rocky Mountain baseball staff include Colorado University coach Frank Prentup and Arvada high coach Irv Brown.

Complete details on the camp can be had by writing Box 1408-P, Boulder, Colo.

PRODUCES IN TIGHT SPOTS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP—Bob Allison of the Minnesota Twins has turned out to be a player who comes through in the pinch.

In 1962 the big outfielder drove in the deciding run in 15 games as the Twins finished second in the American League race.

Popular Mile Run Takes Back Seat During Opening Events at AAU Track Tourney

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The gamorous mile run will have to take a back seat, at least temporarily, when three other events share the spotlight Friday in the opening of the 75th National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships.

On the opening day agenda are the 100-yard dash, the 120-yard high hurdles and the pole vault, which will be completed in the first day of the two-day affair, along with three other field events and the six-mile run.

Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, who won the century last year in 9.3 seconds and has equalled that time this year, stands as the man to beat. Hayes will head one of four elimination heats along with Henry Carr of Arizona State, Larry Questad and Nate Adams of Purdue.

Carr and Adams each have been timed in 9.3 and Questad in 9.4.

Carr, who has a pending world mark of :20.3 in the 220-yard dash, announced earlier he might bypass the 100 and 220 because of aching knees and concentrate on the 440.

In the 120-yard high hurdles, Hayes Jones of Detroit, co-holder of the meet record of :13.4, will be trying to regain the title he lost last year to Jerry Tarr, who is not entered. Jones has won the event three times in the last five years.

The crowd also will have an eye on Brian Sternberg in the pole vault. The University of Washington sophomore has a pending world mark of 16 feet, 8 inches and is "likely to break that anytime he vaults," according to J. G. (Cap) Haralson, chairman of the AAU Track and Field Committee.

The other finals on the first day will be in the javelin, broad jump and shot put.

Elimination heats will be held in the 440, 880 and the mile where much of the attention will be focused.

Even with world record holder Peter Snell missing, it's "going to be a terrific battle," said Haralson. The field includes Jim Beatty, Dyrol Burleson, Lt. Gary Weisiger and Jim Grelle, all sub-4-minute milers.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The glamorous mile run will have to take a back seat, at least temporarily, when three other events share the spotlight Friday in the opening of the 75th National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships.

Austin Bangs Out 43 Hits

By United Press International

Wednesday night will probably be recorded as the most cockeyed in the history of the Texas League.

Austin had the ridiculous total of 43 hits in shooting up the second place San Antonio Bullets 12-1. The only higher number of one-game hits by a team, according to records, came in 1902 when Corsicana had 53 against Texarkana.

San Antonio had five errors in the contest Wednesday night to compound its misery.

One Oasis May Be Seen in Reruns on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There may be at least one oasis in the summer desert of reruns on network television if last nights premiere program on NBC's "Mystery Theater" is a valid sample of the series.

"Shadow of a Man" wasn't much in the way of plot—a rather familiar treatment of insurance fraud and blackmail—but it was given a sleek and classy production and it used interesting performers.

Broderick Crawford, looking a little older, played a gruff, dyspeptic but heart-of-gold insurance investigator on the trail of some funny stuff involving one of his company's agents.

Nothing very unexpected happened, even the violent windup with a murder and fatal automobile accident, were easily anticipated. But it did provide an hour of what might be categorized as light summer—or hammock—viewing.

Crawford and Kelly might be a good team for an action series built around Wednesday night's characters.

Television, which usually grabs any big news for a news special or an analysis, has been almost shy about its treatment of the sensational British government crisis.

NBC on Tuesday night finally had a special—a half-hour roundup of the torrid tale of hijinks in high places. Then, all the reticence was understandable. Nobody, apparently, has been able to get any decent film or tape pictures to match the titillating facts.

NBC was forced to use a series of artist's sketches to suggest the goings-on inside Parliament where cameras are forbidden. It had only still pictures of the principals. The most interesting film showed a BBC commentator interviewing members of the House of Commons and journalists about the Profumo scandal while standing under umbrellas in a downpour.

Chet Huntley attempted to make up for his lack of television material by using some very harsh words, rarely if ever before heard on TV, to describe the character and occupation of the woman in the case.

Television odds and ends.

Merv Griffin isn't suffering any unemployment woes. Not only has he committed himself to a full season of summer stock and CBS' "Talent Scouts" show, but he'll preside over a weekly musical series on CBS-Radio for the summer. They ought to carry him nicely until his NBC "Shopping Spree" starts in the fall.

ABC will have Allen W. Dulles, former director of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Agency, talking about the Profumo affair, Communist subversion from Cuba and other timely subjects on "Issues and Answers" Sunday afternoon, June 30.

An assortment of comedy pilot programs—most of which failed to sell projected series—will replace CBS' "Lucy Show" for a couple of months starting July 22. One, however, is a show starring Glynis Johns. The pilot did sell a series—but so many changes were made in the premise that the pilot film could not be used as a part of it.

DISREGARDS OBJECTIONS

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—Joseph Satterwaite, U.S. ambassador to South Africa, has served notice on the government that he plans to host a multiracial Fourth of July reception here despite official disapproval.

Foreign Minister Eric Louw earlier asked the diplomatic corps to hold only one reception to celebrate national days. This would automatically rule out multiracial embassy fetes.

ILLINOIS QUEEN OF POSTURE—Pretty 18-year-old Carol McCrorey of Peoria has been named the 1963 winner of the Illinois Chiropractors' Assn., in Peoria. The candidates were judged 50 per cent for the straightness of their spine, and 50 per cent on posture, poise and originality. (AP Wirephoto)

Prince Charles Did Drink at Corner Pub

LONDON (UPI) — Buckingham Palace, in an almost unprecedented move, Wednesday apologized for denying that Prince Charles took a drink in a corner pub.

A palace spokesman said it regrets that earlier it denied newspaper reports the 14-year old heir to the British throne drank a glass of cherry brandy in the pub while on a school outing at Stornoway on Scotland's Isle of Lewis.

Scottish law limits such pub drinking to persons over 18. The announcement said the prince's police bodyguard, who was with Charles in the pub, "misled" the palace in reporting the incident. The palace regrets this, it announced.

The palace had denied the report that Charles Tuesday was seen in the bar of the Crown Hotel sipping a 35-cent glass of cherry brandy. According to reports, the bodyguard "asked" Charles to leave the pub when he found the prince with the drink on the table in front of him.

About 60 per cent of the 58 million homes in this country are more than 20 years old, housing authorities estimate.

New High Speed Color Film to Be Released

By BART KINCH
United Press International

The new Anscochrome type film, previously tried out in astronaut Alan Sheard's suborbital flight in May, 1961, was selected for Cooper's flight on the basis of its high speed, extreme sharpness and brilliant color rendition.

When released to the public, the film will be ideal for low level illumination color photography. The film will have an ASA rating of 00 but can be shot at 400 without any need for processing manipuation.

The ultra-speed film will be called Anscochrome 200. The exact date for its introduction on the market has not yet been determined.

According to the manufacturer, the new film was well suited for the extended 100 degree plus temperatures recorded in Cooper's Faith 7 space ship during its 34-hour flight.

Before Cooper carried the film aloft, it had been subjected to stringent laboratory testing by the company. No visible change in the film was recorded even when heated to nearly 200 degrees fahrenheit.

Cooper apparently loaded several Hasselblad backs with the 120 size rolls to capture spectacular views of the earth.

On orbit 16 Cooper gathered photo data on two dim light phenomena on the new film—zodiacal light and the night airglow layer. Photographs of zodiacal light are expected to help scientists determine the light's exact origin, geometric distribution and its usefulness in studying solar radiation and flare activity.

Data on the airglow will provide information on the solar energy conversion processes occurring in the upper atmosphere.

Both these phenomena are best observed from outside the earth's atmosphere.

Cooper did not disclose the lens combination he used on the Hasselblad camera. However, the basic theme of the Hasselblad is lens interchangability.

All the Zeiss lenses feature a fully - synchronized between -the-lens shutter with speeds up to 1-500 second, automatic and manual diaphragm, and automatic depth-of-field indicators.

All seven lenses incorporate the same scale which makes for ease of operation. The interchangable film magazines also provide a quick and simple means of switching between different kinds of film and negative sizes.

The new Anscochrome film probably will be offered in both 35mm and 120 film sizes.

Organic Soil Proves Just Too Organic

Nelms top-dressed his tobacco bed with one of the products. A few days later he found that buzzards had torn the bed cover off and were eating the top-dressing materials.

Non - attended automatic elevators are being installed in New York City's Empire State Building, world's tallest structure. The job will take three years to complete and cost $2 million.

Sertoma Easily Wins Junior Men's Opener

Sertoma (composed mostly from Wasson High players) took advantage of an assortment of wild pitches and passed balls and 15 walks to slaughter the Manitou Mustangs, 20-4. Sertoma sent 13 men to the plate in the first inning and 12 came plateward in the third as the winners scored 10 runs in the initial inning and added eight more in the third frame.

Winning pitcher Clay Chambers led the Sertoma crew at the plate with three singles in four appearances, driving in three runs. Chambers and Bill Brandt combined to limit the Mustangs to three hits, striking out eight in the abbreviated four-inning contest.

A double header is scheduled for tonight at Sky Sox Field with the St. Mary's Colts meeting Kiwanis (from Palmer) at 6:30 p.m. and the Tigers (Wasson) facing Sertoma in the nightcap at 8:30.

Games Tuesday, which were to open the league, were rained out and postponed until a later date.

Yank Seeded in Wimbledon Tennis

LONDON (AP)—Chuck McKinley, the only American to achieve the dignity of seeding for the Wimbledon Tennis Championships appears to be favored for an easy passage at least to the quarter-finals.

Clifton Bombers Down Falcons in YAL Play

If the rest of the games turn out to be such rip-snorters as the opener of the Young America League's Heavyweight Division schedule Wednesday night, it should be quite a season.

The Clifton Bombers came from behind in the last of the seventh and last inning at Memorial Park Wednesday to subdue the Devine Redeemer Falcons, 11-10. The Bombers used a single by Bill Bartley, three walks and a hit-batsman to score three times in their half of the inning.

The Falcons had an 8-2 lead going into the last of the fifth, but the wildness of their pitchers finally cost them the game. Starter Vic Lee and reliever Mike Orwig limited the Bombers to only one hit, but they also walked no less than 21 men between them.

Bartley's hit was the only one for the winners while Tom Rhue had a double and single for the Falcons.

Tonight at Memorial Park (Sky Sox Field), there is a double bill slated in the Junior Men's League with the Colts playing Kiwanis and the Tigers taking on Sertoma.

In play during the day in the YAL, there was a busy slate with action at every park around the city for the first time this season.

The Yanks defeate the Aces, 10-4, and the Tigers whipped the A's, 8-3, to open play at Monument Valley Park. And the other park opener of the day was at Memorial Field No. 3 where the Dodgers trimmed the Reds, 17-13, and the Devine Redeemer Cards blasted the Aces, 20-0, in the Lightweight Division.

The Yanks scored six runs in the third inning for their victory as catcher Gary Knopp led the attack with two hits, including a double to highlight the winning frame. The Tigers erupted for all eight runs in the fourth, using three walks and singles by Rick Johnson Roberta Negron, Bill Barnes Steve Colbert and San Bishop.

In a pair of Middleweight games at Bonney Park, the Elks Club Bruins clubbed the Pirates, 12-2, and the Roper Realty Red Sox came from behind to crush the Bums, 14-6. The Bruins scored in every inning and Carl Lasing hurled two-hit ball as the Elks Club rolled to hteir second straight win. The Red Sox rallied for six runs in the third and fourth to top the Bums with shortstop Kirk Padgett pacing the 11-hit assault with three singles.

Middleweight action at Audubon had the Sertoma Cubs smash the Divine Redeemer Orioles, 12-3, behind a nine-hit attack. Pitcher Phil Freeman collected a pair of hits and scattered six safeties for the Cubs, who broke the game open with nine runs in the fourth. Mike Rothe and Lyn Miller each had doubles as the Reds scored six runs in the third stanza to overcome the Hawks, 11-5.

Lightweight play, in addition to openers at Memorial had the Indians dumping the Twins, 8-1 and the Hayes Construction Colts rocking the Yankees, 20-0, at Vermijo Park.

Darlene Hard In Federation Cup Finals

LONDON (AP)—Darlene Hard of the United States and Margaret Smith of Australia faced each other today in the final of the new Federation Cup Tennis Tournament—and a test of strength for the coming Wimbledon championships.

The top seeded teams, the Americans and Australians, are the finalists in the new tourney which started Monday with teams from 16 nations.

Darlene Hard, the intrepid volleyer from Long Beach Calif., is No. 1 in the U.S. team.

The final is decided on three matches—two singles and a doubles. The second singles is likely to be between Billie Jean Moffitt, also of Long Beach and Jan Lehane.

For the doubles, American team captain Bill Kellogg can call on either of his two principals or Carole Caldwell, of Santa Monica, Calif. The Australians are expected to use Lesley Turner, famed as a doubles player, as partner for Miss Smith.

The two teams have gone through three rounds to reach the final without losing a match. The American girls downed Britain 3-0 Thursday and the Australians made a 3-0 sweep against South Africa.

Miss Smith has the most impressive record. In the three rounds she has won in straight sets every time, dropping a total of only 10 games.

Miss Hard is seeded No. 4 at Wimbledon, Miss Smith No. 1. The American girl has said she plans to get married at the end of the year and will not come to Wimbledon again.

The Wimbledon crown has always eluded her. She has been in the final twice. Today's clash with Miss Smith could be a pointer to her chances of pulling off the coveted prize at last.

Clay Tells Reporters Liston Is Scared to Death of Him

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—There was excitement in Cassius Clay's voice and his eyes glowed like burning coals. He spoke almost as if he believed what he said.

"That big, ugly bear, Sonny Liston. He's scared to death of me. He's losing sleep thinking about me and what I'm going to do to him."

So intently did Cassius speak that the reporter's mind played tricks with him. He started to picture the 6-foot-1, 220-pound Liston cringing in a corner, his eyes bleary from lack of sleep, and wondering when Killer Clay was coming for him.

The reporter snapped out of his daydream when he heard again: "Ugly bear, total annihilation, tramp, greatest, bestest, handsomest, predict eight, he'll be in a worser fix if I predicted six . . ."

Cassius' monologue droned on.

Back to reality, the reporter asked Cassius to face the facts. He is only 21, he has lots of time, what is the rush and does he really and truly want to fight the devastating champion?

"Sure, I want that big, ugly bear but I gotta get my cut," said The Greatest Wednesday on his triumphant return from London where he had stopped British champion Henry Cooper in five rounds as he said he would.

"I want a million and a half guarantee plus half of the TV money. My managers are working on the deal."

How about Liston's cut?

"Man, that fight will draw a $15 million dollar gate with everything. It will draw more than Cleopatra and Cleopatra (Liz Taylor) was at the ringside watching me Tuesday night."

Cassius was advised that Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser, wanted to put the Clay-Liston fight in Philadelphia in September, providing Liston beats Floyd Patterson a cinch, says Liston in their July 22 return fight.

"That's all right with me," said Cassius quickly. "His home town will witness the annihilation. And then it's only a hop, skip and jump to New York, Pittsburgh and all the other nice cities nearby so people can come to see the fight."

As for the hurry to fight Liston, Mighty Mouth said, "I want to be the youngest heavyweight champion ever. I want to break Patterson's record."

He was told that his deadline then was Dec. 12.

"I'm gonna break the record," he said.

This time he sounded like he believed it.

Broncos Fans Set for Games

DENVER (UPI) — The home folks here will get a chance in August to see the Denver Broncos play two pre-season exhibition games.

The games— against Houston Aug. 3 and San Diego Aug. 17 — are the first Bronco exhibition games scheduled for Denver in the club's pro grid history.

In making the announcement of the pre-season games here, Bronco coach Jack Faulkner said that the games will give Denver fans a chance to see the new draft choices and free agents the club has [illegible] for the new season.

NEVER A LOSER

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — John Pont, Yale's new head football coach, never had a losing season in seven years at the helm of Miami (Ohio) University.

Pont is a 35-year-old native of Canton, Ohio. Despite his size, 5-7 and 167 pounds, he was an All Mid-American Conference back at Miami and the university's top ground gainer.

Southern Cal Players Off Seeded List

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Dennis Ralston and Rafael Osuna have a tennis tournament on their hands today but they are already worried about the next one — at Wimbledon beginning Monday.

Shortly after the two top-seeded players from Southern California advanced to the quarter-finals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament Wednesday, they got the word that neither is seeded at Wimbledon.

"I don't understand it," said Ralston, the California boy who is seeded first here.

"I expected to be seeded in the top five," said Osuna, second-ranked here and Mexico's top player. He was a quarter-finalist at Wimbledon last year.

But while the two were thinking about the big tournament in England next week, each had a scare in advancing to the NCAA round of eight.

Ralston polished off Yoshi Menegishi of Stanford 6-0, 7-5, but he had to struggle in the second. And Ralston really had to turn on his best tennis to beat back George Sokol of North Carolina 6-2, 1-6, 6-3. Sokol's fine backhand and Osuna's volleying errors made it close until Osuna swept the last three games.

Ralston and Osuna were joined by Southern California teammate Tom Edlefsen in the quarter-finals. UCLA, with Arthur Ashe, Jr., and David Reed, was the only other school with more than one player left.

The Bruins are tied with Southern Cal in the team standings at 18-18, but they suffered a blow when their doubles team of Paul Palmer and Reed was upset by Princeton's Herb Fitzgibbon and Arthur Howell, 6-8, 6-2, 6-2.

Martin Riessen of Northwestern beat John Hammill of Miami 6-4, 6-1 and Edlefsen, No. 7 seed, took player John Karabasz, 6-3, 6-4.

Ashe shaded Clark Graebner of whipped Jim McManus of California, No. 8, 6-8, 6-4, 7-5.

Osuna and Ralston are expected to reach the finals, and then hasten off to London for Wimbledon.

"They say they didn't seed Rafael because he hasn't played in many major tournaments this season," said Ralston of the Wimbledon draw. "But I've beaten three of the seeded players." They are Chuck McKinley, No. 4 and America's leading player, Australia's Martin Mulligan, No. 5, and England's Mike Sangster, No. 8.

Pueblo to Add More Pari-Mutuel Machines

PUEBLO — Robert E. (Bob) Tryon, general manager of Pueblo Greyhound Park, has placed a rush order with the American Totalisator Co. for nine more pari-mutuel machines to handle capacity-night crowds.

Left-Handed Golf Tourney Up in Air

Lopez, the New Mexico high school champ among both southpaws and right-handers, is only 17 and rules say a golfer must be 18 to win the national championship—even though you're the best of the bunch.

"I wanted to compete in the open class, but I just couldn't," declared the 5-foot-6 inch youngster.

Despite his slight stature, the youngster has been hitting the ball as long on the Monterey Peninsula Country Club courses as older left-handers who outweigh him by 100 pounds.

Young Joe carded a 75-73—148 for the first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament to virtually wrap up the junior title. Terry Woods of Calhoun, Ga., in second place, has an 80-86—166 in his bid to defend his title.

During the first two 18-hole tests, the junior and championship shooters played the same courses from the same tees.

Starting today, Lopez and the other juniors will play from tees that have been moved up so he can't further embarrass his elders.

Harvey Rascoe of Inglewood, Calif., the first - round leader, slipped to a 78 and 152 total at the midway point. San Francisco newspaperman Nelson Cullenward, president of the National Golf Writers' Association, was in third place with 153 after a 75 on Wednesday.

Bill Smith of Scottsdale, Ariz., headed the senior division for southpaw golfers 50 years and older with a 153, carded with a 77-76.

Pinky James of Hickory, N.C., was second at 157 and the first round leader, Douglas Hendry of Tacoma, Wash., slipped from 74 to 84 for a 158 total. Tied with Hendry was Z. I. Dzanker of Portland, Ore., with 83-75—158.

Radio for Moon Operation Is Being Devised

By JOHN WOODFIELD

Although future space travelers may find moon-to-earth communications as simple as the roadside telephone, lunar pioneers will have to settle for something a little more complex.

Anticipating this need, the systems management division of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. has developed a complete communications package for use by America's first man-on-the-moon.

Weighing some 450 pounds, the system could be hurled aloft as early as 1965, carried by the Saturn C1B rocket. It could, if necessary, remain dormant on the moon's surface for a year before being activated.

Although designed primarily for a "soft" landing, using retrorockets to cushion its descent, the package could be modified to withstand a lunar landing force of 20 to 30 times the force of gravity.

A large circular cone or dish extends from a telescoping mast. The mast, in turn, projects from the main housing, which resembles a hat box with louvers on top.

The dish is the antenna for two-way voice communications, television and telemetry data between earth and moon. It rotates slowly, always aimed toward the earth, tracking it automatically by means of infra-red rays.

A small antenna mounted on the circumference of the dish receives the command signal from earth when the system is to be made operational.

An antenna, 75 to 100 feet high when fully erected, extends from the main housing to pick up radio, television and telemetry data signals from lunar explorers for relay to earth.

Two television cameras are mounted on opposite edges of the base.

Should it precede a manned lunar expedition, the system would carry with it a system of nuclear auxiliary power. This nuclear energy would be sufficient to raise the antennas and make the system operational upon command from earth. It also would keep the instruments warm during the lunar night, when temperatures drop to minus 2,000 degrees.

The louvers, or veins, which operate like a venetian blind, open during the lunar day to permit escape of the heat developed by the system's generators. At night, they close to contain this same heat.

Although dormant when pressurized, the gas rapidly decomposes upon release and generates a tremendous amount of heat which operates a piston engine, similar to that in a car. The engine, in turn, powers a turbine to generate the electrical power needed for the communications system.

In a related project, Westinghouse engineers are developing an unmanned lunar exploration vehicle dubbed "Rover."

Weighing some 3,000 pounds, it could make a lunar landing via the Saturn 5 rocket and roam the moon's surface at four miles per hour up to 100 miles before its hydrazine engine expired.

One Oasis May Be Seen in Reruns on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There may be at least one oasis in the summer desert of reruns on network television if last nights premiere program on NBC's "Mystery Theater" is a valid sample of the series.

"Shadow of a Man" wasn't much in the way of plot—a rather familiar treatment of insurance fraud and blackmail—but it was given a sleek and classy production and it used interesting performers.

Broderick Crawford, looking a little older, played a gruff, dyspeptic but heart-of-gold insurance investigator on the trail of some funny stuff involving one of his company's agents.

Nothing very unexpected happened, even the violent windup with a murder and fatal automobile accident, were easily anticipated. But it did provide an hour of what might be categorized as light summer—or hammock—viewing.

Crawford and Kelly might be a good team for an action series built around Wednesday night's characters.

Television, which usually grabs any big news for a news special or an analysis, has been almost shy about its treatment of the sensational British government crisis.

NBC on Tuesday night finally had a special—a half-hour round-up of the torrid tale of hijinks in high places. Then, all the reticence was understandable. Nobody, apparently, has been able to get any decent film or tape pictures to match the titillating facts.

NBC was forced to use a series of artist's sketches to suggest the goings-on inside Parliament where cameras are forbidden. It had only still pictures of the principals. The most interesting film showed a BBC commentator interviewing members of the House of Commons and journalists about the Profumo scandal while standing under umbrellas in a downpour.

Chet Huntley attempted to make up for his lack of television material by using some very harsh words, rarely if ever before heard on TV, to describe the character and occupation of the woman in the case.

Television odds and ends.

Merv Griffin isn't suffering any unemployment woes. Not only has he committed himself to a full season of summer stock and CBS' "Talent Scouts" show, but he'll preside over a weekly musical series on CBS-Radio for the summer. They ought to carry him nicely until his NBC "Shopping Spree" starts in the fall.

ABC will have Allen W. Dulles, former director of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Agency, talking about the Profumo affair, Communist subversion from Cuba and other timely subjects on "Issues and Answers" Sunday afternoon, June 30.

An assortment of comedy pilot programs—most of which failed to sell projected series—will replace CBS' "Lucy Show" for a couple of months starting July 22. One, however, is a show starring Glynis Johns. The pilot did sell a series—but so many changes were made in the premise that the pilot film could not be used as a part of it.

DISREGARDS OBJECTIONS

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—Joseph Satterwaite, U.S. ambassador to South Africa, has served notice on the government that he plans to host a multiracial Fourth of July reception here despite official disapproval.

Foreign Minister Eric Louw earlier asked the diplomatic corps to hold only one reception to celebrate national days. This would automatically rule out multiracial embassy fetes.

ILLINOIS QUEEN OF POSTURE—Pretty 18-year-old Carol McCrorey of Peoria has been named the 1963 winner of the Illinois Chiropractors' Assn., in Peoria. The candidates were judged 50 per cent for the straightness of their spine, and 50 per cent on posture, poise and originality. (AP Wirephoto)

Prince Charles Did Drink at Corner Pub

LONDON (UPI) — Buckingham Palace, in an almost unprecedented move, Wednesday apologized for denying that Prince Charles took a drink in a corner pub.

A palace spokesman said it regrets that earlier it denied newspaper reports the 14-year old heir to the British throne drank a glass of cherry brandy in the pub while on a school outing at Stornoway on Scotland's Isle of Lewis.

Scottish law limits such pub drinking to persons over 18. The announcement said the prince's police bodyguard, who was with Charles in the pub, "misled" the palace in reporting the incident. The palace regrets this, it announced.

The palace had denied the report that Charles Tuesday was seen in the bar of the Crown Hotel sipping a 35-cent glass of cherry brandy. According to reports, the bodyguard "asked" Charles to leave the pub when he found the prince with the drink on the table in front of him.

About 60 per cent of the 58 million homes in this country are more than 20 years old, housing authorities estimate.

New High Speed Color Film to Be Released

By BART KINCH
United Press International

The high speed color film astronaut L. Gordon Cooper used on his historic 22-orbit flight around the earth will be released soon to the General Aniline and Film Corporation.

The new Anscochrome type film, previously tried out in astronaut Alan Sheard's suborbital flight in May, 1961, was selected for Cooper's flight on the basis of its high speed, extreme sharpness and brilliant color rendition.

When released to the public, the film will be ideal for low level illumination color photography. The film will have an ASA rating of 00 but can be shot at 400 without any need for processing manipuation.

The ultra-speed film will be called Anscochrome 200. The exact date for its introduction on the market has not yet been determined.

According to the manufacturer, the new film was well suited for the extended 100 degree plus temperatures recorded in Cooper's Faith 7 space ship during its 34-hour flight.

Before Cooper carried the film aloft, it had been subjected to stringent laboratory testing by the company. No visible change in the film was recorded even when heated to nearly 200 degrees fahrenheit.

Cooper apparently loaded several Hasselblad backs with the 120 size rolls to capture spectacular views of the earth.

On orbit 16 Cooper gathered photo data on two dim light phenomena on the new film—zodiacal light and the night airglow layer. Photographs of zodiacal light are expected to help scientists determine the light's exact origin, geometric distribution and its usefulness in studying solar radiation and flare activity.

Data on the airglow will provide information on the solar energy conversion processes occurring in the upper atmosphere.

Both these phenomena are best observed from outside the earth's atmosphere.

Cooper did not disclose the lens combination he used on the Hasselblad camera. However, the basic theme of the Hasselblad is lens interchangability.

All the Zeiss lenses feature a fully - synchronized between -the- lens shutter with speeds up to 1-500 second, automatic and manual diaphragm, and automatic depth-of-field indicators.

All seven lenses incorporate the same scale which makes for ease of operation. The interchangable film magazines also provide a quick and simple means of switching between different kinds of film and negative sizes.

The new Anscochrome film probably will be offered in both 35mm and 120 film sizes.

Organic Soil Proves Just Too Organic

Nelms top-dressed his tobacco bed with one of the products. A few days later he found that buzzards had torn the bed cover off and were eating the top-dressing materials.

Non - attended automatic elevators are being installed in New York City's Empire State Building, world's tallest structure. The job will take three years to complete and cost $2 million.

Plumley Urged to Run In Massachusetts

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — A former president of he U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Ladd Plumley, says he is being urged to run in 1964 for the Republican nomination for governor of Massachusetts.

Plumley said he has an open mind on the possibility but at present "cannot be described as a candidate."

In a copyrighted interview Wednesday with Heoard S. Knowles, chief of the Worcester Telegram and Gazette bureau in Boston, Plumley said that suggestions of his candidacy stem in part from is recent activities as national chamber president.

He said that he will meet soon with GOP State Chairman Frederic C. Dumaine Jr. to discuss the state's political situation.

Radio for Moon Operation Is Being Devised

By JOHN WOODFIELD

Although future space travelers may find moon-to-earth communications as simple as the roadside telephone, lunar pioneers will have to settle for something a little more complex.

Anticipating this need, the systems management division of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. has developed a complete communications package for use by America's first man-on-the-moon.

Weighing some 450 pounds, the system could be hurled aloft as early as 1965, carried by the Saturn C1B rocket. It could, if necessary, remain dormant on the moon's surface for a year before being activated.

Although designed primarily for a "soft" landing, using retro-rockets to cushion its descent, the package could be modified to withstand a lunar landing force of 20 to 30 times the force of gravity.

A large circular cone or dish extends from a telescoping mast. The mast, in turn, projects from the main housing, which resembles a hat box with louvers on top.

The dish is the antenna for two-way voice communications, television and telemetry data between earth and moon. It rotates slowly, always aimed toward the earth, tracking it automatically by means of infra-red rays.

A small antenna mounted on the circumference of the dish receives the command signal from earth when the system is to be made operational.

An antenna, 75 to 100 feet high when fully erected, extends from the main housing to pick up radio, television and telemetry data signals from lunar explorers for relay to earth.

Two television cameras are mounted on opposite edges of the base.

Should it precede a manned lunar expedition, the system would carry with it a system of nuclear auxiliary power. This nuclear energy would be sufficient to raise the antennas and make the system operational upon command from earth. It also would keep the instruments warm during the lunar night, when temperatures drop to minus 2,000 degrees.

The louvers, or veins, which operate like a venetian blind, open during the lunar day to permit escape of the heat developed by the system's generators. At night, they close to contain this same heat.

Although dormant when pressurized, the gas rapidly decomposes upon release and generates a tremendous amount of heat which operates a piston engine, similar to that in a car. The engine, in turn, powers a turbine to generate the electrical power needed for the communications system.

In a related project, Westinghouse engineers are developing an unmanned lunar exploration vehicle dubbed "Rover."

Weighing some 3,000 pounds, it could make a lunar landing via the Saturn 5 rocket and roam the moon's surface at four miles per hour up to 100 miles before its hydrazine engine expired.

U. S. Is Becoming More Alcoholic, Doctors Say

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Two psychiatrists told the second session of the California School on Alcoholism at the University of California on Tuesday that the United States is becoming more and more alcoholic.

Dr. Hardin B. Jones, assistant director of the university's Donner Laboratory, said the habit of one for the road is becoming increasingly lethal and unbelievably costly.

He cited some statistics: The United States now consumes 160 million gallons of spirits a year—90 million barrels of beer and 150 million gallons of wine.

"I assume it's being consumed," he said, "because I know it isn't being hoarded."

That is enough, he said for every adult in the nation to down 2.6 gallons of 100-proof alcohol a year.

Dr. Jones described an alcoholic as anyone who drinks a fifth of spirits a day. He said there are about two million of these in the United States. Other authorities, however, define an alcoholic as anyone who drinks 8½ ounces of spirits a day. There are about six million Americans who do this, he said.

About 4,000 deaths are officially attributed to alcoholism annually, Jones said. But, he added, probably about 12,000 deaths are caused by alcohol each year.

Dr. Karl Bowman, professor emeritus of psychiatry at Langley Porter Clinic in San Francisco, estimated the cost of all this liquor at $10.5 billion a year. He compared it with the expenditure of $550 million a year on get-well cards and $306 million annually spent on chewing gum.

CHANGE OF SCENE

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The wedding, like the show, must go on. When fire destroyed the St. Philip's R.C. Church, plans for the marriage of Miss Shirley Mokray and Thomas E. Holleran underwent a rapid change. The ceremony was moved to the adjoining school auditorium after the walls were hurriedly scrubbed down to remove smoke stains.

Slurry Pipeline Idea Is Not Yet Defeated

By JESSE BOGUE

Those who thought it had received a deathblow in early May with announcement by the Consolidation Coal Company of plans to abandon one in Ohio recognize the resilience of its supporters, who view it as a potential governor holding down possible rail rate increases.

Recent reductions in coal freight rates led Consolidation Coal Company to announce on May 7 that it would abandon its 108-mile working coal slurry line which delivered bituminous fuel to the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company. Coal is transported on a slurry pipeline by mixing it with water after reducing its particle sizes to those which will move in suspension.

At the time, officials said that the decision to switch coal shipments from the pipeline to rail was based purely on the economics of large deliveries to existing plants; the rail rate reductions cut the rail cost of transporting coal by 61 cents a ton below that of slurry movement.

Some observers thought that the discontinuance of the Ohio line would bring quick death to the hopes of West Virginia coal producers for a slurry line that would connect them directly with East Coast utilities, still major users of coal.

But the idea is very much alive. At the time of the pipeline announcement in Ohio, G. A. Shoemaker, president of Consolidation, said the suspension would not lessen coal industry efforts to secure the right of eminent domain for pipelines on a national basis, in order to give coal consumers in other areas "the right to choose the most economic method" of transportation.

Ceylon Faces Future Choice of East or West

By DENZIL PETRIS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — A quiet struggle is under way in Ceylon to determine the economic, and perhaps political, direction of this island nation in the Indian Ocean.

The opposing forces are represented in the cabinet of Ceylon's woman prime minister, Sirimavo Bandaranaike, by two ministers. One is Maitripala Senanayake, who has in the past maintained friendly reltions with the West and driven hard bargains with the Communist bloc. The other is Tikiri Banda Ilangaratne, a warm friend of Communist countries.

As minister of trade and commerce, the latter confiscated American and British oil company property to start a Ceylonese oil company. When compensation was not forthcoming, Washington cut off economic aid to Ceylon last February.

Ilangaratne had moved Ceylon's trade away from its traditional partners, Britain, Western Europe and the United States, and toward the Soviet bloc. Soviet imports rose from $1.2 million in 1960 to $6.8 million last year.

Ceylon still depends upon sales of tea, rubber and coconuts to earn industrial imports for the island's 10 million people. Most of the sales are to the West, especially Britain, which ruled here until 1948. Britain's high commissioner, Sir Michael Walker, has complained that money earned by sales to his country is increasingly being spent elsewhere.

According to usually reliable sources, Mrs. Bandaranaike has been worried that Ceylon is passing into the Soviet trade orbit. Some informed observers think the shift of Ilangaratne and Senanayake was intended to check this drift. The finance ministry is the key job in Ceylon, however, and interpretations vary on giving it to Ilangaratne.

Ceylon is in continual economic crisis. More than a quarter of the budget is not covered by revenue, leaving an annual deficit of $120 million. This makes the finance portfolio a hazardous one.

Some right-wing Ceylonese are hoping Ilangaratne will fail to solve the financial problems and suffer a personal decline. But many are worried that the portly Socialist, who is surrounded by personal advisers of Marxist persuasion, will introduce radial fiscal measures. There have been hints that the foreign banks in Ceylon—five British and three Indian and Pakistani—might be nationalized.

The Western oil companies—Esso, Caltex and Shell—continued to do business here after some of their faciltiies were seized. Now they are being almost entirely closed.

The full cabinet decided shortly after the change of portfolios that the Ceylon Petroleum Corp. created by Ilangaratne "should be assigned the sale rights of distribution of petroleum products over the country with effect from Jan. 1, 1964."

The decision came as there was speculation on step to have American aid resumed. Technical assistance grants of $1.3 million and loans of $3 million were halted on the grounds that "meaningful steps" had not been taken to pay compensation for seized assets. Now the other assets of the companies will become useless to them.

Experts in the finance ministry had been reported to feel that American aid was necessary in drawing up the budget to be presented in late July. But Ilangaratne has changed those experts.

The budget he will present, and the reaction it stirs in the country, are expected to indicate the direction Ceylon is going.

Public Relations Methods Urged For Church Use

By MARIE PRICE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are public relations techniques suitable for church use?

A 385-page "yes" answer has been written by the Rev. Thomas J. M. Burke, S.J., director of public relations for Jesuit Missions, in a doctoral dissertation said to be the first one on public relations for religious institutions.

"All religious groups, at every level of American society, can and should use organized public relations techniques to remove unnecessary conflict and misunderstanding among themselves and between religious groups and society at large," says Father Burke.

He was awarded a Ph. D. degree June 5 from New York University.

In his thesis, Father Burke outlines how all creeds can utilize the elements of planning and continued direction that are essential to a successful public relations campaign.

His view is this:

The basis of public relations is to persuade people. Religious groups aim at persuading people of an ethical truth they think is usable.

So, using techniques highly developed by professional public relations men can enable churches to promote religious and social values in society, communicate better with their own people, and further cooperaation among denominations

If religious values are to have the place they should have in people's lives, he says, "public relations will have to be utilized lest the field be left only to values being promoted by business and government."

There is nothing inherently wrong with business and government values, Father Burke believes, but they are limited. "And in every community where the impact of religious values is lost, the community as a whole loses," he says.

Father Burke's thesis describes methods religious groups can use to aid themselves if they're unknown in a community, misunderstood, opposed or isolated. And he thinks there is a greater need for this kind of information than most people realize.

Also, his thesis explains how using public relations planning and organization to set up common programs would enable differing groups to cooperate.

Atabrine May Aid in Lung Cancer Fight

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)— Scientists are exploring the possibility of using Atabrine—the armed forces' prime drug weapon against malaria early in World War II — as a kind of "Trojan Horse" to fight lung cancer.

The idea would be to use Atabrine, which itself has no effect on cancer, as a vehicle for transporting radiation—or cancer-fighting drugs to the site of the malignancy—without harming normal issue enroute.

It would be much like the way the ancient Greeks used their wooden "gift" horse to sneak their warriors inside the walls of Troy.

Drs. Alvin Shemesh and Norman B. Ackerman of the University of Minnesota Medical School told about it in a statement prepared for the closing session of the American Medical Association's 12th annual meeting today.

The Minnesota researchers said they had found that Atabrine, and other compounds of the "amino-acridine" family, have a tendency to concentrate most heavily in the lungs and liver when administered to experimental animals.

Declaring that Atabrine and some of its chemical cousins can be made to fluoresce, or "glow," when exposed to ultra-violet light, they said they used this technique to trace the distribution of such chemicals in the tissues of animals in which experimental tumors had been implanted at various sites.

Some of the compounds, including Atabrine, were strongly concentrated by tumors in the lungs.

Within minutes after administration, the tumors and the normal lung tissue would "light up," but by 24 hours the glowing would be limited to the cancer area which would remain bright or about four days.

The doctors said lung tumors in animals can be identified and pinpointed in the lung area by this method when the chest is opened surgically—and they thereby implied that the method might offer a way to aiding diagnosis of lung cancer in suspicious human cases.

They also reported they are now working on a new slant.

They have procured radioactive forms of Atabrine and are using them in lung-tumorous rats to study the effect on the cancer.

Other doctors at the meeting told reporters the Minnesota work suggests the possibility of "tagging" Atabrine with drugs which conceivably might have some effect on lung cancer, if delivered to the target in sufficient strength.

One of the drawbacks to chemical attack on cancer in the past has been the fact that most of the drugs can't restrict their action to the cancer site. Thus, doses theoretically high enough to damage a cancer would be dangerous to the rest of the body.

Nikita's Power Credited To His Flexible Policies

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In his early years as undisputed spokesman for world communism, much of Nikita Khrushchev's success could be attributed to his flexibility.

Thus he was able to move at will within the vast Communist perimeter, keeping the Western allies off balance at points as widely separated as the Strait of Formosa, the Persian Gulf and the Baltic sea.

With the eruption of his quarrel with Red China, a large portion of that flexibility vanished and new dangers appeared.

In the month of June, as he prepared for two important conferences, Khrushchev has been trying to restore a measure of his freedom of movement.

From the standpoint of the Communist world, the most important of these meetings begins July 5 in Moscow when Soviet and Red Chinese representatives meet in an attempt to iron out the ideological differences now pulling them apart.

Later in the month, also in Moscow, high-level U.S., British and Soviet delegates will meet in an attempt to break the stalemate over a nuclear test ban. In the two meetings there are interlocking issues.

At stake in the first is a decision on which of the two Communist giants is to have the final say in the course of world communism, and for Moscow whether it is to be forced into a second class role in Asia.

In the second is the question whether the three nuclear powers finally can reach accord so as to bring their combined influences against continued spread of nuclear weapons.

In both, maneuverability is important to Khrushchev. And this may be the reason for delaying his final okay on the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington and his sudden withdrawal of his offer of two to three on-site inspections of possible underground nuclear tests on Soviet soil.

One is Soviet economic and military aid to Red China which has declined steadily since their quarrel broke into the open and now is virtually non-existent.

The other is that a belligerently uncompromising attitude by the Chinese might force the Soviet Union to seek closer relations with the United States — a possibility abhored by the Chinese as one of the strongest curbs against their own ambitions.

That the Soviets might eventually feel such a need is at least worthy of speculation.

President Charles de Gaulle holds that an economically and industrially advanced Russia will become less and less willing to risk its gains in war.

But the Chinese not only promote wars for which they demand Moscow support, but also have shown their willingness to act independent or Moscow. In Asia and Africa they also are promoting racial color lines to the Soviets' obvious disadvantage.

A further risk to Moscow is the fact that the Chinese may soon be able to explode an atomic device of their own. Its early effect will be psychological but finally it also could pose a threat to the Soviet Union.

These are some of the reasons for Khrushchev's need for flexibility, and perhaps also help to account for Moscow's recent seeming hesitancy to act in world affairs.

All retired enlisted men and women in the Pikes Peak region are invited to attend the July 1 installation program.

CLERMONT, Fla. (AP) — There's a strange adoption at the home of Loraine Duff. Her dog, Bitsy, has adopted a 10 - week - old raccoon. Bitsy nurses and sleeps with the coon. Loraine joins in by dressing the tiny animal and placing a bow in her hair. The coon performs by walking on tip toes for her canine mother and feminine owner.

U. S. Is Becoming More Alcoholic, Doctors Say

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Two psychiatrists told the second session of the California School on Alcoholism at the University of California on Tuesday that the United States is becoming more and more alcoholic.

Dr. Hardin B. Jones, assistant director of the university's Donner Laboratory, said the habit of one for the road is becoming increasingly lethal and unbelievably costly.

He cited some statistics: The United States now consumes 160 million gallons of spirits a year—90 million barrels of beer and 150 million gallons of wine.

"I assume it's being consumed," he said, "because I know it isn't being hoarded."

That is enough, he said for every adult in the nation to down 2.6 gallons of 100-proof alcohol a year.

Dr. Jones described an alcoholic as anyone who drinks a fifth of spirits a day. He said there are about two million of these in the United States. Other authorities, however, define an alcoholic as anyone who drinks 8½ ounces of spirits a day. There are about six million Americans who do this, he said.

About 4,000 deaths are officially attributed to alcoholism annually, Jones said. But, he added, probably about 12,000 deaths are caused by alcohol each year.

Dr. Karl Bowman, professor emeritus of psychiatry at Langley Porter Clinic in San Francisco, estimated the cost of all this liquor at $10.5 billion a year. He compared it with the expenditure of $550 million a year on get-well cards and $306 million annually spent on chewing gum.

CHANGE OF SCENE

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The wedding, like the show, must go on. When fire destroyed the St. Philip's R.C. Church, plans for the marriage of Miss Shirley Mokray and Thomas E. Holleran underwent a rapid change. The ceremony was moved to the adjoining school auditorium after the walls were hurriedly scrubbed down to remove smoke stains.

Slurry Pipeline Idea Is Not Yet Defeated

By JESSE BOGUE

Those who thought it had received a deathblow in early May with announcement by the Consolidation Coal Company of plans to abandon one in Ohio recognize the resilience of its supporters, who view it as a potential governor holding down possible rail rate increases.

Recent reductions in coal freight rates led Consolidation Coal Company to announce on May 7 that it would abandon its 108-mile working coal slurry line which delivered bituminous fuel to the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company. Coal is transported on a slurry pipeline by mixing it with water after reducing its particle sizes to those which will move in suspension.

At the time, officials said that the decision to switch coal shipments from the pipeline to rail was based purely on the economics of large deliveries to existing plants; the rail rate reductions cut the rail cost of transporting coal by 61 cents a ton below that of slurry movement.

Some observers thought that the discontinuance of the Ohio line would bring quick death to the hopes of West Virginia coal producers for a slurry line that would connect them directly with East Coast utilities, still major users of coal.

But the idea is very much alive. At the time of the pipeline announcement in Ohio, G. A. Shoemaker, president of Consolidation, said the suspension would not lessen coal industry efforts to secure the right of eminent domain for pipelines on a national basis, in order to give coal consumers in other areas "the right to choose the most economic method" of transportation.

Ceylon Faces Future Choice of East or West

By DENZIL PETRIS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — A quiet struggle is under way in Ceylon to determine the economic, and perhaps political, direction of this island nation in the Indian Ocean.

The opposing forces are represented in the cabinet of Ceylon's woman prime minister, Sirimavo Bandaranaike, by two ministers. One is Maitripala Senanayake, who has in the past maintained friendly reltions with the West and driven hard bargains with the Communist bloc. The other is Tikiri Banda Ilangaratne, a warm friend of Communist countries.

As minister of trade and commerce, the latter confiscated American and British oil company property to start a Ceylonese oil company. When compensation was not forthcoming, Washington cut off economic aid to Ceylon last February.

Ilangaratne had moved Ceylon's trade away from its traditional partners, Britain, Western Europe and the United States, and toward the Soviet bloc. Soviet imports rose from $1.2 million in 1960 to $6.8 million last year.

Ceylon still depends upon sales of tea, rubber and coconuts to earn industrial imports for the island's 10 million people. Most of the sales are to the West, especially Britain, which ruled here until 1948. Britain's high commissioner, Sir Michael Walker, has complained that money earned by sales to his country is increasingly being spent elsewhere.

According to usually reliable sources, Mrs. Bandaranaike has been worried that Ceylon is passing into the Soviet trade orbit. Some informed observers think the shift of Ilangaratne and Senanayake was intended to check this drift. The finance ministry is the key job in Ceylon, however, and interpretations vary on giving it to Ilangaratne.

Ceylon is in continual economic crisis. More than a quarter of the budget is not covered by revenue, leaving an annual deficit of $120 million. This makes the finance portfolio a hazardous one.

Some right-wing Ceylonese are hoping Ilangaratne will fail to solve the financial problems and suffer a personal decline. But many are worried that the portly Socialist, who is surrounded by personal advisers of Marxist persuasion, will introduce radial fiscal measures. There have been hints that the foreign banks in Ceylon—five British and three Indian and Pakistani—might be nationalized.

The Western oil companies—Esso, Caltex and Shell—continued to do business here after some of their faciltiies were seized. Now they are being almost entirely closed.

The full cabinet decided shortly after the change of portfolios that the Ceylon Petroleum Corp. created by Ilangaratne "should be assigned the sale rights of distribution of petroleum products over the country with effect from Jan. 1, 1964."

The decision came as there was speculation on step to have American aid resumed. Technical assistance grants of $1.3 million and loans of $3 million were halted on the grounds that "meaningful steps" had not been taken to pay compensation for seized assets. Now the other assets of the companies will become useless to them.

Experts in the finance ministry had been reported to feel that American aid was necessary in drawing up the budget to be presented in late July. But Ilangaratne has changed those experts.

The budget he will present, and the reaction it stirs in the country, are expected to indicate the direction Ceylon is going.

Public Relations Methods Urged For Church Use

By MARIE PRICE

NEW YORK (AP)—Are public relations techniques suitable for church use?

A 385-page "yes" answer has been written by the Rev. Thomas J. M. Burke, S.J., director of public relations for Jesuit Missions, in a doctoral dissertation said to be the first one on public relations for religious institutions.

"All religious groups, at every level of American society, can and should use organized public relations techniques to remove unnecessary conflict and misunderstanding among themselves and between religious groups and society at large," says Father Burke.

He was awarded a Ph. D. degree June 5 from New York University.

In his thesis, Father Burke outlines how all creeds can utilize the elements of planning and continued direction that are essential to a successful public relations campaign.

His view is this:

The basis of public relations is to persuade people. Religious groups aim at persuading people of an ethical truth they think is usable.

So, using techniques highly developed by professional public relations men can enable churches to promote religious and social values in society, communicate better with their own people, and further cooperaation among denominations

If religious values are to have the place they should have in people's lives, he says, "public relations will have to be utilized lest the field be left only to values being promoted by business and government."

There is nothing inherently wrong with business and government values, Father Burke believes, but they are limited. "And in every community where the impact of religious values is lost, the community as a whole loses," he says.

Father Burke's thesis describes methods religious groups can use to aid themselves if they're unknown in a community, misunderstood, opposed or isolated. And he thinks there is a greater need for this kind of information than most people realize.

Also, his thesis explains how using public relations planning and organization to set up common programs would enable differing groups to cooperate

Atabrine May Aid in Lung Cancer Fight

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Scientists are exploring the possibility of using Atabrine—the armed forces' prime drug weapon against malaria early in World War II — as a kind of "Trojan Horse" to fight lung cancer.

The idea would be to use Atabrine, which itself has no effect on cancer, as a vehicle for transporting radiation—or cancer-fighting drugs to the site of the malignancy—without harming normal issue enroute.

Drs. Alvin Shemesh and Norman B. Ackerman of the University of Minnesota Medical School told about it in a statement prepared for the closing session of the American Medical Association's 12th annual meeting today.

The Minnesota researchers said they had found that Atabrine, and other compounds of the "amino-acridine" family, have a tendency to concentrate most heavily in the lungs and liver when administered to experimental animals.

Declaring that Atabrine and some of its chemical cousins can be made to fluoresce, or "glow," when exposed to ultra-violet light, they said they used this technique to trace the distribution of such chemicals in the tissues of animals in which experimental tumors had been implanted at various sites.

Some of the compounds, including Atabrine, were strongly concentrated by tumors in the lungs.

Within minutes after administration, the tumors and the normal lung tissue would "light up," but by 24 hours the glowing would be limited to the cancer area which would remain bright or about four days.

The doctors said lung tumors in animals can be identified and pinpointed in the lung area by this method when the chest is opened surgically—and they thereby implied that the method might offer a way to aiding diagnosis of lung cancer in suspicious human cases.

They also reported they are now working on a new slant.

They have procured radioactive forms of Atabrine and are using them in lung-tumorous rats to study the effect on the cancer.

Other doctors at the meeting told reporters the Minnesota work suggests the possibility of "tagging" Atabrine with drugs which conceivably might have some effect on lung cancer, if delivered to the target in sufficient strength.

One of the drawbacks to chemical attack on cancer in the past has been the fact that most of the drugs can't restrict their action to the cancer site. Thus, doses theoretically high enough to damage a cancer would be dangerous to the rest of the body.

Nikita's Power Credited To His Flexible Policies

By PHIL NEWSOM

In his early years as undisputed spokesman for world communism, much of Nikita Khrushchev's success could be attributed to his flexibility.

Thus he was able to move at will within the vast Communist perimeter, keeping the Western allies off balance at points as widely separated as the Strait of Formosa, the Persian Gulf and the Baltic sea.

With the eruption of his quarrel with Red China, a large portion of that flexibility vanished and new dangers appeared.

In the month of June, as he prepared for two important conferences, Khrushchev has been trying to restore a measure of his freedom of movement.

From the standpoint of the Communist world, the most important of these meetings begins July 5 in Moscow when Soviet and Red Chinese representatives meet in an attempt to iron out the ideological differences now pulling them apart.

Later in the month, also in Moscow, high-level U.S., British and Soviet delegates will meet in an attempt to break the stalemate over a nuclear test ban. In the two meetings there are interlocking issues.

At stake in the first is a decision on which of the two Communist giants is to have the final say in the course of world communism, and for Moscow whether it is to be forced into a second class role in Asia.

In the second is the question whether the three nuclear powers finally can reach accord so as to bring their combined influences against continued spread of nuclear weapons.

In both, maneuverability is important to Khrushchev. And this may be the reason for delaying his final okay on the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington and his sudden withdrawal of his offer of two to three on-site inspections of possible underground nuclear tests on Soviet soil.

One is Soviet economic and military aid to Red China which has declined steadily since their quarrel broke into the open and now is virtually non-existent.

The other is that a belligerently uncompromising attitude by the Chinese might force the Soviet Union to seek closer relations with the United States — a possibility abhored by the Chinese as one of the strongest curbs against their own ambitions.

President Charles de Gaulle holds that an economically and industrially advanced Russia will become less and less willing to risk its gains in war.

But the Chinese not only promote wars for which they demand Moscow support, but also have shown their willingness to act independent or Moscow. In Asia and Africa they also are promoting racial color lines to the Soviets' obvious disadvantage.

A further risk to Moscow is the fact that the Chinese may soon be able to explode an atomic device of their own. Its early effect will be psychological but finally it also could pose a threat to the Soviet Union.

These are some of the reasons for Khrushchev's need for flexibility, and perhaps also help to account for Moscow's recent seeming hesitancy to act in world affairs.
